INTRODUCTORY NOTE

JUDGE WILLIAMSON did not live to finish the second volume of his History of Belfast. During the decade following his death in 1902, it became a matter of general regret that the records he had spent so many years of careful research in collecting were not preserved in permanent form, and several attempts were made to complete and publish them. Among these the most important took place in 1910, when, as a result of the interest shown by the late George Prentice Field, Dr. James Clarke White, Charles Albert Pilsbury, editor of the Republican Journal, James Clinton Durham, Albert Wooster Thompson, and others, in conjunction with Judge Williamson's children, who offered the free use of the manuscript, a paper was drawn up and signed by a score of persons, who thereby subscribed to a guarantee fund to meet such deficit as the publication of the volume might involve. Although the subscriptions at the time were liberal, sufficient money was not pledged to warrant publication, and the matter was not further considered seriously until the summer of 1912, when subscriptions were again solicited, and the number of signers to the paper was gradually increased from twenty to one hundred and nineteen. The names of these subscribers are printed at the end of the volume, as members of the Williamson's History Association, a title which was adopted in November, 1912, in honor of Judge Williamson, and under which all business relative to the book has since been carried on. In accordance with the terms of the original agreement the following committee was elected in 1912 to arrange for the publication of the volume: George Albert Quimby, James Howard Howes, Ben Davis Field, James Clinton Durham, and Alfred Johnson. This committee selected Alfred Johnson as Editor and Treasurer.

The Editor's task of preparing and completing the manuscript, of seeing the book through the press, and of raising the necessary funds, has been lightened by many instances of individual kindness, and the encouragement and help he has met with on every hand speak well for the public spirit of the present and former residents of Belfast. To make even brief mention of all who have aided in the work would require more space than has been assigned to this introductory note. Specific obligations are in certain instances acknowledged in the text as they occur. Some reference should be made here, however, to the invaluable assistance received from the following persons: the surviving members of Judge Williamson's family, who have furthered the publication of the book in every way possible; George Albert Quimby, whose remarkable memory and familiarity with local events during the period treated have enabled him to perform the same services for this volume as did his uncle, the venerable William Quimby, a generation ago, for the earlier one; Hiram Pitcher Farrow, and Augustus Daniel Hayes, civil engineers, whose professional knowledge has been freely called upon; Mrs. James Clinton Durham, who has not only compiled the List of Births comprising chapter XLVIII, but has assisted at every stage of the work; Miss Margaret Nickerson Hazeltine, who has collected the material relative to College Graduates and Students in chapter XIV, and Miss Caroline Williams Field, who has verified and corrected the lists of High School teachers and graduates in chapter XVI. All of these have read the proof-sheets in whole or in part, which in addition have been seen by Dr. James Clarke White, Charles Albert Pilsbury, Charles Prescott Hazeltine, James Clinton Durham, and Mrs. Henry Herbert Edes, niece of Judge Williamson. By thus submitting the proofs to a number of persons familiar with the history of the town, it was hoped that the errors peculiar to a book of this kind would be eliminated so far as possible. The list of those of a typographical nature, which were discovered too late to be corrected, may be found as errata on page 697.

It will be noted that Mr. Williamson's original intention of continuing the present volume only to 1900, thus completing the century, has for the most part been carried out by the Editor. In some cases the narrative has been continued to 1912 or 1913. This has usually been done, however, only when the material was at hand. It did not seem advisable to delay publication long enough to bring the entire book down to date. In places where an ambiguity of statement might arise, the figures (1900), (1912), or (1913) have been inserted to fix the period. It is hoped that a third volume may continue the history in full from 1900. No attempt has been made to indicate exactly what parts of the book have been supplied since Mr. Williamson's death. Many isolated facts were lacking throughout his manuscript; not a few chapters were incomplete, and two were missing. The lapse of time had made it necessary to supplement or rewrite many of the biographical notices, while many others have been added. In general about two hundred and fifty of the seven hundred and thirty pages, including the four indexes, together with all the maps and illustrations, have been supplied. Those familiar with Judge Williamson's style will recognize the points at which the pen fell from his hand.

Finally, the Editor would take advantage of this opportunity to express his personal admiration for the scholarly attainments of Mr. Williamson, whom he knew and revered from childhood, and whose family had been connected with his own by ties of friendship and of marriage for several generations. No boy ever read Plutarch's Lives with more avidity than did the writer the biographical notices in the earlier volume of the History of Belfast. Mr. Williamson's peculiar skill in seizing the specific characteristics which went to make up the personality of the man he was describing, and his sympathetic portrayal of them, were instinctively felt at the time, and later his painstaking, tireless research, and his judgment in selecting and correlating significant details, his concise style, and his willingness to perform long and laborious tasks without the hope of pecuniary reward, came to be understood and appreciated. To Judge Williamson's personal dignity, his uniform kindness and courtesy toward young and old alike, his deference to the opinions of others, his interesting and instructive conversation, with its wealth of narrative, his moderation and accuracy of statement, — to all of these lack of space permits here allusions only. It was the writer's privilege to pass a year under the same hospitable roof with Mr. Williamson, while the manuscript of this volume was in preparation, and to hear from his own lips the author's intentions and wishes regarding its completion and publication. The work incidental to the Editor's efforts to carry these out has been both agreeable and interesting, and has brought him into pleasant relations with the many friends of his boyhood, whose generosity has made it possible to put this record of persons and events, familiar to our youth, in permanent form for those who come after us.

ALFRED JOHNSON.

MEMOIR OF JOSEPH WILLIAMSON

BY

WILLIAM CROSS WILLIAMSON

JOSEPH WILLIAMSON was born in Belfast, Maine, on the 5th of October, 1828. He traced his descent from Timothy¹ Williamson, of Marshfield, a freeman of Plymouth Colony in 1657, who served in King Philip's War, and was buried August 6, 1676. His wife was Mary Howland. George¹ Williamson, a son of Timothy, was born in Marshfield in 1675, and died in Middleboro, Massachusetts, about 1742. His wife was Mary Crisp. Caleb,³ son of George, was born in Harwich, Massachusetts, in 1715, and removed to Canterbury, Connecticut, where he died August 9, 1795. He married Sarah Ransom, of Middleboro, who died April 18, 1792, at the age of seventy. George,⁴ son of Caleb, born in Middleboro, January 15, 1754, was a soldier in the Revolution, until the close of the war, when he took up his residence in Woodstock, Vermont, where he was esteemed as farmer, inn-keeper, and selectman of the town. Thence emigrating to Maine, shortly before its separation from Massachusetts, he died in Bangor, October 10, 1822. His wife, who survived him, was Mary, daughter of William Foster, of Canterbury, to whom he was married July 9, 1778. Her ancestor was Reginald Foster, who came, it is said, from Exeter, England, to Ipswich, Massachusetts, about 1638. She was noted for her good sense and for her benevolent works. Possessed of phenomenal memory, especially of the Holy Scriptures, she left to her family a voluminous diary bearing testimony to that unquestioning faith in the Lord which sustained her through the trials and vicissitudes of a somewhat nomadic life. Of her eight children, the three sons who reached maturity preceded their father in his removal from Woodstock to Maine. These were William Durkee, later known as the historian of the State; George, who lived in Pittston, where he died in 1860; and Joseph, who came to Maine at nearly the same time with his brothers.

Joseph⁵ Williamson was born in Canterbury, August 5, 1789, and graduated at the University of Vermont in 1812. After serving the usual legal apprenticeship, he came to Belfast, and at once established himself as a lawyer. In 1820, Mr. Williamson was appointed County Attorney for Hancock County, an office which he again filled for Waldo County, when that county was formed in 1827. From 1822 until 1832 he was Postmaster; and was elected to the State Senate in 1832 and 1833, being its President during his last term. For several years he edited a local paper, was interested in politics, and delivered frequent speeches, lectures, and addresses, and took a willing hand in every scheme for the education and improvement of his town and its inhabitants. In 1839, he received from Brown University the honorary degree of Master of Arts. Resolutions passed at a meeting of the Bar of the Supreme Judicial Court, after his decease, make mention of "his indefatigable devotion to his profession, and of the esteem in which he was held and of his unvarying amenity of manners."

June 24, 1824, he married Caroline, daughter of William Cross, of Newburyport, Massachusetts. She was a descendant in the fourth generation from Ralph Cross, of that town. In the old church there, where lie the bones of Rev. George Whitefield, may still be seen in the pulpit a Bible bearing an inscription which declares it to be "the greeting of Mr. Ralph Cross, August 4, 1746." Ralph had a son who bore the same name. He, with his brother Stephen, were large shipbuilders before the Revolution, and when that crisis came both were unswerving in their support of the patriotic cause. Both went to the front. Ralph was commissioned Lieutenant of the Essex Regiment, and with his command took part in the memorable battle which occasioned the surrender of Burgoyne. His son William, for many years in business and for a long time holding the office of Surveyor of the Port of Newbury, was the father of Caroline named above. She died June 22, 1852, leaving four children, Joseph, William Cross,* George Ralph, and Caroline Cross.

Joseph⁶ Williamson, Junior, was fitted for college at the public schools and at the Academy of his native town, and graduated from Bowdoin College in 1849. Upon leaving Brunswick, he became a student at law in the office of his father, was in due time admitted to the Bar, and began the practice of his profession in 1852. He was at first associated with, and finally succeeded, his father in business; thus in their joint lives they completed a continuous professional career in the same town, on the same spot, and under the same sign, of nearly ninety years. In 1853, Belfast became a city, and Mr. Williamson received from Governor Crosby the appointment of Judge of its Police Court, an office to which he was again chosen, the last time by the unanimous vote of his fellow-citizens. In this official capacity he administered the oath of office to Hon. Ralph Cross Johnson, its first Mayor, and to the members-elect of the first City Government, a duty which, by a sort of tacit custom, he continued to perform every successive year as long as he lived.

From the day when his professional life began, Mr. Williamson was a hard-working man, unsparing of pains and patience in behalf of a numerous clientage. The Maine Reports bear witness, from the beginning of his career to the end, to the able and conscientious labor which he brought to the preparation of his cases, as well as to the great variety of legal problems which came before him for consideration. The practice of law, during the greater part of his professional life, was not, as now, divided into specialties. The country lawyer was expected to be learned in every branch of his business, whether law, equity, or admiralty. Mr. Williamson's abilities brought remunerative employment, as well as friends who gave constant proofs of their never-failing confidence. For several years he was elected and served as City Solicitor. His opinions upon matters of highways, of taxes, and of the rights and obligations of towns and their officers, were greatly valued. Within the last decade, owing to the rapid rise in value of lands in Islesboro and adjacent seaside resorts, his services were in frequent demand in the examination of titles, especially such as involved obscure and difficult questions of fact and law. In this field his researches were complete and exhaustive, especially so because they were in line with those local historical inquiries which had been the delight of his life.

Such was his work. His recreation was found, from his earliest years, in the domain of history and biography. In boyhood he had prepared and written a history of Belfast, which formed the nucleus of his later work. His first venture in print was in 1852, when he completed and had published the "Maine Register and Reference Book," giving an account of the institutions, corporations, and business interests of the State. The enthusiasm which he brought to historical topics is amply displayed throughout the numerous articles which he contributed for publication to the Maine Historical Society, of which organization he was for many years Corresponding Secretary, and the meetings of which he rarely failed to attend from the time he was elected a member in 1850. Among these are the "Journal of Governor Thomas Pownall, with Notes"; "Castine and the old Coins found there"; "General Henry Knox"; "Capital Trials in Maine"; "Brigadier-General Waldo"; "The British Occupation of Penobscot"; "Traces of the Northmen"; "Sir John Moore at Castine"; "Martin Pring"; "Memorials of Father Rale"; "Where is Columbus buried"; "The Professional Tours of John Adams in Maine"; and the paper read before the society at the unveiling of the bust of Longfellow. They number about seventy formal contributions.

He also prepared articles, upon a great variety of subjects, for the "Bangor Historical Magazine," the "Maine Historical and Genealogical Register," and for the "Republican Journal" and other newspapers. In 1870, he gave an elaborate historical address at the centennial of the settlement of Belfast; and in 1894, he was the orator on the occasion of services held in commemoration of the installation of Rev. William Frothingham as Minister of the First Parish (Unitarian) Church of that town, at which he, as well as his father, had been lifelong attendants.

In 1877, Mr. Williamson published his "History of Belfast," a work which had been for twenty-five years in preparation, and which gives in great detail a complete story of the life of a New England town, from its settlement down to 1875. In the compiling of this volume, he followed the methods which were adopted by his uncle in gathering materials for his "History of Maine." He went to original records and documents for information. Every statement of fact was made upon the best evidence. Not the smallest event was left to conjecture. A second volume of this history, bringing the account down to the close of the century, was in preparation at the time of his death.

But the magnum opus of his later years was the Bibliography of Maine. This consists of two octavo volumes of 670 pages each, giving, with the exception of certain public, municipal, and legal reports, the full title of every book, pamphlet, and reputable magazine article which has been printed in, or which has reference to, Maine; and, also, all of which the authors were, at the time of writing or publishing, residents within the State. A glance at its eleven thousand titles is sufficient to disclose the labor required for searching after and collecting the mass of information stored away in this reservoir, no less the good judgment and care required in the classification of subjects. Some idea of its value may be obtained from the lists which it contains of writings devoted to the Cilley Duel, Charlevoix, the voluminous literary progeny of Jacob Abbott, and the countless titles relating to incidents in the history of Maine. It is both a digest and a dictionary. These volumes were printed in 1896, under the auspices of the Maine Historical Society, and met with a gratifying approval, especially from scholars, at home as well as abroad. In the year following their appearance, the author received from his Alma Mater the honorary degree of Litt.D., and in 1900, he was elected a member of the society of Phi Beta Kappa.

This work was, as the preface expresses it, a "labor of love." Neither for this nor for any other of the productions of his pen did the author receive any pecuniary reward. He might have said of himself, as did Agassiz, that he "had no time to give to the making of money"; but he seemed always to have time for works intended for posterity, "which delights in details." He was no recluse. He was generous of himself, of his time, and of his historical treasures. His correspondence was large, but he never neglected it. He was never too busy to enjoy the society of friends and the amenities of daily life. No one ever wrote to him concerning an historical question without receiving a prompt and courteous reply, sometimes involving much time and study. No brother attorney ever consulted him upon a vexed question without finding him ready and eager to devote his best knowledge to the matter at hand. Especially by his friends among the younger members of the Bar, he was beloved for his kindness and helpful, encouraging words. He was incapable of dissimulation. The same absolute truth which is manifest in his written work characterized his daily duties. He loved music. He delighted in the old melodies, in the time-honored hymns of the past. He took pleasure in his nightly play of whist; but did not, like "Mrs. Sarah Battles," insist upon the "rigor of the game."

In the memorial service held in the Supreme Judicial Court after his death, Chief Justice Wiswall said: —

He has argued many cases before the law court, and I know of my personal experience that it has always been a pleasure when a case was taken up for examination after argument to find a brief in the well-known handwriting, as clear and uniform as if engraved, of Brother Williamson. The members of the court always knew that his brief would be instructive and valuable and that every legitimate argument that could be made in support of his position would be made. But it always seemed to me that his most distinguishing and marked characteristic was his uniform courteousness and politeness. He was always a gentleman in the best sense of the word. While ever zealous in the protection of his clients' rights and in presenting his side of the case to court or jury, he never forgot his dignity or his position as an officer of the court to the extent of entering into unseemly wrangles with the opposing lawyer.

Mr. Williamson, at the time of his death, was the oldest living member of the Waldo Bar Association, and for many years had been its President. He was also President of its Library Association, to the establishment and support of which he had devoted his usual public spirit. He was elected a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1874, and for many years was its Vice-President for Maine; was Vice-President of the Maine Society of the Sons of the Revolution; a member of the American Antiquarian Society; the American Historical Association; honorary member of the Maine Genealogical Society; corresponding member of the Massachusetts, Vermont, Wisconsin, Bangor, and Buffalo Historical Societies, and of the Colonial Society of Massachusetts.

When the Belfast Free Library was established, in 1887, he was made President of the Board of Trustees. This office he filled with never-failing energy until his death, devoting himself with most assiduous attention to the interests of the Library, and visiting it every day.

He was a devoted lover of his native town and of all the country around it. He loved its beautiful bay across which lay the old town of Castine, rich in romantic history, and the far-away hills of Mount Desert beyond it, which are associated with the earliest civilization of the continent. His knowledge was unfailing upon all local matters. Like Sir Walter Scott, he had a story for every hill and hamlet, and like him, was never weary of recalling incidents and traditions concerning the early settlers. Facts which to others seemed dull and unimportant were to him full of suggestions. A train of events followed one after the other like fancies, in his mind, but were always based upon a substratum of truth. With all his fondness for plain unvarnished truths, he had a keen relish for fiction. For the poets, the classic English novelists and writers — especially Johnson, Goldsmith, and Thackeray — he had a lifelong affection. He never forgot anything which he had once read. Characters, conversations, incidents long past, never seemed to pass out of his grasp, but remained and lived with him as realities.

He was married, October 22, 1857, to Ada Hortense Peirce, daughter of Waldo T. Peirce, of Bangor. She died March 19, 1872, leaving a son, who inherits his father's name and profession, and two daughters, all of whom are living.

The last weeks of his life were saddened by the death of his youngest brother, George Ralph Williamson, who had but lately retired from business in New York and returned to live in his native town, where he died September 22, 1902. To a friend who came to condole with him and who asked him what he would do to bear up under this sorrow, Mr. Williamson replied, simply, "I still have my pen." And so for a little time he went manfully on.

On December 4, 1902, without premonition and without pain, in his own room, with his daughter and loving friends about him, he suddenly passed away.

"How happy is he born and taught
That serveth not another's will;
Whose armor is his honest thought,
And simple truth his utmost skill.

This man is free from servile bands
Of hope to rise or fear to fall;
Lord of himself though not of lands,
And, having nothing, yet hath all."

The old-fashioned, nearly square, white pews, with green doors fastened on the outside with a large wooden button, were removed in 1868, to increase the seating capacity. The number of pews thus added was twenty. The pulpit, originally level with the galleries, was cut down several times. It was semicircular in shape, with two doors; one opening into the communion closet, and the other into the pulpit, which was reached by a spiral stairway.

A study of this machine, which is still retained by the city, leads to some interesting reflections on the advance that has been made in fire apparatus during the past forty years. In Volume I, page 334, it was spoken of as a "powerful Button Machine," and at the time it was one of the best "fire fighters" of its kind. As stated in the text (page 247, Volume II), a still older engine, also called Hydrant No. 2, but of the "hand-tub" type, is likewise preserved by the city.

MAPS AND PLANS

MAP OF BELFAST IN 1855 178

The original map, from which the above was made, is 44 inches by 50 inches square, divided into two parts; the upper half showing the entire five wards of the city, and the lower half, which is reproduced in part here, giving the streets in the city proper on a scale of about 12 rods to the inch. The old map contains along its right, left, and upper borders, twenty-four lithographs showing the public buildings, places of business, and principal residences of Belfast. Along its streets the names of the owners were printed with the buildings throughout the map. Owing to the smallness of the scale of our reproduction, it has been necessary to use numbers in place of the names and buildings which were on the original. The latter was inscribed in the lower left-hand corner as follows: Map | of the City of | Belfast | Waldo Co. | Maine | From actual survey by D. S. Osborne | published by | E. M. Woodford | Philadelphia | 1855. |

For key to reproduction see back of Map.

The plan was copied and revised to date in 1913, by Augustus Daniel Hayes, city engineer, from the map made for the Belfast Water Company, in 1890. Note Water Street built in 1912, and the extensions of Front, Court, and Charles streets made since 1890, the two former being mentioned in the text, chapter xxv, on Streets and Roads.

HISTORY OF BELFAST

CHAPTER I

PHYSICAL AND DESCRIPTIVE HISTORY

Latitude and Longitude — Maps — Engravings — Descriptive Poem by Mrs. Rebecca Palfrey Utter — Directories — Harbor Improvements — Monument — Miscellaneous.

LATITUDE AND LONGITUDE

IN 1882, a standard meridian line for Waldo County was established on the county land, in Belfast, in the rear of the jail. Mr. Hiram Pitcher Farrow, civil engineer, by an astronomical observation ascertained that the variation of the compass in the vicinity was 15 degrees and 58 minutes. The exact location of the jail lot is longitude $69^{\circ} 0' 40''$ west, and latitude $44^{\circ} 25' 18''$ north.

MAPS

The last separately printed map of Belfast is that by Sanford and Leggett, which appeared in 1874.

A chart of Belfast and Penobscot bays, the work of the United States Coast Survey, was published in 1881.

Colby's Atlas of Maine, printed in 1888, contains an inaccurate plan of the city within a circuit of one mile from the post-office, on a scale of one hundred feet to an inch.

ENGRAVINGS

Cuts of a section of Church Street, and the interior of the store of Hiram Chase & Son, are given in "The Keystone," a Philadelphia publication, for November, 1891.

Half-tone pictures, entitled "Belfast and its Harbor," "At the Corner of Church and High Streets," and "A Glimpse of the Residential Quarter" (junction of Church and High streets), are contained in the "New England Magazine" for July, 1896, as illustrative of an article upon Penobscot Bay, by Edwin A. Start.

DESCRIPTIVE

A poem entitled "Our Old Home," written by Mrs. Rebecca Palfrey Utter, and read before the Denver New England Society, December, 1896, contains the following allusion to Belfast, where the early days of the author were passed :—

A vision fair the words have brought to me;
 A "dear old town that's seated by the sea";
 A quiet, grassy-bordered village street
 O'er which the drooping elm trees bend and meet.
 I tread the narrow wooden walk once more;
 I enter at each once familiar door;
 I hear the words of welcome they would speak
 And press a kiss on many a well-known cheek;
 I see dear faces framed in locks of white
 I should not see if I were there to-night.
 An old brown house before me stands once more,
 With lilac bushes growing by the door;
 Along a narrow footpath as I pass,
 I brush against a bunch of striped grass.
 Four plum trees, under which I used to play,
 An old board fence, half fallen to decay,
 The Balm of Gilead, — fragrant now as then,
 I seem to smell its varnished buds again, —
 Tangled rosebushes in a ragged row,
 Cinnamon roses — out of fashion now;
 A narrow brooklet runs along beside,
 And paper boats adown its current glide.

The meeting-house, such as you all must know,
 Barn-like and bare, windows in double row;
 Save as we look at it through memory's haze
 Little it wears of comeliness or grace.
 Its steps the sexton mounted thrice each day,
 Punctual as the sun, old, bent, and gray,
 With both hands pulled the heavy bell-rope down,
 Rang out the hour to all the listening town.
 Each night at nine o'clock the warning sped,
 And then our day was done; we went to bed.

There is the shipyard that I loved so well,
 With each familiar sight, and sound, and smell.
 Fragrance of oak, and pine, and boiling tar,
 And wet brown seaweed; while from near and far Strokes of the adze and mallet mingle still
 With the loud purring of the busy mill,
 And liquid voices of the rising tide
 Singing in undertone on every side.

The weather-beaten schooners, old and gray,
 That took our chowder parties down the bay —

FOOT OF SQUARE AND WHITE HOMESTEAD

HIGH STREET AND NORTH CHURCH, FROM PRIMROSE HILL, ABOUT 1880

The Yankee Adams and the Morning Star,
These were their names — I wonder where they are?
Gone where the spirits of good schooners dwell.
Green be their memory! We loved them well.
One playmate I should find unchanged to-day,
The never-resting waters of the bay.
"Time writes no wrinkles on its azure brow,"
In the cold moonlight it is sparkling now.

Frank H. Colley, of Portland, read a poem before a meeting of the Maine Press Association, in 1899, entitled "The Messenger from Home." It contains pleasant reminiscences of his native city, Belfast.

DIRECTORIES

The Rockland, Belfast, and Camden Directory, with a business directory of Thomaston, was published by W. S. Adams & Co., Boston, in January, 1875. It contained two hundred and eight octavo pages, of which about one quarter were devoted to Belfast. The price of the work was two dollars.

Greenough's Directory of Rockland, Belfast, and Camden, for 1877-78, published in Boston, an octavo containing two hundred and seventy-two pages, and sold for two dollars, appeared in October, 1877. The number of Belfast names given was 1732. Of those there were thirty-eight Pattersons and nine Smiths.

Directory No. 3, Rockland, Belfast, and Camden for 1882-83, was issued by W. A. Greenough & Co., of Boston, in July, 1882. The Belfast names numbered 1841. The price was two dollars.

In 1890, the Belfast and Camden Directory, made by A. B. Sparrow, E. B. Butterfield, Ayer, Massachusetts, publisher, appeared. It was an octavo volume of two hundred and sixteen pages, exclusive of advertising pages.

Messrs. Pool & Yeaton published a business directory of Waldo County in 1891, which included Belfast names.

The Belfast City Directory for 1894-95, an octavo of one hundred and twenty pages, compiled and published by A. B. Sparrow, Shirley Village, Massachusetts, was printed in July, 1894.

Belfast Resident and Business Directory for 1899-1900, compiled by Henry O. Archibald, of Belfast, was given to the public in June, 1899. It was an octavo volume of one hundred pages, and sold at one dollar.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS

In September, 1877, an appropriation of $5000 having been made by Congress for improving Belfast Harbor, work was commenced on the ledge off Lane's Wharf, which divers reputed to be a conical-shaped rock, small at the apex, and about one hundred feet square at the base. The obstruction was blown up by dynamite, and the fragments hoisted out of the channel.

In 1878, the expenditure of $12,000 for improving the harbor was authorized. Lieutenant Both, a U.S. engineer, surveyed and made a plan of the harbor, preliminary to dredging it. Operations commenced in October, by the Atlantic Dredging Company, at thirty-eight cents per cubic yard of mud removed. The survey called for a channel ten feet deep at low water, and three hundred feet wide, and the sum appropriated contemplated such an excavation from Lewis's Wharf to near the steamboat wharf. Towing the dredging scows was done by the steamer May Queen. When one was filled, it was towed down the bay and dumped.

In 1878, a report of the Engineer Corps contained the following: "Under an act of Congress, approved March 3, 1875, a careful hydrographic survey of the whole harbor, from Steele's Ledge up to the bridge, covering an area of two square miles, was made under the direction of General Thom, who reported that the harbor itself is well protected from all winds except those from the southeast; that to render it safe from these requires two breakwaters; and he recommended the construction of one fifteen hundred feet long, from McGilvery's Wharf, running nearly northeast, and a second from Patterson's Point, on the easterly side of the harbor, nearly south-southwest, leaving an entrance eight hundred feet wide between the two; also the removal, to the depth of twelve feet at mean low water, of a shoal which extended from McGilvery's Wharf up to the ledge in front of Lane's Wharf, a distance of five-eighths of a mile, on the shoalest part of which there was but six feet of water at low tide; and the removal of a sunken ledge in front of Lane's Wharf which projected one hundred and sixty feet into the harbor and on which there was a depth of less than four feet at low water. The estimate cost of all these improvements was $347,000. The appropriations up to 1881 amount to $25,000, which was expended in the excavations described. The harbor has now a depth of twelve feet at low water and about twenty-one and a half feet at high water; but to make the new improvement permanent it may become necessary to construct a jetty on the north side of the harbor (as suggested by General Thom) at a cost of $18,000, so as to divert the direction and force of the ebb-tidal current upon the dredged area, and by its scouring efforts prevent a reformation of the shoal."

In 1882, Hiram Emery Peirce was licensed by the city to extend his wharf, at the mouth of Goose River, one hundred feet southwesterly into tide waters.

Renewed government operations in 1891 and 1893 were confined to the vicinity of the wharf last mentioned, extending towards the channel for five hundred feet, and thence eastward eighteen hundred feet, sufficient to give a mean depth of eight feet at low water. The contractors were Hamilton & Sawyer, of Portland, with the steam dredger Plymouth Rock.

In 1895, the same firm removed fifty thousand cubic yards from the bottom of the harbor. The space dredged was in two sections, one on the north side of the channel 1800 by 130 feet, to a depth of fifteen feet at mean low water, and on the southwest side 1800 by 280 feet to a depth of thirteen feet. These sections were on both sides of the channel dredged in 1893, making a channel seven hundred feet wide below the steamboat wharf and two hundred and fifty feet off the marine railway, and having a depth of from thirteen to fifteen feet at mean low water, which gave a good ship-channel from the deep water off Goose River to that in the upper harbor.

This is mentioned in the April issue of "Notices to Mariners," published by the Coast and Geodetic Survey Office, as follows:

"5. Belfast Harbor. — Dredging. — Improvements by the U.S. Engineers have resulted in a channel into the harbor, from deep water outside, fifteen feet deep and from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred and twenty-five feet wide. A large area, eight feet deep, has been dredged off Peirce's Wharf, and an area thirteen feet deep off the Boston Steamboat Wharf. These changes will be noted on the next edition of the charts." (Report of U.S. Engineers, 1895. — Charts affected: 319, 311, and 104.)

The last work was done in May and June, 1897, in dredging a large section to a depth of thirteen feet at mean low water, and in digging a channel north of the Boston and Bangor Steamship Company's Wharf, to accommodate small steamers.

MONUMENT

The granite monument, otherwise called a beacon, on Steele's Ledge, destroyed by ice during the winter of 1888, was rebuilt the following summer, the contract being awarded to Louis E. Lunt, of Portland, at $1660. It differs a little from the old one. The sides are more sloping, and the bracing irons are heavier.

MISCELLANEOUS

In 1884, when digging a well at Poor's Mills, Mr. Joseph Banks unearthed at twenty-five feet below the surface a large number of cobble-stones such as are found to-day on any sea-shore. The stones plainly show the wash and wear of the waves, which indicates that at one time the place was the sea bottom.

CHAPTER II

MUNICIPAL HISTORY

Officers in 1875 — Seizure of City Agency Liquors — Abolition of Liquor Agency — Damages recovered for Defective Road — Night Police — Ordinance concerning Gunpowder — Damages of $10,000 recovered against City by L. J. Hatch — City Debt refunded — Standard Time adopted — Limits for erecting Wooden Buildings — Taxpayers Controversy — New Code of Ordinances — Nine o'Clock Evening Bell discontinued — Licenses for Dogs required — Memorial Hall first occupied — City Ordinances revised — Railroad Debt refunded — Biographical Sketches of Mayors — Auditor established — Curfew Bell — Ex-Mayors: — James Patterson White, Sherburn Sleeper, William Pitcher, and Axel Hayford.

IN 1875, the Mayor of Belfast was Dr. John George Brooks, who, as the Republican candidate had 405 votes against 291 for Israel Cox, Democrat. (For a biographical sketch of Dr. Brooks, see chapter on Physicians.)

The other principal city officers this year were Isaac Miller Boardman, Clerk; Harrison Mahoney, William Pitcher, Marlboro Packard Woodcock, George Brooks Ferguson, and Benjamin Kelley, Aldermen; Horatio Palmer Thompson, John B. Wadlin, Thomas Whittier Pitcher, Joseph Curtis Townsend, George Edmund Wallace, Allen Drinkwater French, Edwin Brier, Wales Lewis Miller, William Davis, Timothy L. Mace, Councilmen; Daniel Haraden, Treasurer; Daniel Lewis Pitcher, Collector; John Murray Fletcher, City Physician; Joseph Williamson, City Solicitor; Cyrus Patterson, City Marshal; Charles Baker, Chief Engineer; George Tobin Osborne, Harbor Master; Oakes Angier, George Woods, Isaac Miller Boardman, Assessors.

The city rooms were in the third story of the store on Main Street adjoining the city building.

A night watch was established in this year.

In September, a large assortment of intoxicating liquors in the store of Andrew Derby Bean, liquor agent of the city, was seized, and such portions as had not been purchased of the state commissioner, or were not contained in vessels marked with the name of the city and its agent, were declared forfeited. Upon appeal, the Supreme Court ordered their destruction. In the stock was a quantity of pure brandy which did not escape the fate of its adulterated company. The case may be found in volume 68, of Maine Reports.

1876. Nathan Foster Houston, Republican, was chosen Mayor, by a majority of 8 over Israel Cox, Democrat, the whole number of votes being 1144.

Nathan Foster Houston, son of Joseph Houston, 2d, and his wife, Susan (Foster) Houston, was born in Belfast, 20 October, 1829, and has an interesting ancestry, being descended from the original settlers of the town. He was educated in the common schools; in early life engaged in the wool business, and has held the following public offices: Vice-president of the Belfast Savings Bank at the time of its organization in 1868, and president of that institution from 1888 till 1903; Representative to the State Legislature, 1883-87; on the State Valuation Committee for 1880; treasurer of the Belfast Manufacturing Company from the date of its charter until its property was purchased by the Critchett Sibley Company; City Treasurer from 1883 to 1894; and Mayor of Belfast in 1876-77 and 1877-78.

The accounts of the liquor agency showed a balance against the city of $1283, and that department was abolished.

1877. Mr. Houston was again elected Mayor, by a vote of 609 to 515 cast for John B. Wadlin, the Democratic candidate.

The watchmen were paid $1.25 for each night.

1878. Isaac Miller Boardman, Republican, was chosen Mayor, having a majority of 181 over three other candidates.

Captain Isaac Miller Boardman was born in Islesboro, 24 May, 1821; a son of Captain Isaac C. and Esther (Farrar) Boardman. He followed the sea in early and middle life, and commanded many fine vessels, including the brig, Martha Rogers, and the ships, Ocean Traveler and Western Chief. He was Representative to the Legislature from Belfast in 1873-74 and State Senator in 1887. He served on the Board of Assessors, was City Treasurer in 1887, and Mayor in 1878. When the Masonic Temple was erected, he was elected treasurer, and served until February, 1900. He married Keziah Emery, by whom he had one son, Judge Emery Boardman. Captain Boardman died of apoplexy 4 July, 1900.

Mrs. Isa M. Patterson recovered $6473 against the city for damages sustained the previous September by a defective road near Poor's Mills. This sum was reduced by the law court to $3500.

A night police station was established at No. 10, Phoenix Row.

By an ordinance, the quantity of gunpowder which could be kept for sale in any place outside of the powder-house was restricted to twenty-five pounds.

1879. William Bachelder Swan, Republican, received 616 votes for Mayor, and William Maxfield Rust, National Greenback, received 524.

Mr. Swan, a son of the late Captain Nathan Swan, was born in Belfast in 1825. In 1843, he entered the store of Paul Richard Hazeltine, and afterwards was a partner with Colonel Thomas Henry Marshall. Subsequently, he became associated with Edward and Ami Cutter Sibley, and since 1891 has conducted business with the former, under the name of the Swan and Sibley Company. He was president of the Belfast Gas Company for over twenty years, and since 1882 has been a director in the Belfast National Bank.

The city government rooms were removed to those in the Johnson Block, High Street, recently occupied by the Belfast National Bank.

This year, for the first time, no appropriation for ringing one of the church bells thrice daily was made. The Methodist bell was rung by private subscription.

Leander J. Hatch recovered $10,000 damages sustained by a defect in a road near Poor's Mills.

1880. Mayor William Bachelder Swan was reelected by a majority of 158 over Henry Leonard Kilgore, the Fusion candidate.

1881. Marlboro Packard Woodcock, Republican, was chosen Mayor, without opposition.

Marlboro Packard Woodcock, one of the nine children of Theodore and Rebecca (Packard) Woodcock, was born in Searsmont, Maine, 11 September, 1823. He was educated in the public schools and completed his studies at Kent's Hill Seminary. After leaving school, he taught for a time, and then learned the trade of ship-carpenter with his brother. He built vessels at Covington, Kentucky, and at Thomaston, Waldoboro, and Brewer, Maine. In 1851, he married Lucy Anna Howard, of Searsmont, Maine, and came to Belfast, where he engaged in ship-building.

He was a skillful workman, and good draughtsman; and designed and made the moulds for the greater part of the vessels he built. Some of these were noted as fast sailers. He was alderman for three years, and was elected mayor in 1881. He served the city as school agent and overseer of the poor, and was deputy collector of customs for this port from 1867 to 1871. He later bought the bookstore, stationery, newspaper and wall paper business of H. G. O. Washburn at 29 Main Street. This business, comprising the second bookstore to be established in Belfast, was founded by John Dorr, in 1833. Mr. Woodcock carried it on until his death in 1911, under the firm name of M. P. Woodcock & Son, and is succeeded by his son, Frank Ross Woodcock, who, with another son, Hartwell Leon Woodcock, the artist, survives him.

For the first time in 1881 printed reports of the condition of the municipal affairs, as supplemental to the local papers, were distributed. Legally the city was at peace with the world, all the outstanding suits in which it had been involved being settled.

1882. At the spring municipal election the so-called Tax-Payers chose George Edwin Johnson Mayor, by a vote of 697 to 325. (For a biographical sketch of Judge Johnson, see chapter on Lawyers.)

The issues were a readjustment of the railroad dividends, and refunding the public debt at a lower rate of interest by mortgaging the railroad stock. The refunding plan was carried out in accordance with the following order passed by the city: —

“That the Mayor and City Treasurer be and are hereby authorized and empowered to make a loan for and in behalf of said city for an amount equal to the amount of the present bonded indebtedness of said city for the purpose of retiring the bonds of said city now outstanding, and for the payment of this loan they shall issue the bonds of the city in such denominations as they may deem advisable, payable at any time after ten years from their date, and within forty years thereof at the option of said city, with semi-annual coupons attached, to pay the interest thereon at four per cent per annum. And said bonds and interest shall be made payable at some place in the city of Boston, or at the Treasurer’s office at said Belfast, and shall be registered by the City Clerk of said Belfast in a register of bonds issued, and shall be countersigned by said Clerk and signed by the Mayor and Treasurer in their official capacities, and sealed with the corporate seal of said Belfast upon the face of said bonds, but the coupons attached shall require only the signature of the Treasurer. And said Mayor and Treasurer are further authorized and empowered to convey by mortgage to Edward Johnson, of Belfast, Josiah H. Drummond, of Portland, and Frederick Robie, of Gorham, all in the State of Maine, all the stock, both preferred and non-preferred, in the Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad Company, now owned by said city of Belfast, in trust to secure the payment of said bonds and the interest thereon. Also to execute with said trustees the proper declaration of trust. And said Mayor and Treasurer are further authorized to sell said bonds at not less than their par value and with the proceeds arising from such sale, to purchase said outstanding bonds at their par value, or to exchange any of said bonds for an equal amount of said outstanding bonds. Said Mayor is also authorized to procure the necessary blanks for said bonds, also a register of bonds issued for the use of the City Clerk."

In 1883 and in 1884, Judge George Edwin Johnson was unanimously reelected Mayor. On November 18, 1883, the railroads adopted a system of standard time based in New England upon the meridian of Philadelphia, bringing any given hour in Belfast twenty-five minutes and twenty-six seconds later than the local time.

1885. Colonel William Henry Fogler, Republican, was chosen Mayor without opposition, having 499 votes. (See chapter on Lawyers for biographical sketch.)

An ordinance provided that no buildings, the walls of which shall be wholly or in part of wood, shall hereafter be erected within the territory bounded westerly by Church Street, southerly by Spring Street, easterly by Cross Street and Pleasant Street, and northerly by Market Street, nor upon the westerly side of Church Street from Market Street to Main Street.

It was also voted to adopt an act of the Legislature, giving the city the right to remove dangerous and dilapidated buildings.

1886. This year, unfortunate local difficulties having arisen concerning the railroad dividends, between two classes of citizens, styled Tax-Payers and Tax-Reducers, the municipal election was sharply contested and resulted in the choice of Charles Baker, Tax-Payer, as Mayor, by 2 majority, the whole vote being 1284. (For a biographical sketch of Captain Baker, see Necrology, p. 489.) Each party had two Aldermen. The seat of Charles Wesley Haney, Tax-Payer, as Alderman from Ward 2, was contested, and the Supreme Court decided that he had not been legally chosen. Thomas Whittier Pitcher, Tax-Reducer, was chosen to fill the vacancy.

The cost of maintaining street gas-lights this year was $432.

1887. The municipal election was again close, but resulted in the choice of Albert Cargill Burgess, Tax-Reducer, as Mayor, over Charles Baker, by a majority of 5, the whole number of votes being 1294; 10 more than in 1886.

Mr. Burgess was born in Belfast, in 1840; his father being the late Ezekiel Burgess. He received his education at Westbrook Seminary. From 1863 to 1870, he was of the firm of Barker & Burgess, hardware dealers, a business which he afterwards continued alone. He is one of the incorporators of the Savings Bank, was president of the Belfast Machine and Foundry Company, and has been Commander of Palestine Knights Templars.

An act of the Legislature having required all the business of cities to be transacted by standard time, on February 17, the town clock was turned backwards twenty-five minutes. The public bell was rung in the evening at half-past eight. The churches and schools adopted the new change, but local time was retained by the principal manufactories, whose whistles were blown at 6.30 and 11.30 A.M., and 12.30 and 5.30 P.M., standard time.

1888. Mayor Albert Cargill Burgess was chosen for a second term without a single opposing vote, the whole number being 280. This was in sharp contrast to previous spring elections. All city ordinances which had been adopted since February 17, 1876, were repeated this year. In March, it was voted that the city bell be rung at half-past eight o'clock, standard time, every evening except Sundays.

1889. No disturbing elements entered into the municipal election, Lucius Franklin McDonald being chosen for the position of Mayor without a dissenting vote.

Lucius Franklin McDonald, the son of the late George and Sarah McDonald, was born in Belfast, 14 September, 1837. After working at Ellsworth, Augusta, and Boston, for several years, and taking an educational course in a business college in Poughkeepsie, New York, he became established at Belfast as a harness-maker, which occupation he continues. Before being chosen Mayor, he was two years an Alderman.

A division about standard and local time in the city government prevented any appropriation for bells, and the nine o'clock evening summons, which had prevailed with occasional interruptions for seventy years, ceased, and had not been revived up to 1900. Steam whistles, sounding at 6.30, 11.30, and 5.30, standard time, were substituted, and are continued to the present time.

1890. Mayor Lucius Franklin McDónald was again unanimously chosen. The Legislature having created boards of election registration, the chairman to be appointed by the Governor, and one by each political party, Dr. John Murray Fletcher, Emery Boardman, and George Edmund Wallace were reëlected from Belfast. An ordinance requiring all dogs to be licensed and numbered was passed. In August, uniforms for the night policemen, the cost not to exceed $20 each, were authorized. The first meeting of the city government in Memorial Hall was held in September. Subsequently $22,000 from the Wilson Fund was ordered to be invested in notes or bonds of the Memorial Hall Building Association. A sale of 138 shares of the city's railroad stock was authorized this year.

1891. William Pitt Thompson, nominated at a caucus irrespective of party, was unanimously chosen Mayor, receiving 558 votes. (For a biographical sketch of Mr. Thompson, see chapter on Lawyers.) The Board of Registration to receive and correct the list of voters, a service which had been done before by the Aldermen, held its first session, and determined upon a mode of procedure. For the investment of $22,000 from the Wilson Fund it was voted that bonds of the Memorial Hall Association to run for twenty-five years, at four per cent interest, be received.

1892. Mr. William Pitt Thompson received a second term as Mayor, without opposition. In January, a lockup in the basement of Memorial Hall was established.

A new Board of Assessors, consisting of Simon Alphonzo

Payson, Daniel C. Toothaker, and Emery Boardman (Lucius Holcombe Murch, from July), was elected. Some radical changes took place, which increased the valuation by about $400,000, and reduced the rate of taxation from .019 to .016.

1894. A Citizens' ticket, headed by Mayor Dunton, was elected without opposition. The valuation varied but little from that of the previous year, but the tax rate increased nine mills. Against this, however, there was a rebate on account of the sale of school property to the city, which averaged six mills, the rate throughout the city being about nineteen mills.¹

Exclusive of four Chinamen, the number of male citizens of twenty-one years and over was 1504. Guide-boards were placed on all corners of roads not before supplied. The first street lunch-cart was licensed this year.

1895. Edgar Filmore Hanson was chosen Mayor, a Citizens' prevailing over a Republican ticket by a vote of 674 to 505.

Edgar Filmore Hanson was born in Lincoln, Maine, 11 March, 1853, and is the son of Clark and Nancy (Hatch) Hanson. He attended the public schools, and when a young man followed the sea for three years. Coming to Belfast, he engaged in the carriage business, and afterwards in company with Kilgore and Wilson, manufactured Dana's Sarsaparilla, being manager of the company. Later he organized the Cream Company for publishing the magazine "Cream," and the Nutriola Company, for the manufacture and sale of patent medicines. He was Mayor, 1895-96. He married (1) Flora E. Nickerson, who died in 1890; and in 1895, he married (2) Georgia Geraldine Lord, daughter of Henry Lunt Lord, of Belfast. Mr. Hanson left Belfast in 1903, returning in 1906, and has since been elected Mayor for seven consecutive terms.

¹ In 1894, in accordance with an act of the Legislature abolishing school districts, the school property previously owned by each district was taken over by the city by the following method: The property of each school district was appraised by the Assessors and an amount equal to the appraised value of all of the school property raised by taxation. The value of the property of each district was then remitted to the taxpayers of such district in proportion to the amount of their several taxes, thus equalizing the tax raised for purchase of the school property. This increased the rate of taxation six mills nominally, but in reality it all went back to the taxpayers. On account of this important change, our Central School District was, with the other districts, abolished, and the $30,000 bequest from Mrs. Dana Southworth, intended for our schools, was lost. (See chapter xv on Schools.) The large amount of work done on the sewers in 1894 was also a factor in the increased tax rate.

In September, all city ordinances passed from January 31, 1888, were repealed, and a new code adopted. The latter were published in a pamphlet of seventy-six pages, which contained also all legislative acts relating to the city, and the contract for water. During the year the city government refunded $113,000 of four per cent bonds, secured by a mortgage on the city's railroad stock by a ten-thirty four per cent city bond, releasing the stock from the mortgage.

1896. By a small vote, but with no opposition, Mayor Hanson was reelected.

1897. Dr. John Murray Fletcher, Republican, candidate for Mayor, received every vote but 4 out of 374 thrown. (For a biographical sketch of Dr. Fletcher, see chapter on Physicians.)

The city charter was amended by the Legislature, making the term of the Assessors three years, one to be elected each year. Under the change, three Assessors were chosen, for one, two, and three years, respectively. A police time-table, with a central dial at the police station, and nine boxes which the police were to visit at stated intervals during the night, was placed in operation. By request of thirty voters, the municipal officers called a public meeting on the 6th of September, to act upon the question of advising the city government about claims for unpaid taxes against the Belfast Hotel Company. Such a meeting was held, but with no well-defined result. An important action by the city this year was the refunding, at four per cent interest, of the $498,700 six per cent municipal railroad bonds which matured in 1898. The contract was closed, December 16, with Farson, Leach & Co., of New York, which firm bid in the new bonds, at $105.27.

1898. Mayor John Murray Fletcher and most of the members of the City Council for last year were reelected, the whole vote being 253.

1899. The administration of city affairs continued practically the same as in 1898, Clarence Osgood Poor succeeding Mayor John Murray Fletcher, by a vote of 331 to 61 for Captain Sewell B. Fletcher, Citizens' candidate.

Clarence Osgood Poor was born in Belfast, 28 April, 1844, and is the son of William Osgood and Lucretia (Hunter) Poor. Mr. Poor was educated at the Belfast public schools, and when a boy entered the pharmacy of his father, and later succeeded him in the business, which he still carries on. He was Alderman in 1897 and 1898, and Mayor in 1899 and 1900. He served two terms in the Legislature, of two years each, 1903-04 and 1905-06.

A new office, that of Auditor, was created, and Frank Ross Woodcock was elected. The tax rate was slightly reduced this year.

In December, 1900, an ordinance was passed prohibiting children under sixteen years of age from being in any street or public place, except under certain conditions, after eight o'clock in the evening from November to May, and after nine o'clock during other months.

FORMER MAYORS (OTHER THAN LAWYERS AND PHYSICIANS)
DECEASED BETWEEN 1875-1900

EX-MAYOR JAMES PATTERSON WHITE, born in Belfast, 2 September, 1800, was the son of Robert and Susanna (Patterson) White. Robert White was one of the early settlers who came to Belfast in 1797, from Londonderry, New Hampshire, having been born in Chester, then part of Londonderry, in 1770. He was the son of Colonel William and Mary (Mills) White. Upon coming to Belfast, he purchased Lot No. 41, consisting of one hundred acres running from the shore of the harbor, in a westerly direction, for upwards of a mile. The tract then comprised farm land, pasturage, and uncleared virgin forest. Upon this "lot" he built a large house in 1801, in which he resided until his death. Subsequently this house was removed and another house built on the site by his son, William Bloomfield White. The original homestead looked across the Passagassawakeag River to that of James Patterson, whose daughter, Susanna, Robert married. Robert White died in Belfast 30 July, 1840, at the age of seventy years, leaving seven children.

His son, HON. JAMES PATTERSON WHITE, the subject of this sketch, was educated at the Belfast common schools, and at an early age entered upon what proved to be a long and successful business career. He was associated in mercantile business at different times with William Avery, Daniel Lane, and Daniel Faunce. He was one of the organizers of the Belfast Foundry Company, the Marine Railway Company, the Belfast Machine Shop Company, and the Waldo Insurance Company, and with his brothers Warren and George White, established a paper mill on Goose River. This mill turned out white paper for books and newspapers, furnishing the paper for "Littell's Living Age," the "Boston Post," etc., and subsequently was devoted to the manufacture of brown wrapping paper. With his brother Warren, and William Harrison Conner he was for many years extensively engaged in ship-building in their ship-yard at the foot of Allyn Street, and in trade in all parts of the world. He built and occupied the house at the corner of Church and Pearl streets, and in 1840 the house at the junction of Church and High streets, known as the James Patterson White Homestead. He was one of the original board of directors of the Belfast Bank, incorporated in 1836, which adopted the National system in 1864, and was its president from 1867 until his death. He was mayor from 1861 to 1863, and State Senator in 1862 and 1863. This was in the exciting time of the Rebellion, when it was felt that men of the highest character and soundest standing must be sent to Augusta to represent our interests. But Mr. White never aspired to any public position, and it was only by great exertion on the part of those who needed his public services that he could be made to accept office. In trade, shipping enterprises, manufacturing, and banking, Mr. White accumulated a large estate. All his business methods were most honorable. He was the impersonation of that upright, conscientious integrity which distinguishes the old-time merchant, — one who interwove his faith and accountability with his daily life and business. He was an excellent judge of men, measuring with quickness and accuracy the capacity of those with whom he was brought in contact. Mr. White survived his wife, Mary Ann, daughter of Captain George Clarke, of Waterville. He left seven children: Frances Eleanor; Julia Elizabeth (married Walter B. Alden); Mary Ann; Susan Jane (married Hon. Samuel D. Bailey, of Bath, Maine); James Clarke, M.D., of Boston (see chapter on Physicians); Charles Tallman; Albert Starrett.

JAMES PATTERSON WHITE

On the 25th of March, 1879, Mr. White passed away, aged seventy-eight years. As a mark of respect, the places of business in Belfast were closed at the time of his funeral, and the bell of the Unitarian Church, which he had attended during his whole life, was tolled. Mr. White is still well remembered by the older citizens of the town, which his energy, incessant industry, and unusual capacity for organizing and carrying on business enterprises, were instrumental in building up. A spare figure, quiet and dignified in manner, he was a splendid example of one of the best types of American citizen of the middle of the last century: the eminently successful man of affairs, capable of grasping the details of a much greater variety of enterprises than is usually attempted by any one man in these days of specialization. The Hon. William Bachelder Swan has recently written of him as follows: "The influence of a man like James Patterson White, in the midst of a community like ours, was incalculable. His habits, above reproach, always ready to aid by advice or with money any movement that promised to be a benefit to the city, he went about quietly and unostentatiously helping all with whom he was associated. The writer recalls one instance, among many, where his kind words to a young man have not been forgotten after a lapse of many years."

HON. SHERBURN SLEEPER, son of Manasseh Sleeper, was born in Belmont, 4 July, 1811. In 1814, his father came to Belfast, becoming landlord, successively, of the Whittier and Huse Taverns. In early life a printer, Mr. Sleeper became a prosperous merchant; our second Mayor of Belfast, 1854-57, succeeding the Hon. Ralph Cross Johnson; he died, 29 August, 1888.

HON. WILLIAM PITCHER, son of William, was born in Belfast, 1807. He acquired an excellent education, and was early successful both as teacher and farmer. In 1845, he entered the hay and produce business, having correspondents at all Atlantic and Gulf ports. An alert, keen business man, a wise counselor, and an esteemed and skillful teacher, he was the third Mayor, 1857-59; Representative to the Legislature, in 1861, and was chosen for 1876. He died 6 November, 1875.

HON. AXEL HAYFORD, born in Windsor, 20 April, 1814, son of Gad and Sally Hayford, resided in Belfast from 1840 to 1883. He was a very active man, closely identified with business and politics. He had had charge of the poor, been Deputy Sheriff, and Collector of Taxes, and built the batteries and barracks in Belfast and in Castine, and Hayford Block, and was interested in mills and shipping. He was Mayor, 1868-71, being then President of the B. & M. L. R. R., whose policy he helped shape. Of a social and generous disposition, he was public-spirited, energetic, and charitable. He died 25 Oct., 1900.

MUNICIPAL HISTORY (Continued)

WATERWORKS

THE necessity of a water supply for Belfast was agitated in 1875, and resulted in purchasing the Muck Pond, or Kirby Lake, between Lincolnville Avenue and the Stanley Road,¹ advocates of the project claiming that it afforded a sufficient quantity of water for fire purposes. Two years later, a committee of the city government, assisted by a competent engineer, reported its capacity as too limited, but that the pond might be utilized as a distributing reservoir for water from the Shaw Springs, on the Augusta Road, at an expense of $15,000. This plan did not meet with public approval, and was abandoned. In 1885 and 1886, the matter was again discussed. Insurance rates had increased, and some companies declined Belfast risks. A system of waterworks was urged, and surveys of several neighboring ponds and streams were made. After constant discussion by the municipal boards and in public, the question was submitted to the people, on October 26, 1886, with the result of 456 votes for water, and 133 against it. A committee appointed to receive tenders unanimously recommended that of Parks & Wheeler, of Massachusetts, civil engineers, as the most favorable of four propositions received, and a contract with them was at once closed. It provided for an adequate supply of pure water for the extinguishment of fires, and for domestic, manufacturing, and other purposes, of a sufficient head to throw streams to a height of about forty feet on Congress Street; the city to pay $1800 per annum for not over fifty hydrants, during a term of twenty years, the rent then to cease, and water to be furnished free. Water for municipal and school purposes, for the library, for six fountains, and for sprinkling streets was to be compensated for by the taxes assessed upon the plant; the agreements and stipulations to be confirmed by a legislative charter. Such a charter was granted in 1887 to the contractors and their associates under the name of the Belfast Water Company, with a capital of $150,000, and with authority to issue bonds secured by a mortgage of the franchise and other property.

Little River, about two miles from the city, having been selected as the most advantageous source, work commenced upon the project the following summer. The construction of a dam 175 feet long, near the river's mouth, secured a reservoir covering fifty acres, with an average depth of twenty feet. The contract for laying the pipes through the streets was made with Ferrin & Halliday, of New Jersey, who employed one hundred Italian laborers. These were encamped during the summer months in the old barracks at the Battery.

Excavating was first begun at the corner of Main and High streets in the spring of 1887, and continued during the summer. On the 1st day of December of that year, the works, so far as related to the fire service, were completed, and proved satisfactory, upon being tested by the fire department the following afternoon. Large crowds witnessed this exhibition, which took place from over forty hydrants located in the principal streets. Houses were not piped until the next season.

The power house, a brick building of handsome design, is located at the dam on the Belfast side of the river. It contains two pumps, with a daily capacity of 1,750,000 gallons. A steam engine furnishes extra power when the reservoir is low, but for nine months in the year the pumping is done by water power. The water is forced to a standpipe, situated on Wilson's Hill, 260 feet above the pumping station. The standpipe is 45 feet high, and holds 263,000 gallons. From it the hydrants and other service are supplied. None of the stock of the corporation is owned here. In November, 1887, a loan of $75,000 in five per cent bonds due after a term of twenty years, secured by mortgage, was taken by the American Loan and Trust Company of Boston.

In the summer of 1888, four public drinking fountains for man and beast were erected; one at the corner of Church and Main streets, and the others, respectively, at the junction of Church and High streets; and Cross and Main streets, and on High Street, opposite the Phoenix House. The two ornamental fountains, which are also entitled to free water, have never been placed, because of an overlooked clause in the contract.

In 1891, an amendment of the charter permitted the company to lay pipes in Northport. Two additional hydrants were added this year, making the whole number fifty-five. Three hydrants on North High Street and two on Waldo Avenue were placed in 1893.

SEWERS

Before the adoption of the present system, public sewers existed in several of the business streets, and in other localities, being principally used for conducting surface water. One of brick, on Spring Street, from High to Cross Street, a distance of twenty-eight rods, was constructed in 1887 at a cost of $12.50 per rod. This was the last one of that nature built.

In 1888, completion of the waterworks rendered a regular plan necessary, and the city government authorized a survey for the purpose, which resulted in adopting an elaborate system submitted by Parks & Wheeler, civil engineers. This system is for sanitary purposes only, old drains and culverts being retained for carrying away storm waters.

An act of the Legislature, passed in 1889, having authorized the assessment of one half the cost of any sewer upon the owners of premises benefited by it, work was begun the following year, and a section from Congress Street down Franklin and Main streets was constructed. The plan contemplated an outlay of about $4000 each year until the whole system should be perfected. The work has progressed annually, with a few exceptions, and the compact part of the city is now supplied with pipe sewers, all having a discharge into the deep waters of the harbor, where the tidal currents are sufficiently strong for harmless distribution. A plan of the system accompanied the report of Parks & Wheeler, and plans of each year's work on a larger scale have been prepared by Hiram Pitcher Farrow, the engineer in charge.

The regulation of sewers is provided for in chapter 17 of the City Ordinances as revised and adopted in 1895.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS

Their introduction was first presented in April, 1887, by H. A. Foster, but nothing resulted until the following year, when the organization of the Belfast Electric Company took place. Its charter authorized a general electric light, heat, and power plant in Belfast, Searsport, and Northport, and the operation of a grist mill in Belfast. The capital stock was $30,000, divided into 300 shares of par value of $100 each. The stockholders and directors were Robert Franklin Peirce, Hiram Emery Peirce, and Percival Cutter Peirce, of Belfast; Thomas T. Robinson and Robert P. Clapp, of Boston. Hiram Emery Peirce was president; Robert Franklin Peirce, treasurer; Percival Cutter Peirce, secretary.

Works were at once established at the mouth of Goose River. The plant started with a wheel which furnished 150 horse power. A steam engine was afterwards added, the water at times not affording sufficient power. In October, poles were erected from the dam to the lower bridge, and afterwards along the principal streets, requiring in all twenty miles of wire. The switch station was located in Peirce's Block, at the corner of Church and Franklin streets.

On Monday, December 31, 1888, the city was first lighted by electricity. Five arc lights were displayed, three at the Opera House and one each at the Court House and the pharmacy of Kilgore & Wilson, in Hayford Block. Incandescent lights also illuminated several stores. On Thursday evening, January 3, 1889, three street arc lights were turned on in Main Street.

In the summer of 1889, the Easton Electric Company, of New York, obtained permission from the city to erect poles for a new plant, upon condition that work should begin by August. It contemplated purchasing the property of the gas company. To save the franchise, a few poles were placed on Church Street.

In October, 1889, municipal authority for works was granted to the Westinghouse Electric Company, of Pittsburg, which proposed to utilize the privilege at Mason's Mills. The project was never carried into effect.

A corporation entitled the Belfast Gas-Light Company was organized in 1889. It was substantially the same as the old corporation by the same name, with the additional purpose of furnishing light, heat, and power by gas and electricity.

Anticipated competition from a second plant delayed measures for public street lights until the summer of 1890, when a contract was made by the city with the Belfast Electric Light Company, for twenty arc lights of 1200 candle power, from sunset to midnight, standard time, during not less than 300 nights in each year for twenty years at a cost of seventeen cents per night for each light, or $1020 per year. The annual expense of gas-lights was then about $525. Locations for the new lights were selected as follows: At the draw on the lower bridge; on the corner of Washington and Bridge streets; corner of Church and Bridge; corner of Church and Peirce; corner of Front and Main; corner of Main and High; corner of Main and Congress; corner of Cross and Spring; corner of Church and Spring; corner of Miller and Cedar; corner of Miller and High; corner of Grove and Cedar; corner of Elm and Church; corner of Allyn and High (foot of the Square); corner of Commercial and High; corner of Commercial and Bay View; on Union Street near Robert Burgess's house; corner of Park and Church; corner of Pearl and Court; and corner of Pearl and Congress. The streets were thus lighted for the first time, September 13, 1890. The use of electricity for light and power steadily increased, and nearly all the smaller manufactories were soon equipped with meters.

By a legislative charter, granted in 1891, the Belfast Illuminating Company was formed, with power to purchase the rights and property of any gas-light or electric-light company established here, and to issue mortgage bonds under this authority. It was reorganized in 1895, under the name of the Belfast Light and Power Company.

The electric company and the old Belfast Gas-Light Company were consolidated. By the failure of Boston parties to furnish promised means, the new institution went into the hands of a receiver, and in 1895, its property was acquired by the Belfast Light and Power Company, which now manages both electric and gas works. Since October of that year, Charles H. Maxfield, formerly of Fairfield, has been superintendent. The office and switching plant of the electric portion was then removed to the Gas Company Building on Washington Street.

CHAPTER IV

BUILDINGS AND REAL ESTATE CHANGES

Buildings erected in 1875-1900 — Foundry — Masonic Temple — National Bank — Hayford Block sold — Skating Rink — Coliseum — Howes Block — Lancaster Stable — Phoenix Row partially rebuilt — Free Library — Odd Fellows' Block — Crosby Inn — Sale of Allyn Field — Catholic Church — Belfast National Bank Extension — Phoenix House Stable — Belfast Foundry — Railroad Freight House — West Meeting-House demolished — Court-House extension.

IT is recorded in the Belfast "Republican Journal" that, at the commencement of 1875, not a single building was unoccupied, and that on Bay View Street, since its location, twenty-four houses had been erected. The following is a list of buildings added during the year throughout the city:¹ —

Dwelling Houses

Ames, Captain George P., corner of Peirce and High streets.
Brown, Charles A., Belmont Avenue.
Carter, Horatio Herbert, Park Street.
Carter, Captain George R., corner of Commercial and Union streets.
Cottrell, Christopher Y., Searsport Road.
Crosby, James T., Bay View Street.
Cullnan, John, Bay View Street.
Ellis, Samuel G., double tenement, High Street.
Farrow, Milton F., Alto Street.
Fernald, James Frank, corner of Cedar and Bradbury streets.
Frost, Moses Warren, Bridge Street.
Goodenough, Rev. Simon, Congress Street.
Greer, James, Belmont Avenue.
Harmon, B. F., Miller Street.
Hill, James, Waldo Avenue.
Hayford, Axel, double tenement, Cross Street.
Howard, Sanford, Bay View Street.
Hamilton, Ezra, Lincolnville Avenue.
Hopkins, Thomas J., Bay View Street.
Jewett, Jeremiah, Bay View Street.
Knight, George L., Cedar Street.
Lochrane, Peter, Lincolnville Avenue.
Mathews, Sanford Hills, High Street.
Nash, John W., Waldo Avenue.
Oakes, Isaac, Bridge Street.

Paul, Edgar, Lincolnville Avenue.
Pilsbury, Charles Albert, Northport Avenue.
Pendleton, William, Federal Street.
Pote, George P.,¹ Church Street.
Speed, William E., Congress Street.
Shaw, Mrs. Kate, Bay View Street.
Sherman, Josephus, Bay View Street.
Swan, William Bachelder, Church Street.
Stearns, John Y., Union Street.
Strout, Frank, Searsport Road, East Side of the river.
Shuman, Elijah, Waldo Avenue.
Stevenson, William, Searsport Road, East Side of the river.
Warren, Napoleon Bonaparte, Northport Avenue.

Business Places

Cooper, Marcellus R. & Co., office, Front Street.
Carter, Milton F., brick store (building), Main Street.
Gas Company Building, Washington Street.
Hayford, Axel, brick carriage manufactory, Beaver Street.
Hazeltime & Bickford, ice house, East Side of the river.
Lewis, Stephen S., heirs, storehouse on the wharf.
Mathews Bros., storehouse on Front Street.
Palmer, Lemuel Rich, stave-jointer workshop on Spring Street.
Pitcher & Son, storehouse on the wharf.

1876. Among the dwelling houses built this year were those of William G. Cox, on Congress Street; of John H. Poor, South Cedar; of Horace Dean, on the East Side, and of Frank A. Cottrell, Northport Avenue.

A new foundry, 180 feet long, was commenced by William Williams Castle, on Front Street. The William Harrison Conner house, on High Street, now the residence of Dr. Gustavus Clark Kilgore, was moved back ten feet. The house of John Warren White, at the corner of Church and Grove streets, was purchased by Captain Joseph S. Thombs. The lot now covered by the Masonic Temple, 82 by 46 feet, was sold for $7500.

1877. The following dwelling houses were built: Mrs. James Enright Burgess, East Side; Augustus Richmond Carter, Park Street; Milton F. Carter, Pearl Street; Sylvanus G. Cottrell, Cedar Street; Oscar W. French, Upper High Street; Henry C. Gray, Condon Street; Timothy Dexter Guptill, Durham Street;

¹ The George P. Pote house. It was sold in 1878 to Captain J. Barnet Durham, for $6000. Asa Abbott Howes is now the owner and occupant.

George Edwin Johnson, Cedar Street; Nathaniel Emery Keen, Northport Avenue; James C. Mayo, off Northport Avenue; Charles Henry Mitchell, Cedar Street; Samuel Stimpson, Bridge Street; Benjamin F. Wells, Bridge Street. Other buildings erected were the store of David Lancaster, Main Street, storehouse of Mathews Bros., at the corner of Cross and Pearl streets, and the large buildings on the Stock farm, East Side.

1878. Dwelling houses erected: John A. Briggs, Cedar Street; Ibrook E. Collins, Grove Street; Alpheus M. Dyer, off Northport Avenue; Mary Fahy, Waldo Avenue; Humphrey Nicholas Lancaster (tenement), Cross Street; Albert J. Meader, near Condon Street; Thomas Merrithew, Belmont Avenue; Albion King Paris Moore, Bridge Street; James Thomas Pottle, Congress Street; Horatio Spicer, North High Street; George Edmund Wallace, North High Street. Other erections were the Masonic Temple (see chapter xxxiv); the National Bank Building (see chapter xxxii). The William Quimby house, on the corner of Church and Spring Streets, was largely rebuilt by Dr. John George Brooks, being turned one quarter round, raised, and an additional story put under it, and new ell added. For widening High Street, a portion of the old Telegraph Building and of the Belfast Livery Company stable were removed. The former was erected about 1865, the latter in 1825, being first called Mechanics' Row. (See plan, page 179).

1879. Dwelling houses erected: Edward Henry Colby, Upper High Street; Frank A. Gilkey, corner of Court and Miller streets; Charles Howard, Elm Street; Henry Lunt Lord, Park Street; James McKeen, Upper High Street; Samuel Moore and Charles W. Rogers, East Side, and George Stover, on Bell Street.

1880. Roscoe G. Lewis built a storehouse, 90 by 60 feet on Lewis's Wharf. The house on High Street, built by Charles H. Wording, was sold to Captain Henry Atherton Starrett, for $3000.

1883. Dwelling houses were built by James Clark, at the corner of High and Peirce streets; by Marcellus R. Cooper, on Spring Street; by Sylvanus G. Cottrell, on Cedar Street; by William Orrin Cunningham, on Waldo Avenue; by Isaac Dunbar, on Vine Street, and by Augustus Kimball Wood, on Congress Street. The Hayford Block was sold to David Peirce, for $25,000; the George L. Knight house, on Cedar Street, to Albert G. Hunt, for $2700; the Leach house, on the corner of Church and Bridge streets, to Asa Abbott Howes, for $1530; and the Angier house and buildings on High Street to George O. Bailey, for $2050. A house on Bay View Street, commenced in 1875, by Jeremiah Jewett, was taken down. Below High Street, next to the Frothingham lot, Captain Robert Hudson Coombs erected a skating-rink, 100 by 40 feet.

1884. Horatio Spicer built a house on Belmont Avenue, and Alfred S. Jackson one on the Poor's Mills Road. Asa Abbott Howes and Calvin Hervey purchased two small houses on the Morison lot, Main Street, and removed them to the Leach lot, on Bridge Street.

The Coliseum, 64 feet on Main Street by 150 deep, three stories high, was built by the Belfast Coliseum Company on the Morison lot, made vacant by the great fire of 1865. The front is of brick and the sides are covered with iron. The upper store was first occupied by William K. Morison, and the lower one by Conant & Co. On the second story was a skating rink, with a floor 135 by 60 feet, and various ante-rooms.

1885. Houses were built by Captain Christopher Y. Cottrell, at East Belfast, by Frank S. Coombs, Mayo Street, and by Horatio B. Spicer, on Belmont Avenue.

On the district burned July 12, Asa Abbott Howes and Mrs. Samuel A. Howes erected, at the corner of Main and High streets, the Howes block, of brick, 42 feet square, four stories on High Street, and containing four stores. Franklin Houston Durham was the builder. The first occupants were Rila Kirtledge and Fred H. Frances, on Main Street, and M. F. Carter & Son and Field & West, in the High Street basement.

On the corner of High and Beaver streets, Humphrey Nicholas Lancaster built a brick stable, 92 by 103 feet, two stories high. The Bean store, adjoining the southerly side of the American House lot, was rebuilt, in its former proportions.

The William Pitcher storehouses and wharf were sold to Ben Hazeltine; the Paul Richard Hazeltine house, at the corner of Franklin and Court streets, to Benjamin Prescott Hazeltine, for $3375; and the north half of the Johnson Block, on High Street, to Clarence Osgood Poor, for $5000.

Mrs. William M. Priest bought the Philo Hersey house, on Church Street, for $4000; Thomas B. Dinsmore, the Nathaniel

M. Lowney house, on the same street, for $3500; and Dr. Samuel Worth Johnson, the Stephen S. Lewis house, on the corner of Court and Pearl streets, for $2350, and the adjoining Sidney Kalish house, for $1300.

1886. Among the erections were a double tenement house on the corner of Church and Elm streets, by Frank Houston Durham and Cyrus Brainard Hall; houses on Union Street, by Alpheus N. Dyer; on lower Congress Street, by Bainbridge H. Knowlton; by Lyman C. Putnam, on the Searsport Road; and by Wallace Turner, on Waldo Avenue.

A brick extension was added to the Allyn Block; a storehouse was built by William Colburn Marshall, on the Haraden Wharf; and a carriage repository by Edgar Filmore Hanson, at the corner of Washington and Bridge streets.

Extensive improvements were made in the Puddle Dock vicinity by Nathan Foster Houston, Albion King Pierce, William Bachelder Swan, and the Sibley Brothers, composing the Real Estate Company, by renovating old buildings and removing others. The Robert Miller house, built in 1792, at the corner of High and Miller streets, was sold for $70, to Asa Abbott Howes, and moved to Bridge Street.

1887. More building took place than for several years. The dwelling houses were those of Miss Emily H. Alden, on Court Street; of Captain Robert Hudson Coombs, on Northport Avenue; of Captain Robert T. Emery, on Court Street; of Captain John W. Jones on North High Street; of Dr. Gustavus Clark Kilgore, on Bridge Street; of Benjamin Libby on Bay View Street; of William H. McIntosh, on Bridge Street; the sheriff's house on Congress Street; the house of Wilson Staples, off Cross Street; of J. P. Tower, on Grove Street; and one of two tenements by Frances Whitmore at the corner of High and Spring streets; Herbert E. Bradman built a store on the East Side. The three southerly stores in Phoenix Row, partially destroyed by fire in June, were rebuilt, by David L. Peavey, Charles N. Black, and Mark Andrews. Other buildings were the free library, those of the waterworks, an addition to the post-office, an extension of the railroad station, a dry house by Mathews Brothers, an extension to the Masonic Temple, and one to Dodges' clothing factory on Common Street.

1888. The cost of buildings erected this year was estimated at over $100,000. The dwelling houses were those of Mrs. Belinda E. Allen, off Congress Street; of Fred V. Cottrell, High Street; of Sidney Kalish, High Street; of H. N. Lancaster, on Cross Street; of William A. Lear, Mayo Street; of George W. Lewis, Waldo Avenue; of Captain Fred C. Pendleton, Northport Avenue; and of Cornelius I. Whitcomb, at Poor's Mills. Humphrey Nicholas Lancaster built a store, adjoining the livery company's stable on High Street; Sherman & Co., a leather board mill on Goose River; the Boston and Bangor Steamboat Company, a new waiting-room and freight house, and enlarged wharf; Arnold Harris, a brick extension to his Main Street Block; the Real Estate Company, an egg cooler on Common Street. The Frye Block, at the corner of Court and Miller streets, received additions and improvements.

UPPER BRIDGE, PASSAGASSAWAKEAG RIVER

The most important buildings were the Odd Fellows' Block, on the site of the American House, on Main Street, and the Crosby Inn, which latter was not fully completed until 1889. Full descriptions of these buildings are given in other chapters. This year, Cyrus Brainard Hall, Franklin Houston Durham, and James Clinton Durham bought the Pound lot, in Allyn Field, on Northport Avenue, containing thirteen acres, for house lots.

1889. The new buildings this year were not so numerous as in 1888, but included several substantial and expensive ones. The most prominent structure was Memorial Hall, an account of which appears in the chapter on Municipal Affairs. The Lewis Wharf Company erected a grist mill on its wharf, and Cooper Brothers, a storehouse on Front Street; Baker & Shales also built a storehouse. The dwelling houses were those of Miss Elizabeth Ann Barns, on Court Street; of Francis O. Greer, Commercial Street; of Levi Foster Howard, Bay View Street; of John Kenney, Northport Avenue; of Clarence M. Knowlton, Miller Street; Mrs. John Loso, Main Street; of Charles T. Richards, Cedar Street; and of John B. Walton, Lincolnville Avenue. In July, the upper part of the cupola on the city building, at the corner of Main and High streets, was removed. It had become leaky. A plate glass front and various internal changes were added to the old wooden store opposite.

1890. Dr. Isaac Hills¹ erected the building on High Street which he now occupies. Dwelling houses were built by Charles

H. Brier, on Union Street; Albert Martin Carter, on Church Street; Horatio D. Mahoney, on Salmond Street; Augustine P. Mansfield, on Franklin Street; Albert Stevens, at East Belfast; and William Welch, on Union Street. A coal-shed was built for Fred George White, on Front Street, and a carriage house for the Belfast Livery Company, on Beaver Street.

1891. Of building operations were the Catholic Church and the Belfast National Bank extension, descriptions of which are elsewhere given; a freight house by the Maine Central Railroad Company; the stable of Leonard L. Gentner, 72 by 48 feet, in connection with the Phoenix House; the Belfast Foundry and Machine Works, on Front Street; the enlargement of the foundry building on Front Street by the addition of a third story and hip roof; of a power house by Critchett & Sibley; a store by Horatio Herbert Carter, Jr.; and the following dwelling houses: John Crosby, at East Belfast; Charles W. Cross, Northport Avenue; Lewis O. Fernald, Cedar Street; Captain Sewell B. Fletcher, Bay View Street; Byron B. Greenlaw, Northport Avenue; Albert Robbins, at East Belfast; Captain Fred A. White, at Upper Bridge; James W. Wood, near Pitcher School-House.

Among the new business buildings, were the Dana Sarsaparilla Company's storehouse and power house; Marcellus R. Cooper's lumber sheds; William Colburn Marshall's storehouse; the Journal Office extension; an addition to Charles N. Black's store, on Phoenix Row; an extension of the Swan & Sibley Company's coal-sheds; the Maine Central coal-sheds and track-scales. Hiram Chase rebuilt the old Hydrant engine-house, which now stands on Spring Street.

1893. The dwelling houses built this year were those of George William Burkett, upper Main Street; of William W. Cates, High Street; Sewell B. Fletcher, Bay View Street; Albert O. Hall, Bay View Street; William Lyman Hall, High Street;

Franklin Augustus Howard, Belmont Avenue; Sanford Howard, Union Street; Horatio H. McDonald, Northport Avenue; Frank Bowdoin Mathews, High Street. Other buildings were Carter & Company's blacksmith shop; Hutchings Bros.' stone-shed; Albert Cargill Burgess's storehouse; and the store of Herbert Jackson, at Poor's Mills.

1894. Dwellings were built by Wilder S. Grant, Perkins Road; James H. Dodge and Chester L. Pooler, John Street; John Leslie Colby, Cedar Street; Captain Sewell B. Fletcher, Bay View Street; Elijah Phillips, South Belfast; Calvin Hollis Monroe, Head of the Tide Road; Alfred Ellis, East Belfast; Charles H. Waterman, West Belfast; Dwight P. Palmer, Church Street; Dr. Gustavus Clark Kilgore, Bridge Street; and the St. Francis Rectory, Court Street.

Samuel M. R. Locke and Frank Rudolph Wiggin built a cottage between Patterson Point and Moose Point, and Phillips and Waterman, and Parish S. Strout, East Belfast, new sets of farm buildings. The stores of Mrs. Timothy Thorndike, Hiram Chase, and the Washburn estate, occupied by Mrs. John Carle, Hiram Chase & Son, and M. P. Woodcock & Son, were raised to three stories with ornamental fronts.

The Swan & Sibley Company built a storehouse on their wharf; Frank West Limeburner, a shop on Condon Street; and William Q. Spinney, one on Allyn Street; Lendal Tyler Shales built a storehouse, and Carle & Jones made a three-story enlargement to the rear of their store on Main Street. In June, the old West Meeting-House, built in 1792, but which had been occupied for other purposes since 1837, was demolished.

1896. The only large buildings erected were the Grange Hall on Field Street, and the double tenement of Dr. John Chellis Ham and Alvin T. Condon, on Northport Avenue. Other houses were built as follows: James Warren Wallace, Waldo Avenue; Eben McIntire Sanborn, Lincolnville Avenue; Charles F. Shaw, Congress Street; Amasa Stetson Heal, Cedar Street; Allen Weber and Fred Patterson, Union Street; Otis Alden's cottage, Bay View Street.

1897. Dwelling houses: Frank Whitcomb and John Gorham Aborn, Cedar Street; Henry Clay Marden, Elm Street; Alva S. Redman, Miller Street; and Fred A. Tibbetts, Waldo Avenue. Summer cottages were built by Coombs & Riggs and Elbridge Simmons Pitcher on the Battery lot south of the city on the Bay.

1898. The new houses this year include those of James Sumner Harriman, on Pearl Street; Harry Mellen Prentiss, Court Street; Charles Edward White, Congress Street; Mrs. Sarah E. Brown, Northport Avenue; Charles D. Harriman, Waldo Avenue; large boarding-house by Irving Lawrence Perry, East Belfast; George Washington Frisbee, Congress Street; Thomas G. Small, near Bay View Street.

1899. Eight dwellings were erected this year, viz., by William H. Arnold, Northport Avenue; Leslie F. Harmon, Peach Street; Albee E. Hutchings (two, rebuilt), Union Street; Hiram Michaels, Waldo Avenue; Martin Luther Mitchell, Franklin Street; Samuel Goodell Norton, South Belfast; Leforest L. Robbins, Miller Street; James Freeman Sheldon, at Poor's Mills.

1900. The Court-House extension, begun in 1899, was finished, but the rooms were not occupied. The dwelling on Waldo Avenue, begun in 1899, by Bert L. Davis, was finished. The Crosby Inn property was sold by the Belfast Hotel Company to Mrs. Anne Maria Chenery, a daughter of Governor Crosby, who had the ruins cleared away and the dwelling restored to its former position and condition as nearly as possible. Leonard L. Gentner bought the George G. Wells Building on Phoenix Row, moved it back and built on a new front. The Dinsmore Store at the corner of Main and High streets received a third story and a flat roof. The Thomas Whittier Pitcher store on Main Street was raised one story, the front modernized, and the interior thoroughly renovated. The Moses Warren Frost houses on Bridge Street were rebuilt.

Walter Aldus commenced a dwelling house in East Belfast, and Oliver Anderson one on the Searsport Shore Road.

FIRST PARISH, UNITARIAN CHURCH. INTERIOR IN 1912

CHAPTER V

FIRST PARISH — UNITARIAN

State Conference — Chancel — Resignation of Rev. James Thompson Bixby — Bequest of Paul Richard Hazeltine — Settlement of Rev. Edward Crowninshield — Church Parlor — Presentation of Parsonage — Birth of Channing commemorated — Death of Mr. Crowninshield — Rev. Lindley M. Burrington — Installation of Rev. John Arthur Savage — State Conference — Memorial Services on Death of Rev. Dr. Cazneau Palfrey — Bequest of William Henry Burrill — Resignation of Mr. Savage — Installation of Rev. James Monroe Leighton — Celebration of the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the Settlement of Rev. William Frothingham — Bequest of Mrs. Dana (Mary Emeline Simpson) Southworth — State Convention.

REV. JAMES THOMPSON BIXBY was pastor of the First Parish Church, Belfast, at the commencement of 1875. The following year he delivered a course of lectures before the Lowell Institute, Boston, upon "Physical Theories and Religious Faith," for which he received $1500.

In June, 1876, the annual conference of the Unitarian denomination was held in the church. Rev. Rush R. Shippen, of Boston, delivered a sermon, and Rev. Dr. Thomas Hill, and Rev. David N. Sheldon took part in other exercises.

In the spring of 1878, a chancel, lighted from above, and a new pulpit of black walnut, were added to the church. In December, Mr. Bixby resigned, having accepted a call to Meadville, Pennsylvania, where he became Professor of Religious Philosophy in the Unitarian Theological School. During his residence in Belfast he was much respected for his ability as a preacher, his conscientious pastoral labors, and his deportment as a citizen. He was a frequent contributor to periodical literature. A list of his publications will be found in the chapter on Bibliography. Mr. Bixby is now settled in Yonkers, New York. The degree of Ph.D. was conferred on him at Leipsic in 1885.

Under the will of Paul Richard Hazeltine, the parish received a legacy of the income of ten thousand dollars annually forever, to be permanently invested and held in trust, one half of said income to be paid for the support of Unitarian preaching in said society, and the other half to be paid to assist the deserving poor of the city during the winter and spring months of each year, to prevent their being forced on the city for support; the bequest to be forfeited if diverted from these objects.

The successor of Mr. Bixby was the Rev. Edward Crowninshield, of West Dedham, Massachusetts, who, in April, 1879, accepted a unanimous invitation to become pastor. This year, the room over the entrance hall was fitted and furnished by the ladies as a church parlor. The church bell, which has hung in the belfry now (1913) for nearly a century, was made by Paul Revere, and bears the makers' name, "Paul Revere & Son," cast into it; it weighs half a ton.¹ See Vol. I, p. 260.

In 1880, the parsonage on Church Street was purchased by the Young Ladies' Sewing Society, principally from money accrued from fairs, and presented to the parish upon the conditions set forth in the following correspondence: —

To the members of the First (Unitarian) Parish of Belfast.

With this you will find a deed of gift of the Unitarian Parsonage, which I am, as the secretary of the Young Ladies' Sewing Society, instructed to deliver, and in their behalf to present to you for the use of the Parish and Society, the property which this deed conveys, for your acceptance and care as Parish property.

This property was generously offered to us by the shareholders of the Parsonage, at a sum which placed it within our power to purchase, with the funds of our Sewing Society that had accumulated in years past; and at a meeting of the ladies it was decided to purchase the same, and give it to the Parish, on the conditions, that it should be forever maintained as a parsonage for the use of the minister of the Parish; that it should be kept insured in a reasonable sum; and if these conditions should not be complied with, the property should be forfeited, and revert to the donors.

In accordance with their wishes and instructions, this deed has been made with these conditions, and I take pleasure in placing the same in your hands, requesting that this letter, and the accompanying list of members donating the property, shall form a part of the transfer, and be recorded upon the records of the Parish.

Very respectfully,

For the Young Ladies' Sewing Society,

MRS. JAMES WOODBURY FREDERICK, Sec'y.

BELFAST, May 3d, 1880.

¹ Two hundred and twenty bells, cast by Paul Revere have up to the present time (1913), been authentically traced. On the old "stock-book" of Paul Revere & Son, the above bell is number 219, and its weight is given as twelve hundred and sixty pounds. The date of the entry is 17 February, 1820, and its location was to be Belfast, Maine. See Revere Bells, by Arthur Nichols, M.D., Boston, Mass., 1911.

BELFAST, May 7, 1880.

Mrs. James Woodbury Frederick,

MADAM: — At a meeting of the First Parish of Belfast (Unitarian), on the third inst., on which occasion the Young Ladies' Sewing Society of said Parish tendered to the Parish a deed of the Unitarian Parsonage, — a committee was designated to convey to the members of the Sewing Society their thanks for the generous and munificent gift. As constituting such committee, I take great pleasure in conveying to you, and through you to your associates, and to those who have aided the work, the heartfelt thanks of the Society. It is but one more of the many recorded instances in which the hand of woman has sustained and upheld those who labor for Christianity, and the realization of the hopes that the cross symbolizes. Yourself and associates have made practical the commendations of one of the wisest of men — "She considereth a field and buyeth it; with the fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard." The increase of that field and the fruit of that vineyard will keep green the memories of the donors through long years of coming time.

WILLIAM HENRY SIMPSON,
For the Parish.

The right of women to participate in parish affairs being uncertain, a vote at the annual meeting to ask legislative action upon the matter, resulted in the passage of a bill empowering, for the first time in Maine, persons of either sex, of lawful age, to become members of any religious society.

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of William Ellery Channing, which occurred April 7, 1880, was appropriately observed, the church being decorated. Above the chancel were,

"1780, Channing, 1880," and a quotation from his words, "Speak the Truth in Love."

After an illness of several weeks, the death of Mr. Crowninshield took place at the parsonage, 6 February, 1883, at the age of forty-two years. He was born in Marblehead, Massachusetts, and graduated at Harvard Divinity School, in 1870. His first charge was at Exeter, New Hampshire, where he remained a few years, when he became settled in West Dedham, Massachusetts. He was a man of fascinating manner, an eloquent preacher, and was much beloved by his society. The funeral took place from the church, which was draped with emblems of mourning. His remains were interred in Marblehead.

For several months in 1883 and 1884, Rev. Lindley M. Burington occupied the pulpit, but was not permanently engaged. His last settlement was in St. Paul, Minnesota.

On August 1, 1884, Rev. John Arthur Savage, a graduate at the Meadville Theological School, in the class of 1878, was installed as pastor. He was then about thirty-seven years old, and had been settled at Nantucket.

A catalogue of the Sunday School Library books was published in 1886.

The Maine Conference of Unitarian Churches met here on September 29, 1888, sermons being delivered by Rev. James Thompson Bixby, the former pastor, Rev. Grindall Reynolds, and Rev. Samuel C. Beane.

On Sunday, March 16, 1888, memorial services were held on the death of the Rev. Cazneau Palfrey, D.D., which took place at Cambridge, March 12, at the age of eighty-three years. An appropriate sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Savage, and at its close the following resolutions were read by Hon. William Colburn Marshall, and unanimously adopted: —

Resolved — That it is with feelings of sorrow and personal bereavement we have received the intelligence of the death a few days since at his home in Cambridge, Massachusetts, of Dr. Palfrey, our pastor for twenty-three years, and endeared to us all by his Christian ministrations and kindly offices through that long period of usefulness; but recognizing the fact that he had lived to a ripe old age and had finished his work, we are moved by feelings of thankfulness and gratitude that God had spared him to us so long.

Resolved — That we tender to Mrs. Palfrey and other members of his family our deepest sympathy, and assure them that we shall always cherish the memory of our former pastor and friend, and that the influence of his pure life, beneficent acts, and comforting counsels will ever abide in this parish where the greater portion of his mature years was spent.

Resolved — That these resolutions be entered upon the records of the parish and transmitted to Mrs. Palfrey.

In the summer of 1889, the interior of the church edifice was renovated, and the gallery pews removed.

Mr. Savage resigned in 1891, but by unanimous request continued his pastorate for another year, when he accepted a call to Medfield, Massachusetts, which is his present residence (1900). He died 18 May, 1913, at Plainfield, New Jersey.

Rev. James Monroe Leighton, the present pastor (1900), was settled in 1893, and came here to reside in May of that year. He is a native of Waterboro, Maine, and graduated at the Meadville Theological School in 1876. He was ordained over the Unitarian Church at Fairhaven, Massachusetts, in 1878, and remained there until October, 1881, when he accepted a call at Wolfeboro New Hampshire.

This year, the Unity Club, a social society, was organized. A new furnace was placed in the church.

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the installation of the Rev. William Frothingham as the first pastor of the parish was observed on Wednesday evening, July 18, 1894, by a reception in the church parlor, a supper in the galleries, and by services, according to the following programme, which included exercises of installing Mr. Leighton: —

REV. JOHN ALEXANDER ROSS, who was installed two years before, continued as pastor of the North Church, Belfast, in 1875. A church manual was published this year.

On April 11, 1880, appropriate services in memory of Rev. Edward Francis Cutter, pastor of the church from 1846 to 1856, who died February 27, and of Edwin Beaman, who had been a deacon for many years, were held. (For a biographical sketch of Mr. Cutter, see Necrology, p. 402.)

In 1883, Mr. Ross made a European tour. His return was welcomed by a supper and reception at the vestry.

January 24, 1884, Rev. Wooster Parker, pastor from 1856 to 1870, died, aged seventy-six. After his resignation he did not settle elsewhere, but occasionally officiated in neighboring towns. He was a man of large ability and thoroughly Evangelical in his views; clear, incisive, original, and instructive as a preacher, and beloved as a pastor and a friend. He had a great fund of humor, and at his best was a most effective platform speaker. A sermon upon his life and character was preached by Rev. John Alexander Ross on the Sunday after his death.

August 31, 1886. A council met to act on the resignation of Rev. John Alexander Ross, which was formally accepted. He went from here to Hampton, New Hampshire, where he now resides.

After the retirement of Mr. Ross, services were conducted by clergymen from abroad, until the fall of 1887, when Rev. Rollin Thurman Hack received an invitation as minister, and was ordained and installed as pastor on the 1st of October, the church being decorated with flowers for the occasion. The exercises were as follows: Invocation, by Mr. Charles Harbutt, of Bangor Theological Seminary; sermon, by Professor Lewis G. Stearns, and prayer by Professor Denio, both of that institution; right hand of fellowship, by Rev. Robert G. Harbutt, of Searsport; charge, by Professor John S. Sewall, D.D., of Bangor; prayer, by Rev. J. P. Cushman, of Castine; benediction, by the pastor.

In 1888, a catalogue of the books in the Sunday-School Library, 478 in number, was printed. On the 9th of November, the Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor was formed.

During the summer of 1889 an extension to the church edifice, containing a large lecture room and parlor, was completed. The walls and ceiling of the main building were frescoed, and eight windows of stained glass were substituted for the old ones. These were placed as follows: By Rev. George Warren Field, of Bangor, in memory of his mother, Abigail Davis Field; by Mrs. Cutter, in memory of her husband, Rev. Dr. Edward Francis Cutter; by Ralph Cross Johnson, of Washington, D.C., in memory of his mother, Sarah Winslow Cushing Johnson; by the children of Lemuel Rich Palmer, in memory of their parents; by the Sibley brothers, in memory of their mother, Hannah Cutter Sibley; by Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Davis and Mrs. Cyrus James Hall, in memory of Deacon Edwin Beaman; by Miss Agnes Craig, of Boston, in memory of her mother, Elizabeth Murray Craig; and by Mrs. James Gammans in memory of her daughter, Mary Abbott Gammans. The annex was dedicated on Sunday evening, September 29. Including repairs, the cost was $4075; the memorial windows cost $600.

In July, 1890, the extension of the church was painted, and a new steeple, duplicating the old one, was built.

Rev. Rollin Thurman Hack resigned on the 16th of September, 1894, and soon afterwards was installed pastor of the Payson Memorial Church in Portland, Maine, where he continues. During his residence in Belfast of seven years, there was a growth in membership in church, parish, and Sunday School, and much effective mission work was done.

At the National Convention at Cleveland, Ohio, this year, the society was represented by Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley.

The successor of Mr. Hack was the Rev. George Sherman Mills. Services of his ordination and installation were held July 24, 1895. Council consisted of Professor George Harris, D.D., of Andover Seminary; Rev. George A. Mills, of Dennysville, Maine, father of the candidate; Rev. Robert G. Harbutt, of Searsport; Rev. F. S. Dolliff, of Jackson; Rev. Rollin Thurman Hack, of Portland; Rev. R. H. Abercrombie, of North Belfast; and Rev. B. A. Lucas, of Sandypoint. The sermon was by Professor Harris; ordaining prayer, by Rev. George A. Mills; charge to pastor, by Mr. Harbutt; hand of fellowship, by Mr. Dolliff; and address to the people, by Mr. Hack.

George Sherman Mills was born in Copake, New York, 24 February, 1868, son of Rev. George A. and Sarah W. Mills; fitted for college at Albany, New York Military Academy, and Schuylerville, New York High School; graduated from Dartmouth College in 1890, with degree of A.B. (A.M. in 1892), Phi Beta Kappa; head of English Department, Colgate Academy, Hamilton, New York, 1890-93; graduated from Andover Theological Seminary, 1895; called to pastorate of North Church, Belfast, ordained and installed, 24 July, 1895; married Kate Gage Vose, of Calais, Maine, 5 September, 1895; two children, born in Belfast, Charles Sherman, 6 April, 1897, and Alice Goodnow, 29 September, 1899; resigned pastorate 17 January, 1904, to accept call to Second Congregational Church, Bennington, Vermont, where he still remains (1913).

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

On Tuesday afternoon and evening, December 29, 1896, was held the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the First Congregational Church (now called the North Church) at Belfast, Maine.

The committee in charge of the celebration was as follows: George Sherman Mills, Augustine Oliver Stoddard, James Pattee, Augustus Perry, Charles Craig, William Russell Howard, Horatio Palmer Thompson, Ami Cutter Sibley, Mrs. Henry Atherton Starrett, Mrs. Edward Sibley, Mrs. Clarence Osgood Poor, Miss Elizabeth Maltby Pond, Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley.

Invitations to be present were widely extended, and the perfect winter day found the edifice, which had been appropriately decorated with greenery emblematic of the Pine Tree State, crowded at both the afternoon and evening sessions.

The ceremonies of the occasion are fully described, and the addresses given in whole, or in part, in the pamphlet entitled "One Hundredth Anniversary, First Congregational Church, Belfast, Maine, 1796-1896," and printed at the time (1897) by the Belfast Age Publishing Company, Belfast, Maine. The reminiscences of Augustus Perry, Esq., Belfast's "Grand Old Man," who died December 28, 1912, in his ninety-eighth year, are particularly noteworthy.

The following is the afternoon programme, which was listened to throughout with unabated interest: —

The day closed with the singing of the following hymn, written by Mrs. Charles (Annie Atherton Starrett) Craig, granddaughter of Rev. Edward Francis Cutter: —

CENTENNIAL HYMN

(Portuguese Hymn)

“Do this in remembrance of me,” said the Christ:
 Disciples of old heard and heeded the call;
 And so there was formed the first Church of our Lord,
 Obedient to Him who is Saviour of all.

And down through the ages Christ’s call has been heard,
 And brave men and true men his word have obeyed.
 Oh, thank him to-night for the faith of the past;
 Oh, thank him for conquests our fathers have made.

Give thanks for our own Church — a century old,
 With honor and love we would greet her to-night:
 A century long she has stood in the world,
 And striven to show that in Christ is found light.

This past shall now teach us the goodness of God;
 His manifold mercies let every one sing.
 We turn from the past — and the present is here,
 Demanding allegiance to Christ our great King.

The past is forever beyond our recall;
 The present God gives us to use for him still;
 With love and with loyalty so let us work
 That each one shall daily be doing his will.

1897. The State Conference of Congregational Churches was held in Belfast this year.

1898. The Young People’s Society of Christian Endeavor celebrated its tenth anniversary this year.

At a Sunday-School rally, held on the 15th of October, 1899, letters were read from former pastors and residents. One written by Rev. George Warren Field, of Bangor, gave interesting reminiscences of the Sunday School of his boyhood days. The following are extracts: —

I am sorry that owing to absence from the city and other causes I have very little time to comply with the request which has come to me that I would give you some reminiscences regarding your Sabbath School as it used to be in my childhood. I could be more sorry, only I have very few such reminiscences — since a large part of my childhood was passed away from Belfast. But such memories as I do have are of a rather stern and sorrowful kind — such as impress themselves very strongly on the mind of a child and are not easily forgotten by him. The Sunday School of seventy or eighty years ago was not the pleasant and cheerful thing which the Sunday School of to-day is. Our little souls were often sorely afflicted. In the first place, the churches in which the schools were held were fearfully cold in those days. There were no vestries or small rooms. None of the appliances, like furnaces, by which large rooms are now warmed, had then been discovered. To be sure, foot-stoves were in use, by diligent employment of which one could keep his feet from freezing, but these were intended for old people, and little children were not indulged in such effeminacies. So the Sabbath School was to us one long shiver, at least in the winter, which constituted the larger part of the year — for in those days the winter really seemed colder and longer than now. The year took on an additional sternness from being so near the old Puritans.

The first Sunday School I ever attended was held in what was called the Conference Room. Why so called I do not know, as it was only a small meeting-house. But so it was called, and I grew up with the impression that Conference Room was the proper name for all Orthodox churches. It stood on the top of what is now Primrose Hill, on the lot just beyond the house built by Parson Johnson, which has been owned and occasionally occupied by his descendants ever since, and also nearly opposite the Field House. I have a very distinct remembrance of this building, not strangely, since it was one of the first objects to greet my infant vision, as I looked out of the windows of my father's house. The building stood on sloping ground, so that, under it, on the northern side, there was a large open space, which, instead of being warmly bricked up, was only cheaply enclosed with boards — through the crevices of which, I remember how I used to peer into the darkness within, fancying, in my childish imagination, that it was inhabited by snakes and all sorts of reptiles — so that I used to stand in awe of the boldness of the older boys, who would sometimes force their way in through the loosely fastened boards. This unprotected space under the Conference Room made it in the winter much colder than it otherwise would have been, which was quite needless.

The room was heated (if the word heated may be used) by a large stove immediately in front of the pulpit, about as large and as cheerful-looking as three or four coffins placed on one another — from which funnels ran the whole length of the room, with various curves and angles, at each of which the liquid soot dripped and was caught in pans suspended for that purpose from the funnels. The beautiful artistic effect of all this can easily be conceived. One who considers how sensitive little children unconsciously are to their surroundings can realize what an enlivening effect upon their spirits all these things must have had. In this sort of room we children, after the long morning service, which we were obliged to attend (for no child could slip into the school, in modern fashion, after meeting, any more than he could slip into day school, after recess) — in this cold and cheerless room we little ones were detained an hour longer after the service was over — for the exercises of the Sunday School, which consisted mainly in repeating by heart passages of Scripture, without any of the agreeable aids which are now so common, such as bright music, illustrated papers, question books full of information and of anecdote. Those were stern times, and to make the Sunday School really enjoyable, I am sure would have been thought to savor too much of worldliness. Everything must be solemn. The only way in which a child, or an adult, could become pious, was by his first being alarmed on account of his lost condition — the certainty that if he died as he was he would pass into a state of endless misery; — and the effort of the faithful teacher was to bring about that state of mind. So that when our little bodies did not shiver and our teeth chatter with the cold, our little spirits did with fear and trembling. In these later days we have found out that there are many other ways of coming to Christ — and better ways, especially for children.

I do not think that I exaggerate in all this. I speak for myself. I am sure I have not one pleasant memory of the Sunday School of my childhood. Everything was doleful, stern, gloomy. The preponderant characteristic was that of awful solemnity — just the least desirable characteristic for a child.

I would not speak disparagingly of the good people of those days. As far as devotion to duty and to principle, as they understood it, was concerned, as far as self-sacrifice, readiness to do and to suffer for conscience' sake and truth's sake, was concerned — in all such respects we might sit at their feet and learn of them. If there could be a mixing-up of their better qualities with the better qualities of the Christians that now are — their inflexible principle, their strength and power of achievement, their self-denial, with our brightness and cheerfulness and sweetness and breadth of piety, leaving out the less desirable qualities on both sides, — their rigidness and narrowness, our laxity and levity, — it would make a finer type of men than the world has yet seen. As it was, they were very stern and hard. Their circumstances made them so. They took their religion sadly. Their very music was doleful. God was to them a God of inflexible righteousness — of terrible justice, rather than the God of love and mercy of whom we hear so much. Christ was the great Judge before whose bar we must all stand, rather than the dear Friend who is ever by our side, speaking words of comfort and of cheer. They thought of the obligations of duty, rather than of the beauty of goodness — of the manliness and nobleness of virtue.

I wish that the children who are on the stage could realize how much is being done for them — how very much greater their advantages and privileges than those of the generations that went before them; and that they could also realize the great truth that to whom much is given, of them will much be required. I judge from what I hear that your school is in a most flourishing condition — with nothing lacking in its equipment to its utmost usefulness and success. I trust that the results for good will be proportionately great. I hope that among your young people are many who are resolved that they will not live selfish, self-indulgent, commonplace lives — that they will, by God's blessing, make their mark for good on their day and generation — somewhere, somehow; that they will achieve something which they can henceforth look back upon with satisfaction — something for the advancement of the best interests of humanity and for the oncoming of the Kingdom of our blessed Lord and Master.

The Rev. George Warren Field, D.D., writer of the above, passed away at his home in Bangor, 10 January, 1900. By his will the First Congregational Church of Belfast received a bequest of $2000.

By the Minutes of the Maine Conference for 1900, it appeared that the church consisted of 154 members, of which 33 were males, and 121 females. There were seven admissions during the year. The valuation of the church building is given at $10,000; of the parsonage, $2500. The salary of the pastor was $1000 per annum. During the summer, the interior of the church edifice was renovated and new carpets supplied.

BAPTIST CHURCH AND SOCIETY

Installation of Rev. David Foster Estes — Settlement of Rev. Francis Wayland Ryder — His Resignation — Rev. George Edward Tufts — Baptistry erected — Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor — Resignation of Mr. Tufts — Rev. John Freeman Tilton ordained — Church Annex built — Semi-Centennial Anniversary — Sewing Circle — Original Members — Rev. Randall Thomas Capen settled — Removal of the Church Spire.

AFTER the dismissal of Rev. Winslow O. Thomas, in 1872, the pulpit of the Belfast Baptist Church was supplied by Rev. R. D. Fish, Rev. Horace Wayland Tilden, of Augusta, and others, until May, 1876, when Rev. David Foster Estes, of Manchester, Vermont, accepted a call, and was installed June 6. The exercises of the occasion were as follows: Prayer, by Rev. John Alexander Ross; sermon, by Rev. H. C. Estes, D.D., of Paris, father of the pastor; prayer of installation, by Rev. Winslow O. Thomas, of Gardiner; charge to pastor, by Rev. S. P. Merrill, of Waterville; right hand of fellowship, by Rev. Horace Wayland Tilden, of Augusta; address to church, by Rev. S. L. B. Chase, of Rockland. After the services there was a social gathering at the vestry.

Mr. Estes graduated at the University of Vermont, in 1871, and three years later at the Newton Theological Institution. He remained here until September, 1878, when his resignation was tendered and accepted. The degree of D.D. was conferred on him by his alma mater in 1896. He is now professor in the Hamilton Theological School, New York.

During portions of 1877 and 1878, Rev. Mr. Carleton, of Newton, Massachusetts, preached.

On January 1, 1880, Rev. Francis Wayland Ryder, an alumnus of the University of Vermont in 1873, was settled, and remained until September 22, 1881, having accepted a pastorate in East Greenwich, Rhode Island. His labors in Belfast were successful and added many members to the church. He received the degree of D.D. from the college of his graduation, in 1894. He is now in business in Victor, Colorado.

The successor of Mr. Ryder was Rev. George Edward Tufts, who received a unanimous call in December, 1881. A graduate of Acadia College in 1866, and of Newton Theological Institution in 1877, he had held brief pastorates at Oakland and Dover, before coming to Belfast.

In 1883, the interior of the church edifice was frescoed, and panels containing Scriptural texts painted. In 1889, a baptistry in the rear, reached by steps leading down into it, was completed.

In March, 1890, a Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was organized, with thirteen members. Its object was to interest the young to do more efficient church work. At its anniversary, in 1900, a history, read by Miss Eva Thurston, showed that during the previous ten years there had been 115 active and 85 associate members; that the list contained the names of 73 of both classes; and that the sum of $1509.40 had been raised and disbursed.

In 1892, the establishment of a Junior Society took place. Four years later, in connection with the North Church Society, an Endeavor Society was formed at East Belfast, which continues. Both have kept in touch with the Endeavor world, through the county unions, and state and national conventions.

After a service of nearly nine years, Mr. Tufts preached his farewell sermon in August, 1890, having accepted an invitation to the Berean Church in Brunswick. Under his charge, the congregation and Sunday School were largely increased. The little churches at Morrill and Northport, for many years without regular preaching, were supplied by him every Sunday afternoon for several years. He found time to write frequently for periodicals, and furnished several papers to Appleton's Encyclopædia. His residence in Belfast was resumed after a year's stay at Brunswick. Since 1885 he has acted as pastor in Islesboro.

Rev. John Freeman Tilton, a native of Sidney, a graduate at Colby College in 1888, and at Newton three years later, was ordained as pastor on Wednesday evening, November 18, 1891, with the following programme:—

In 1892-93, extensive improvements on the church edifice were made, at an expense of $3000. They included an addition 15 by 30 feet and 28 feet high to the rear, with organ alcove, baptistry, pastor's rooms, kitchen, etc., putting in a new pipe organ, new furnace, carpet, and electric lights.

On Wednesday, June 19, 1895, the semi-centennial anniversary of the Sewing Circle was observed. The following are the names of the original members: Mrs. Eliza W. Very, Mrs. Mary Merrill, Mrs. Sarah P. Bagley, Mrs. Harriet Linniken, Mrs. Sarah Day, Mrs. Jane McCrillis, Mrs. Emily Burkmar, Mrs. Sarah White, Mrs. Mary Flowers, Mrs. Fidelia Carter, Mrs. Esther Lancaster, Mrs. Elizabeth Farley, Mrs. Susan Burkmar, Mrs. Emma J. Rogers, Mrs. Mary A. Day, Mrs. Martha Gilmore, Mrs. Sarah J. Young, Mrs. Lorinda E. Carter, Mrs. Harriet Warren, Mrs. Joanna Kellar, Mrs. Phebe Hinds, Mrs. Adeline Gilmore, Misses Mary Phillips, Rosina Hanson, Jane S. Young, Sylvania Sweetser, Frances McDonald, Caroline J. Rogers, Inda Smith, Sarah E. Day, Susan Carlton, Nancy Clary, Lucretia Coombs, Hannah Holt, Julia A. Chapman, Martha J. Hinckley, Angeline Carlton, Sarah B. Eells, Susan Smith, Betsey Connor. The gentlemen were: Messrs. Daniel Merrill, Rowland Carlton, Edward D. Very, James McCrillis, Martin C. Rogers, Dana Hinds, Lewis Richardson, Samuel Howes, Abram Jordan, Franklin Hanson, Howard B. Abbott, Franklin Phillips, Lewis Washington Howes, John T. McCrillis, Sewall P. Carter. Five or six in this list were then living, and three of the number resided here, viz.: Mrs. Fidelia Carter, Mrs. Lorinda Carter and Mrs. Mary Flowers. During the whole half-century not an annual meeting was neglected, and the records were neatly and well kept.

In 1898, the resignation of Mr. Tilton was accepted, and he closed his labors in Belfast May 8. His successor was Rev. Randall Thomas Capen, a graduate of Harvard College in the class of 1895, and at Newton Theological Institution, in 1898. He studied theology for a year in Scotland. After being ordained at his father's church in Watertown, Massachusetts, he came to Belfast July 3, 1898, remaining until his resignation in December, 1900.

In the fall of 1898, the spire of the church, which had been a prominent landmark in approaching the city for nearly thirty years, showed signs of decay, and was taken down as far as the belfry.

METHODIST CHURCH AND SOCIETY

Rev. George Pratt — New Bell — Rev. James H. Mooers — Rev. Theodore Gerrish — New Organ — Removal of Church Spire — Parsonage purchased — Legacy to Society from Paul Richard Hazeltine — Rev. Charles E. Libby — Session of East Maine Conference — Rev. W. Henry Williams — Rev. Benjamin C. Wentworth — Mrs. Van Cott — Death of Hon. Jacob Sleeper noticed — Epworth League — Young People's Bible Society — Rev. Sylvanus L. Hanscom — Rev. George G. Winslow — Stained-Glass Windows — Sunday-School Library — Rev. Gilbert Elsford Edgett — Session of East Maine Conference.

REV. GEORGE PRATT was stationed in Belfast in 1875 and 1876. He was born in New Vineyard, in 1812, and became a preacher in 1836. Although his early educational advantages were limited, he was a power in the pulpit, and as a pastor and a presiding elder was devoted and successful. He died in Winterport, June 28, 1882. A portrait of Elder Pratt is given in the "History of Methodists in Maine," and large portraits adorn the vestries of the Methodist churches in Winterport and Belfast.

In January, 1876, a new bell, which took the place of the one cracked the previous year, was hung. It is slightly heavier than its predecessor, and its tones resemble those of the Unitarian bell.

Rev. James H. Mooers, who was appointed to Belfast and Northport by the Conference of 1877, resigned in October on account of ill-health. No regular preacher filled the place for the rest of the year, but the pulpit was kept supplied. Mr. Mooers was afterwards a missionary in Dakota.

Rev. Theodore Gerrish was stationed in Belfast from May, 1878, to May, 1881. He was a native of Houlton, and entered the army at the age of sixteen, as a private in the Twentieth Maine Regiment. He served three years, and was thrice wounded. His first pastorate was in Levant, in 1872. His ability became at once recognized in our community. His undertakings in behalf of the society were highly successful. After leaving Belfast he preached in Portland and other prominent cities. Some time since, he exchanged the ministry for other pursuits, and now resides in Massachusetts. His books, descriptive of army life, are noticed in another chapter.

Through the active efforts of Mr. Gerrish, an organ, costing $1200, was purchased by subscription in 1879, and first used on Sunday, August 17. It has a black walnut case, is eighteen feet high, and contains five hundred and forty-four pipes. During the summer, the spire of the church, having strained the building, and being considered unsafe, was removed, and a short tower placed above the belfry.

From a legacy of $1000, left under the will of the late Paul Richard Hazeltine, and from private subscriptions, the house at the corner of Court and Spring streets was purchased for a parsonage.

In 1880, the audience room of the church was frescoed, and other repairs and improvements made, at a cost of $900.

Rev. Charles E. Libby succeeded Mr. Gerrish, and remained until 1883. He was born in Auburn, 1844, and before entering the ministry, taught school. His ordination, in 1875, was by Bishop Haven.

During the second week in May, 1881, the thirty-fourth session of the East Maine Conference was held in Belfast. Bishop William L. Harris, of New York, presided.

In 1883, Rev. W. Henry Williams, who entered the ministry in 1872, came to Belfast and remained for three years.

Rev. Benjamin C. Wentworth, a native of Cushing, where he was born in 1848, was pastor from May, 1885, to May, 1888. He became a preacher in 1872, and received ordination from Bishop Haven in 1875. He became a presiding elder of the district in 1889.

In 1888, Mrs. Van Cott, a well-known woman preacher, held a series of daily meetings in the church for three weeks, creating much enthusiasm. At the close of her labors twenty-three persons were baptized and thirty admitted as church members on probation.

The society sustained a deep loss by the death of Hon. Jacob Sleeper, of Boston, which took place March 31, 1889. He resided here from 1816 to 1825, and his influence and pecuniary aid in behalf of the denomination were never withheld. An obituary notice stated that the first fifty dollars which he saved from his earnings when a young man he gave to the Methodist Episcopal Church in Belfast, Maine. At noon on April 3, while his funeral was taking place in Boston, the bell of the church here, which was his gift, was tolled.

Rev. Gustavus Benson Chadwick was the successor of Mr. Wentworth for three years, until May, 1892. He was born in China, 24 July, 1832, passed three years at Wesleyan University, participated in the Civil War as a member of the Seventh Maine Battery, and joined the Conference in 1879. Mr. Chadwick died in Damariscotta, March 4, 1900. During the first year of Mr. Chadwick's appointment, an intermediate Epworth League and a Young People's Bible Society were formed.

Rev. Sylvanus L. Hanscom, a native of East Machias, and a teacher before entering the ministry, was assigned to Belfast for five successive years, terminating his labors in May, 1896. His age was then about fifty, and he had preached for twenty years.

An Epworth League was formed at East Belfast, in 1895.

The minister assigned to Belfast by the Conference in 1896 was Rev. George G. Winslow, who was born in Casco, in 1835, and preached when only twenty years old. He was returned in 1897 and 1898.

In 1896, new stained-glass windows were provided from funds raised by the Columbian Aid Society.

In 1897, the Sunday-School Library was increased fifty-two volumes, making a total of four hundred and sixty-four books.

The Rev. Gilbert Elsford Edgett was assigned in 1899, and remained five years.

In 1900, the fifty-third session of the East Maine Conference was held in Belfast from April 17 to April 23, inclusive. Bishop Willard Francis Mallalieu, of Auburndale, Massachusetts, presided, and over four hundred visitors attended. The Sabbath services were held in the Opera House. Extensive repairs were made in this year on the church edifice.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH AND SOCIETY

Rev. Simeon Goodenough — State Convention held here — State Sunday-School Convention — Resignation of Mr. Goodenough — Rev. Thomas B. Gregory — Rev. Granville W. Jenkins — Coterie Society — Rev. Fred Le Roy Payson — Fiftieth Anniversary of Church Dedication celebrated — Resignation of Mr. Payson — Rev. Myra Kingsbury settled — Auxiliary Societies — Rev. Charles Henry Wells — Rev. Ashley Auburn Smith.

REV. SIMON GOODENOUGH became pastor of the Universalist Church, in Belfast, January 1, 1875. In June of that year, the denominational State Convention was held in Belfast, and attracted a large attendance from abroad. Ex-Governor Perham presided, and Ex-Governor Washburn participated in the exercises.

On the 26th of May, 1878, services in memory of Rev. Giles Bailey, recently pastor of the church, were held.

The Maine State Universalist Sunday-School Convention met in Belfast, September 24 and 25, 1879. Pastors, superintendents, and delegates were present from different parts of the State.

On account of the health of his wife, Mr. Goodenough severed his connection with the society, October 1, 1882, after a pastorate of nearly eight years. In his farewell sermon he said that during his pastorate in Belfast and Stockton, seventy-four members had been added to the church; eighty children had been baptized; seventy-five couples married; two hundred funerals attended; four thousand pastoral calls made, and nine hundred sermons preached. He removed to Santa Clara, California, and now resides there.

The successor of Mr. Goodenough was Rev. Thomas B. Gregory, a native of Edenton, North Carolina, who had been settled in Portland, Michigan. He remained until November, 1885, when he accepted a call to Biddeford, Maine. He afterwards became an Independent, and preached in Chicago. The "Free Thought Magazine" for March, 1900, has a lecture by him, with a portrait and biography.

Rev. Granville Wallingford Jenkins, a graduate at the Divinity School of Tufts College in 1878, was the next pastor, remaining from 1886 to October, 1887. He went to Norwich, Connecticut, where he died October 16, 1892. During his pastorate, the young people of the society formed an association for mutual improvement, called the Coterie.

Rev. Fred Le Roy Payson, was installed as pastor, September 27, 1888. The following clergymen assisted in the ceremonies; Rev. G. G. Hamilton, of Oakland; Rev. H. S. Whitman, of Augusta; Rev. W. M. Kimmell, of Bangor; and Revs. John Arthur Savage and Lindley M. Burrington, of Belfast. Mr. Payson was a native of Hope, and graduated at Tufts College Divinity School in 1888.

The fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of the church edifice, October 30, 1839, was observed with appropriate exercises. The decorations were in good taste. A framed portrait of Rev. Frederick A. Hodsdon, who preached the dedicatory sermon, was arranged in front of the pulpit, suitably draped with flowers. The programme was as follows:—

The letters received and read were from Joseph Wheeler, Esq., of Boston, a former superintendent in the Sunday School; from James Wentworth Brown, Esq., of Boston, formerly librarian in the school; from W. W. Hilton, Esq., of Buxton, Maine, a former pupil and assistant librarian; and from Rev. Amory Battles, of Bangor, one of the oldest and best beloved in the denomination.

The pastorate of Mr. Payson, ended October 29, 1890. At its close the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

WHEREAS, the resignation of Rev. Fred Le Roy Payson, who has been for the last few years pastor of the Universalist Church in Belfast, has been accepted in consequence of the lack of parish funds sufficient to pay an adequate salary; therefore,

Resolved, That we, the members and congregation of the church, wish to express our regret at parting with Mr. Payson and to certify to his prudence, diligence, and fidelity as a minister of the Gospel, his upright and very exemplary character as a Christian man, and his social, genial, helpful ways and qualities as a pastor.

Resolved, That we heartily commend Mr. Payson to any of our churches that may be seeking a good and competent pastor.

During 1892, the audience room of the church was renovated and improved.

In November, Rev. Myra Kingsbury accepted a call as pastor. She remained until December, 1895. She was born in Sheshequin, Pennsylvania, in 1847, graduated at the State Normal School, and afterwards studied for the ministry, being first settled in Williston, Vermont. After leaving Belfast, she returned to her native town, where, after a lingering illness, she died 11 June, 1898. Her pastorate was marked with prosperity. Auxiliary societies instituted through her influence, known as the Mission Circle and the Kingsbury Social Aid, were formed and contributed much in their respective lines for the parish.

Rev. Charles Henry Wells, a native of Woodbury, Vermont, and an alumnus of the Divinity School of Tufts College, in 1895, succeeded Miss Kingsbury, his pastorate commencing with her retirement. He resigned June 5, 1898.

Rev. Ashley Auburn Smith, the present pastor, born at Auburn, in 1871, and a classmate of Mr. Wells in the Tufts Divinity School, began his labors here November 1, 1898. He had previously been settled in Annisquam, Massachusetts.

CHAPTER X

NORTH CONGREGATIONAL SOCIETY AT THE HEAD OF THE TIDE

— New Bell — Statistics.

SINCE 1858, there has been no settled minister of the North Society at the Head of the Tide. During a portion of each year, students from the Bangor Theological Seminary, and others have supplied the pulpit, as follows: —

1875. Rev. John Alexander Ross, of Belfast (in summer).

1881. Rev. Wooster Parker (portion of year).

1882. Edward H. Hackett; and George M. Sanborn, licentiates.

1883. Vacant.

1884. James E. Aikin, licentiate.

1885 and 1886. Rev. John Alexander Ross.

1887. Vacant.

1888 and 1889. Rev. Edwin C. Brown, now of Brewer.

1890. Norman McKinnon, licentiate.

1891. Samuel R. Smiley.

1892 and 1893. William W. Dornan.

1894. R. F. Chambers.

1895. R. H. Abercrombie.

1896. Merritt A. Farren.

1897 and 1898. Harry O. Worthley, of Brunswick.

1900. C. S. Calhoun.

In the fall of 1884, the church edifice was repaired and painted.

In the night of July 4, 1888, the bell, which had rung for over forty years, was cracked, and was replaced by a new one the following October. The church members in 1900 numbered forty-five, of whom twelve were males and thirty-three females.

CHAPTER XI

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH AND SOCIETY

Rev. James Peterson — Services in the Opera House — Rev. Richard N. Phelan — Old Masonic Hall used for Worship — Rev. Patrick J. Garrity — Church Edifice presented by William S. Brannagan — Dedication — Rectory — Rev. John E. Kealey — Biographical Sketch of William S. Brannagan.

REV. JAMES PETERSON, of Rockland, had charge of the Roman Catholic parish in Belfast from 1875 to 1877. The place of worship was Johnson's Hall, on High Street. On the first Sabbath of October, in the last-named year, public services at the Opera House were largely attended. Mass was celebrated, with a discourse from the Rt. Rev. James A. Healey, Bishop of Portland, followed by the confirmation of about forty persons.

Rev. Richard N. Phelan, then of Winterport, officiated in 1882.

In 1885, the old Masonic Hall, in the High School Building, was occupied for worship.

Ill-health compelled Father Peterson to seek a new field of labor, and he left Maine in 1888. A scholarly man, of pleasant social traits and varied information, he made many friends here, irrespective of religious denomination.

From 1888 to 1894, Rev. Patrick J. Garrity, of Winterport, held meetings on one Sunday in each month.

In 1891, Mr. William S. Brannagan, a native of Ireland, and a resident of Belfast since 1842, built and presented to the Catholics the church at the southern end of Court Street. It measures seventy by forty feet and the steeple is eighty-five feet high. In the rear is a vestry twenty-seven by fifteen feet, with entrances on each side of the altar. The cost of the whole structure was about $5000. The church was dedicated on Thanksgiving Day, with the title of St. Francis, and under the protection of Our Lady of Holy Hope, in honor of a church which stood nearly two and a half centuries ago where now is the town of Castine. Bishop Healey conducted the exercises, assisted by the Very Rev. Michael O'Brien, of Bangor; Rev. Jeremiah McCarthy, of Gardiner; Rev. Richard N. Phelan, of Rockland; Rev. John P. Nelligan, of Hallowell; and Rev. Patrick J. Garrity, the rector. A choir from Bangor rendered music. The dedicatory address was by the Bishop. Among the large audience no one seemed happier than Mr. Brannagan, who had lived to witness the fondest hope of his long and blameless life realized by the erection of a church of his faith in his adopted home. A memorial window, above the altar, given by the parish, and inscribed with his name, bears testimony to his memory.

In 1894, a priest's residence was built, on the next lot south of the church, principally through the efforts and pecuniary aid of Mr. Brannagan. It is twenty-seven by twenty-nine feet, with an ell, and contains ten large rooms.

The first regularly installed rector of the new church was Rev. Fr. Maurice J. O'Brien, whose appointment dated from May, 1894. Early in the following February he started for the South, to restore his failing health, but was taken sick at his father's house in Lewiston, where he died on the 11th day of the month, aged twenty-eight years. Father O'Brien was a native of Lewiston. After graduating at the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, he pursued theological studies in Montreal, and in Paris, and was ordained as a priest in 1890. During his short service in Belfast, he proved faithful and conscientious in his calling.

The successor of Father O'Brien was Rev. John E. Kealey, the present resident priest, under whom a steady increase in membership has taken place. One of the prominent events of his ministration was on October 14, 1895, when fifty candidates were confirmed by the Bishop.

On the 16th of January, 1901, William S. Brannagan was gathered to his fathers at the Parochial Residence of the Roman Catholic Church at Belfast, Maine, having attained the great age of ninety-one years. Born in County Meath, Ireland, 10 December, 1810, he emigrated to America when a young man, first landing in Philadelphia. In 1843, he came to Belfast and went into the dry-goods and boot-and-shoe business for himself on Phoenix Row. After a few years he sold out his stock there, and became a salesman for Horatio Huntington Johnson, with whom he remained for many years; leaving his employ in 1877 to enter the store of George W. Burkett where he spent two years. He next was with Thomas W. Pitcher for a few months, whose store was of the same general nature as those in which

Mr. Brannagan had been employed during his whole business life. These were the days before our railroad. Then no traveling salesmen or gaudy catalogues from mail-order houses found their way to every cross-road, general store, or remote farm, as now. Belfast was the trading centre for Waldo County. Farmers arrived before daylight anxious to exchange their country produce, make their purchases, and get started on the homeward journey before the heat of the day in summer, or before the noonday sun should have softened up the road-beds and made bad traveling in winter. The Belfast of those days had many of the characteristics of a frontier town. The inhabitants were hardy, enterprising spirits, much in the nature of pioneers. Several large stores carried on a thriving and important business, and through ships built and owned in Belfast, and commanded by Belfast men, had connections in all parts of the world. In keenness, sagacity, and business acumen, and in their judgment of men and events, it is not improbable that some of the leading men of the town then, would to-day, could they be marshaled back to earth, take a place not far behind many of our modern captains of industry and finance.

Soon after leaving Mr. Pitcher, Mr. Brannagan decided to retire and for years lived happily and contented and at his ease on an ample property acquired by industry and frugality. He was a hard, conscientious worker, and an obliging, sagacious salesman. From his early arrival in Belfast, he was, until his death, a devout Catholic, and took great interest in the local Roman Catholic Church, and it was mainly through his efforts and generosity that its first organization in Belfast was effected, and later the church edifice and the priest's house were both gifts from him. He was ever ready to spend his time and money freely for the cause, and when he felt old age coming upon him, with the foresight which had characterized his whole life, he made an arrangement with the church authorities, by means of which he was to enjoy a home with the priests in the parochial residence as long as he lived; and it was here, in the house that his generosity had erected, that he passed calmly on.

He was an honest, upright man, of pleasant and friendly disposition and had a host of friends, who honored him as a good citizen. In his acquaintances and friendships, he knew no distinction either of religion or politics, although he held decided views on both subjects. He is remembered by the present generation as a bright, active, dapper little figure, full of energy, though over eighty, always elaborately courteous, and habitually attired in a quaint black coat and a tall beaver hat: — by his inherent nature a true “gentleman of the old school.” He had the quick wit and the sense of humor of his race, and was prepared to meet every comer with a ready answer. Always well supplied with the latest local news, he dearly loved a neighborly chat over a cheering “cup,” and his none too frequent and ceremoniously short calls are still missed in more than one household of the older residents. He never married, and at the time of his death was survived only by a sister, Mrs. Theresa Gunning, of County Meath, and by several nephews and nieces. We may appropriately terminate this brief sketch in the language of his church, “Requiescat in pace.” His burial place is in Belfast, where he lies, closely surrounded by the graves of his friends.¹

¹ At Mr. Brannagan’s funeral the Rev. Patrick J. Garrity read the Requiem Mass, and the Very Rev. Michael C. O’Brien, Vicar-General of the Diocese of Maine, long an intimate friend of the deceased, delivered a most touching eulogy on his charity and Christian life. His grave is marked by a handsome granite cross, which he himself selected with the aid of his lifelong friend, the late Edward Johnson, whose tomb is close at hand.

As stated above, from 1875 to 1877, the Rev. James Peterson, of Rockland, held services at Belfast. In 1877, Winterport was taken from the parish of Ellsworth and made a parish, with Belfast as one of its missions. Rev. Jeremiah McCarthy was the first pastor of Winterport. In 1879, Rev. John Duddy succeeded Father McCarthy. (Father Peterson returned to Ireland and died there.) Father Phelan came after Father Duddy.

Prior to 1891, several attempts had been made to build a church by subscription, but failed. It was while the Rev. Patrick J. Garrity was in charge that Mr. Brannagan’s plans were consummated. Father Garrity undertook to see that the church should be appropriately furnished; drew the plans for the edifice, and supervised its construction, thus saving a considerable sum for his people. In furnishing the church the Catholics were assisted most kindly by the Protestants of Belfast, whose generosity they have never forgotten.

The Rev. John E. Kealey, who took up his pastorate in 1895, continued until 1905. He was succeeded by the Rev. Herman H. Haymakers, who was in turn followed, in 1911, by the Rev. Dennis A. McCabe.

CHAPTER XII

MISCELLANEOUS RELIGIOUS HISTORY

Maine Sabbath-School Convention — Deaf Mutes — Spiritualists — First Society formed — Belfast Spiritualist Association — Salvation Army — Mission School — Evangelist Preachers — Church Attendance in 1891 — Christian Advent — Union Revival Meetings — Gospel Mission — Young Men's Christian Union — Young Men's Christian Association — Christian Endeavor Societies.

IN May, 1876, the Maine State Sabbath School Convention was held in Belfast, attended by many delegates. The proceedings were published in a pamphlet of 31 pages.

In August, 1877, the deaf mutes held religious services conducted by Mr. Philo W. Packard, of Salem, Massachusetts.

In 1881, the Spiritualists leased the Angier Hall, in the north end of Phoenix Row, and held regular services there.

In 1883, the Maine Spiritual Temple purchased the Brown Farm near the Bluff, and established the camp-ground now known as Temple Heights.

On the 1st of March, 1886, the First Society of Spiritualists of Belfast, Maine, was formed. Its officers were: President, Franklin Hall Black; treasurer, Mrs. M. L. Cleaves; secretary, Mrs. Franklin Hall Black. It held meetings every Sunday.

In December, 1900, a society called the Belfast Spiritualist Association was organized with thirty members and the following officers: President, Andrew Euell Clark; vice-president, Mrs. Joseph A. Montefore; secretary, Orrin Joseph Dickey; treasurer, Mrs. George Washington Benson; trustees, Collins McCarty, Andrew Euell Clark, Mrs. Lydia A. Hatch.

The first appearance of the Salvation Army in Belfast was on February 13, 1887, when Captain Reuben Holme and wife opened barracks in the Coliseum. Subsequently meetings were held in Knowlton's Hall. Several street parades, with music, took place. The object of the institution was to reach a class of persons who never attended church, and particularly those who frequented saloons. The officers remained until the following April.

In December, 1886, Mrs. William B. Conant established a mission school, for children who did not attend any Sabbath School. She had thirty pupils, and held meetings every Sunday in a house on Cross Street.

In 1889, Rev. H. N. Harriman and Mr. Frank H. Clark, evangelists, held a series of union revival meetings in Belfast, which were largely attended. Rev. Sam Small, the Georgia evangelist, preached in December.

1891. An enumeration of those who attended the different churches during a beautiful day in December showed the following result:—

Unitarian.....	75
Baptist.....	120
Methodist.....	153
Universalist.....	193
Congregational.....	250
Total.....	791

The Catholics then held their services on the fourth Sunday in each month only. Had they been included, the number would have been increased at least another hundred.

In 1893, Elder G. L. Young conducted Christian Advent services at Memorial Hall. The society leased Peirce's Hall in 1895, but abandoned it early the next year.

1894. January 1 to 21, a series of union revival meetings was held in the Methodist Church, under charge of Rev. C. L. Jackson, an evangelist from Boston.

Rev. J. F. Hazel and wife opened a Gospel Mission, in 1896, in the Haraden Building, and afterwards at No. 58 High Street. A Sunday School was organized, and active work done by missionary preachers. It still continues (1900).

BELFAST YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN UNION

A society by this name was organized December 11, 1888. Its objects were: (1) to furnish the young men of Belfast and vicinity a place of pleasant resort, where they will meet agreeable companions and where the influence will be morally beneficial and intellectually elevating; (2) to provide them with opportunities for self-improvement and healthful recreation at small expense; (3) to interest and engage them in doing good by personally practising what is true, virtuous, and manly, aiding what is benevolent and charitable, and discouraging all that is profane, cruel, vulgar, intemperate, or morally false or impure either in conduct or conversation. The officers were as follows: President, Charles Swan Bickford; vice-president, William P. Castle; secretary, Nathaniel J. Pottle; treasurer, Charles Luthers; trustees, Sherman G. Swift, George Priest, and Fred Hall. It had well-furnished rooms over Edwin P. Frost & Company's store on Main Street, but did not long exist.

BELFAST YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

This society, having for its object the improvement of the spiritual, mental, social, and physical condition of young men, was organized October 30, 1889, and was composed of persons connected with the Evangelical churches. The following were elected officers: Ami Cutter Sibley, president; George E. White, James Pattee, and William C. Tuttle, vice-presidents; Augustine Oliver Stoddard, secretary; Horatio Palmer Thompson, treasurer; Alfred G. Ellis, Calvin A. Hubbard, Horatio Palmer Thompson, Dr. Samuel Worth Johnson, Nathaniel Emery Keen, and Charles H. Twombly, directors. Twenty signed the constitution.

The rooms in the Masonic Temple, later occupied by the Waldo Club, were renovated and supplied with newspapers and periodicals, and a gymnasium installed. They were first occupied December 22, 1889. From lack of support the association gave up these rooms, March 15, 1891. Its meetings have since been held with the churches (1900).

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETIES

An account of these organizations may be found in chapters relating to the Congregational and Baptist churches.

On the 27th of October, 1891, the Waldo County Christian Endeavor Union was organized, with Frank Wallace Chase as President, and Miss Lilian Pamela Robbins, secretary and treasurer. In 1899, its annual convention was represented by sixty-four delegates from nineteen societies.

EDUCATIONAL HISTORY — LECTURES

Lectures at Methodist Vestry — Home Course, 1876-77 — Henry Ward Beecher — High-School Library Course — Methodist Course — Miss Frances Elizabeth Willard — Lectures in 1885 — Before Scientific Association in 1888 and 1889 — Mrs. Mary Ashton Livermore — North Church Series of 1890-92 — Rev. Edward Everett Hale — Course by Baptist Christian Endeavor Society — Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley — People's Course — Before Teachers' Club, 1899 — High-School Course, 1900.

ALTHOUGH in 1873 the Belfast Lyceum, after an existence of over twenty years, suspended its organization, the public interest in lectures did not diminish, and a course was begun at the Methodist Vestry in December, 1874, and continued through the remainder of the winter with the following lectures: January 21, Rev. W. T. Jewell, on "An Evening with Edmund Burke"; January 29, Rev. Charles F. Allen, on "History of the English Language"; February 4, Rev. George Forsyth, on "Genuine Aristocracy"; February 11, Mrs. Lucy Stone, on "Political Equality of Women"; March 4, Rev. George R. Palmer, on "Unappreciated Forces."

During the season of 1876-77, a series of home lectures at $1.50 for the course was given at Peirce's Hall. The lecturers and subjects were as follows: Rev. Simon Goodenough, on "The Gospel of Discontent"; Rev. D. F. Estes, on "Our own Poets"; Dr. Elmer Small, on "The Modern Idea"; Hon. William Maxfield Rust, on "What's the News"; William Henry Simpson, on "The Uses of Wit and Humor"; Dr. Lewis Warrington Pendleton, on "The Old People"; Rev. James Thompson Bixby, on "The Riddle of the Sphinx"; Rev. John Alexander Ross, on "Modern Superstitions"; Hon. William Colburn Marshall, on "Our Likes and Dislikes"; William Henry Fogler, on "Old Times"; Joseph Williamson, on "General Knox"; and Seth Llewellyn Milliken, on "The Penalties of Greatness." In January, four illustrated lectures on architecture and sculpture were given by Rev. Arthur M. Knapp, of Bangor.

No course was maintained in 1878, but on the 16th of January, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher lectured at the Opera House, on "The Wastes and Burdens of Society." The tickets were one dollar each. Two lectures were delivered in the High-School Library course in February, 1882, one by Hon. Seth Llewellyn Milliken, the subject being "The Crusades," and the other, by Rev. George Edward Tufts, on "More Worlds than Ours."

During the season of 1883-84, seven lectures were given at the Methodist Church. The lecturers and their subjects were as follows: By Professor Dorchester, on "Macaulay's Prophecy concerning the United States"; Chaplain Clark, on "Pompeii"; Readings by Mrs. Augusta Stetson; Rev. George R. Palmer, on "Manly Character"; General James A. Hall, on "The Campfires of '61"; Rev. A. J. Lockhart, on "A Visit to Longfellow"; Rev. John Alexander Ross, on "Italy." The price for the course was, for a family, three dollars; for one person, one dollar; single admission, twenty-five cents.

On August 29, 1884, Miss Frances Elizabeth Willard lectured on "Temperance," at the Unitarian Church.

In January, 1885, there were four lectures in Peirce's Parlor Theatre, by James K. Applebee, on "Thomas Hood"; by H. Bernard Carpenter, on "Daniel O'Connell"; Rev. Minot J. Savage, on "Laughter in Earnest"; and by Volney B. Cushing, on "The Lost Atlantis." Tickets for the course were one dollar; for a single lecture, thirty-five cents. The proceeds exceeded expenses by seventy-four dollars, which was turned over to one of the benevolent branches of the Unitarian Society.

In 1888, lectures took place before the Belfast Scientific Association in the Unitarian Church Parlor, at one dollar for the course. The lecturers were Rev. John Arthur Savage, on "Modern Science"; Rev. George Edward Tufts, on "More Worlds than Ours"; Arthur Irving Brown, on "Geology"; Dr. Horatio Huntington Johnson, on "What gives an Animal Precedence in Rank"; by Joseph Williamson, on "Prehistoric Maine." The annual address was by Rev. John Arthur Savage, on "Climate and its Effects." During the year, Rev. George Edward Tufts gave an address on "The Micmac Indians," and John Riley Dunton one on "Pebbles, Sand, and Mud."

The next year Arthur Irving Brown lectured on "Glaciers"; Frank Ross Woodcock, on "The Indian of North America"; Dr. Horatio Huntington Johnson, on "Glaciers"; and Rev. John Arthur Savage, on "The Rocks of Belfast and Vicinity."

During the season of 1889-90, four lectures were delivered: By George Makepeace Towle, on "Beaconsfield"; by Rev. Sam Small, on "Is Civilization a Failure"; by Mrs. Mary Ashton Livermore, on "What shall we do with Our Girls"; and by Professor Ropes, of Bangor, on "Eight Weeks in Russia."

During 1889, John Riley Dunton and Arthur Irving Brown each lectured before the Scientific Association on "Geology"; Charles Swan Bickford, on "Chemistry"; and Charles M. Harris, on "Collecting and Preserving Specimens in Natural History."

A series was given in the North Church during the season of 1890-91, as follows: By Rev. Edward Everett Hale, on "The High Court of Nations"; by George Makepeace Towle, on "Eugénie, Empress of the French"; by President William De Witt Hyde, on "Qualities of Leadership"; by Melville D. Langdon (Eli Perkins), on "The Philosophy of Wit and Humor"; and by Rev. Rollin Thurman Hack, on "Rome; its Ancient Ruins and Modern Glories."

Among the lecturers provided by the North Church Club for 1891-92 were Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer, former president of Wellesley College, who spoke on "Our College Girls"; Professor J. S. Sewall, of Bangor, on "The Japan Expedition," and Professor Leslie A. Lee, on "A Summer in Labrador."

Several lectures were given in 1893-94 under the auspices of the religious societies, the most prominent of which were: By Eli Perkins, on "China and Japan"; by Rev. W. C. Pond, D.D., of San Francisco, on "The Chinese"; by Rev. Rollin Thurman Hack, on "Reformers," and on his "Impressions of the World's Fair"; by Rev. George Edward Tufts, on his "European Travels," and by Rev. Edwin Pond Parker, on "The Gentler Aspects of Puritan Life and Character."

At the close of 1894, the Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor of the Baptist Church gave a successful course, consisting of lectures by Rev. B. L. Whitman, of Colby University, on "The Revival of Patriotism"; by Rev. R. S. McArthur, on "Chips from Many Shops"; by Rev. George C. Lorimer, on "Laughter in Life and Literature"; and a concert by the Ariel Quartette Club, of Boston. The tickets for the course were one dollar. Watari Kitashima lectured on "The Chinese and Japanese War"; Professor Leon H. Vincent, on "Hawthorne," both in the Unity Club course at the Unitarian Church. The closing lecture in the club course was February 26, 1895, by Rev. Edwin Pond Parker, D.D., of Hartford, Connecticut, on "Truth and Fiction."

As a lecturer and public speaker, Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley, now Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, acquired more than a local reputation. In 1895, she visited Palestine, and on her return appeared before large audiences in many New England cities. "Over the Palestine Hills on Horseback," was the title of one of her most widely given lectures. At the Christian Endeavor Convention in Boston, her address was enthusiastically received.¹

For the season of 1895-96, lectures were provided by the People's Lecture Course, by the following: James Kay Applebee, on "Charles Dickens"; John De Witt Miller, on "The Stranger at Our Gates"; Robert Stuart McArthur, D.D., on "The Empire of the Czar — The Great Bear of the North"; Roberts Harper, on "Around the World in a Man-of-War"; and Rev. Edwin Pond Parker, D.D., on "Sydney Smith." The receipts from this course were $553.45; disbursements, $517.10; leaving a balance of $36.35 for the following year.

For 1896-97 the People's Course commenced with a concert by the Apollo Quartette, followed by lectures from John De Witt Miller, on "The Uses of Ugliness"; Dr. A. A. Willetts, on "Sunshine"; Colonel George W. Bain, on "Among the Masses"; Dr. P. S. Henson, on "Fools"; President Butler, of Colby University, on "The Study of Literature"; the course closing with a concert by the "Lyceum Stars."

In the winter of 1897-98, among the entertainments provided by the People's Course were lectures from Dr. Lyman B. Sperry, of Oberlin, Ohio, on "Gumption and Grit"; Dr. James Hedley, on "What is a Man Worth?"; and Rev. A. S. Gumbart, of Boston, on "A Tramp through London." There were two concerts.

No regular course was maintained during 1898 and 1899, but lectures were given by General John B. Gordon, on "The Last Days of the Confederacy"; and by Dr. James Hedley, on "Wisdom's Jewelled Ring."

In November and December, 1899, lectures were delivered before the Belfast Teachers' Club by Rev. W. H. Woude, of Castine, on "John Ruskin and his Mission," and by Rev. James Monroe Leighton, on "Books and Their Uses."

In 1900-01, the teachers of the High School arranged a course of lectures at Memorial Hall, for the benefit of the school library, as follows: "The Fall of the Roman Empire in the West," by William MacDonald, Ph.D., of Bowdoin College; "Characteristics of Poetry," by H. M. Estabrooke, M.S., of the University of Maine; "The Age of Louis the Fourteenth," by A. N. Leonard, Ph.D., instructor in Bates College; "The Bible as Literature," by Professor A. J. Roberts, of Colby College; "The Acropolis and its Influence in the History of Greek Art," by John H. Huddilston, Ph.D., professor in the University of Maine.

CHAPTER XIV

EDUCATIONAL HISTORY — COLLEGE GRADUATES AND STUDENTS

College Students from Belfast — List of Graduates and Students at Colleges, Seminaries and Professional Schools — Persons who studied in Europe.

OF this chapter, the title only was found among Mr. Williamson's papers. Its wording has made it possible for us to include four general classes of students, as follows: First, college graduates and undergraduates, who were natives of Belfast, or attended Belfast schools; second, a few students, who, though never themselves actual residents of the town, or students there, are descended from old Belfast families; third, teachers and superintendents of the Belfast schools, under whom the greater part of the students received their preparatory training, though the names of this third class are not counted in the summaries, unless they were connected with Belfast other than through their school positions; and fourth, to make the record still more complete, names have been included of persons who studied in Europe, whether at higher institutions of learning, secondary schools, or under private tuition.

From Volume I we find that, previous to 1874, 35 students, all men, graduated at 4 colleges, as follows: Bowdoin, 22; Harvard, 6; Waterville, now Colby, 5; Tufts, 2. The data of the present chapter show that from 1875 to 1900, 90 men have studied at 31 higher institutions of learning, as follows: Harvard, 19; University of Maine, 16; Tufts, 11; Bowdoin, 10; Colby, 9; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 7; Bates, 5; New York University, 4; Boston University, 3; Columbia, 3; and 2 each at Dartmouth, Jefferson Medical College, Johns Hopkins University, Philadelphia Dental College, University of Paris, University of Pennsylvania, University of Rochester, Yale; and 1 each at Amherst, College of Charleston, Colorado College, Columbian (now George Washington) University, Dalhousie University, Kaiser Wilhelm University, Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Meadville Theological School, Princeton University, Royal Conservatory of Music, Leipsic, United States Military Academy, United States Naval Academy, and the University of Vermont. Of these 72 received degrees.

Previous to 1875, no women went to college from Belfast. In sharp contrast to which we find that during the period treated in this chapter, — from 1875 to 1900, — 26 women studied at 15 higher institutions of learning as follows: Wellesley College, 11; New England Conservatory of Music, 7; Cornell University, 2; Smith College, 2; and 1 each at Bryn Mawr, Columbia University, Drexel Institute, Leland Stanford, Jr., University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Massachusetts Normal Art School, Radcliffe College, University of Wisconsin, Wesleyan University, Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania, Yale University; while 3 studied in Europe. Of these, 11 received degrees. From the foregoing, it appears that during the first century and a quarter of her existence, i.e., up to 1900, Belfast has furnished 151 college students (26 women and 125 men) to 43 higher institutions of learning; and of this number, 118 (11 women and 107 men) received degrees. These institutions extend from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to Charleston, South Carolina, and from California to Europe.

The distinction of being the first college graduate from Belfast belongs to Judge Alfred Johnson. He was a sophomore at Bowdoin College when his father, the Rev. Alfred Johnson, A.B., Dartmouth, 1785, and later A.M., one of the founders and first overseers of Bowdoin College, settled in Belfast, in 1805. Judge Johnson's class of 1808, consisting of 6 members, was the third to graduate from the infant institution. Governor William George Crosby, who graduated in 1823, also at Bowdoin, was the first man born in Belfast to enter college.

Since their time, except for the few years preceding and during the Civil War, Belfast men have been entering college in steadily increasing numbers each year. Before 1846, the college attendance averaged about 2 students every three years; from 1846 to 1874 (excepting the period 1857-63) 1 nearly every year; and from 1874 to 1900, 3 students a year. Many influences have contributed to this increase, but two stand out as most important, namely, the change in the State school-system in 1846, and the wider range of opportunities offered by the founding of technical schools and women's colleges. In the promptness with which she took advantage of these increasing opportunities for the higher education of women, Belfast has a particularly creditable record. Three years after Wellesley became a college, Miss Isabella Gordon Poor matriculated there, and studied for one year; while Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley, who received the degree of A.B. from Wellesley in 1891, was the first Belfast woman to graduate from any college. For the nine years following that date to 1900, the number of women students have averaged about 2 each year. Of the 26 women students, 18 have become teachers, 3 musicians, 3 librarians, and 1 a physician, and 11 have received collegiate degrees.

That a number of the students of both sexes graduated with high honors, and that not a few are members of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, is evident from data that have come to hand in the course of compiling this chapter; but as the facts covering all cases have not been ascertained, it has been thought best to omit entirely these distinctions.

Of the 107 men who received degrees, 22 became lawyers, 20 physicians and dentists, 4 clergymen, 3 pharmacists, and 1 a naval architect. Of the native-born students of the later period, 1875 to 1900, 3 have become professors, 3 others are college instructors, and 1 each a judge, a graduate of Annapolis, and of West Point, and a composer of music, while one has founded a school that stands foremost in its particular branch of training. The number who have entered the learned professions since 1874 is proportionately less than that in the earlier period, and their choice of professions shows a relative change that is noteworthy. Before 1874, law outranked medicine by three to one; while since then, medicine has taken precedence over law, and the absolute number in the ministry during both periods has remained the same. That this tendency is not peculiar to Belfast, but is prevalent throughout the country, is indicated by the United States Census of 1910. Finally, it is worthy of note that the following list of students contains the names of many families who were prominent in the town during its early history, and enough of their records is given to indicate that the standards of scholarship set by our ancestors have not been forgotten by their descendants in this generation.

- 1871.¹ Winslow, William Henry, M.D. Jefferson Med. Coll.; M.D. Univ. of Penn., 1874; Ph.D., 1875.

EDUCATIONAL HISTORY — SCHOOLS

System, 1875-1894 — Sums raised for Schools — Mill Tax — Principals of Grammar Schools — Free Textbooks — Flags displayed from School-Houses — Abolition of School Districts — Valuation of School-Houses — Academy — School Committee — Osman C. Evans, Superintendent — Number of Scholars — First Public Conveyance of Scholars to Central Schools — First School-Board Report — Francis S. Brick chosen Superintendent — Grade System — Flag-Raisings — School-House Bells — Kindergarten — Amount raised for Education — John Riley Dunton chosen Superintendent — Bequests of Mrs. Dana (Mary Emeline Simpson) Southworth and Mrs. Charles Woodbury (Emma Lena Peirce) Frederick — Teachers in 1900.

UNTIL 1894, Belfast was divided into fourteen school districts, the limits of which were fixed annually. The thickly settled portions constituted Districts 4 and 5, afterwards called the Central District. A school committee, and sometimes a supervisor, had the general superintendence of instruction, discipline, and the like, while the more practical duties of expending money, providing teachers, and caring for school-houses devolved upon agents elected by each district. Towns were obliged to raise for the support of schools an annual sum of not less than eighty cents for every inhabitant, but any district might vote to increase this proportion. A tax of one mill per dollar upon all the property in the State, known as the "Mill Tax," was first authorized in 1872, the amount being distributed according to the number of scholars. Under this system, from 1875 to 1894, Belfast raised $5000 each year, and received about $3000 from the State. In 1894, the sum voted by taxation was increased $8300, and has not been diminished since.

School meetings, particularly in the Central District, were formerly well attended. In the choice of agents and in raising money, the contests and discussions resembled those of the old town meetings.

In 1876, examination papers from all the schools, drawings, compositions, and photographs of school-houses were contributed to the Centennial Exhibition in Philadelphia, by request of the State Educational Department.

1882. A census of the Central District, taken by Mr. Herbert Tobey Field, showed 845 pupils. In December the Waldo County Educational Association met here, under the charge of Nelson A. Luce, State Superintendent. Mr. John Riley Dunton, of Searsmont, was chosen principal of the Upper Grammar School in place of Mr. Stroud, resigned, and remained until succeeded by Mr. William Campbell Crawford, in 1884.

1885. Mr. Benjamin J. Hines, of Fairfield, was engaged as principal of the Upper Grammar School. During the year, a writing-school was opened by Professor A. R. Dunton, who gave similar instruction here in 1838.

1886. Mr. John W. Mitchell taught the Upper Grammar School. The following year, Mr. Frederick Wording Brown took his place.

1891. In conformity to a new law, the sum of $1500 was expended by the school committee for free textbooks. This year, flags were raised with appropriate exercises over the High, Grammar, and both Primary school buildings. That for the South Primary was presented by Horatio Johnson Locke, Horatio Palmer Thompson, and Charles Albert Pilsbury, in memory of their old school days; Miss Annette White and others furnishing the staff.

In 1893, important changes in the state and municipal school laws took place. The district system was abolished, and towns assumed charge of all school-houses and other school property, paying for the same at an appraised value, and remitting such value to the taxpayers of each district. The valuation of the school buildings in our fourteen districts was $20,000; those in the Central District being appraised at $13,611. This was exclusive of the South Primary building, the title of which is in the trustees of the old Belfast Academy.

By a special act of the Legislature, Belfast was authorized to elect a school committee of two from each ward, who were requested to choose a superintendent with a fixed salary. The act was accepted by the city in January, 1894.

This year, Herbert Elisha Ellis taught the Upper Grammar School in place of Frederick Wording Brown. Musical instruction in all the schools, under the direction of Mrs. Elbridge Simmons Pitcher, proved successful and satisfactory.

1894. Under the new law, a school committee was chosen at the municipal election for the first time, as follows: Ami Cutter Sibley, James Howard Howes, Elbridge Simmons Pitcher, Arthur Irving Brown, Horace Albert Perkins, Charles Franklin Ginn, Eli Carr Merriam, Walter Gilmore Hatch, Walter Basdwin Rankin, Elisha W. Ellis, who elected Osman C. Evans, of Cape Elizabeth, a graduate of Bowdoin College in 1876, superintendent at a salary of $1000. The number of scholars was 1355. A successful evening school was conducted in the winter by Herbert Elisha Ellis.

1895. The school census taken in May gave 1566 scholars; a gain of 212 over the number recorded for the previous year, and consequently an increase of $530 on the amount of money received from the State Mill Tax. The committee suspended several of the schools outside of the city proper, and for the first time provided for the conveyance of scholars to the Central schools. A report of the school board for the municipal year appeared in an octavo pamphlet of thirty-nine pages. This was the first publication of the kind.

Herbert Elisha Ellis and Miss Grace Agnes Lord were teachers of the Upper Grammar School for 1894-95.

1896. Mr. Evans having resigned as Superintendent, Francis S. Brick, of Bernardston, Massachusetts, was chosen in his place. Professor Brick graduated at the University of Maine in 1888, and had been a teacher for ten years.

1897. A full account of the schools appeared in the annual report of the committee. A nine-grade system was adopted with success. The cost of transporting scholars for the year was $730. Two flag-raising occurred; at the Board Landing and Hayford Schools.

1898. This year, the bell on the High School building was transferred to the school-house at the Head of the Tide, and one of three hundred and ninety pounds weight was substituted. It was placed on the Grammar school-house. A bell was also hung on the brick school-house in East Belfast.

1899. Extensive repairs on the South Primary School (the old Academy) building were made. The Perkins and Hassell school-houses were sold. During the summer vacation a school for backward pupils in the lower grades was maintained. There was also a kindergarten under the instruction of Miss Weeks. This year the Belfast Teachers' Club, organized for mutual improvement, arranged a course of lectures in the High-School room. The sum of $3093 was received from the State Mill Fund, which, with $10,500 raised by taxation, made $13,593 expended for educational purposes.

Mrs. Dana (Mary Emeline Simpson) Southworth, who died in 1895, made a bequest to the Central School District, for the erection of a school-house. Before her decease, school districts were abolished. The Supreme Court decided, that the Central District having ceased to exist, her bequest lapsed, and descended to her heirs.

Another bequest for school purposes was made by the will of Mrs. Charles Woodbury (Emma Lena Peirce) Frederick, whose death took place October 14, 1890. It gave to the city Hayford Block, and the property adjoining the same, to take effect when her husband, Charles Woodbury Frederick, arrived at the age of fifty-five years, or at his decease, should he die before reaching that age; the property to be sold, and its proceeds used for the purpose of building a school-house; the legacy being in memory of her father and mother, and the building to be known as the Peirce School. In 1900, the interest of the city in this property was insured for $15,000.

The following account of the Schools and their buildings is taken from the "Republican Journal" of September 13, 1900, and is of interest as showing the condition of things at that date:

THE NEW SCHOOL YEAR

The city schools opened Monday morning for the fall term, with the exception of the South Primary, which opened Tuesday. There was no afternoon session Monday, and Superintendent Dunton held a teachers' meeting. All the school-rooms were in fine order, showing a great amount of work done during the vacation by the janitor of the city schools, Mr. Henry W. Marriner. The cellars in the North and South Primary buildings have been cemented, and all the desks, tables, and chairs in these buildings varnished or shellacked and the woodwork painted. The school-rooms on the Common have been papered as well, and minor repairs made wherever needed. All this has been done at no cost to the city except for the material used. The High School is still crowded, and as there are not seats enough for all the pupils the senior class must be dismissed after recitation. Forty pupils are to be crowded into one room that cannot properly accommodate twenty, and twenty in another room that is hardly sufficient for ten. If the hall above could be utilized, as it might at small expense, the conditions would be greatly improved.

There are several changes in the corps of teachers since last term. Following is the present list:—

High School, William Russell Howard, Misses Caroline Williams Field and Ellen Dutton Townsend.

Upper Grammar School, Herbert Elisha Ellis, Miss Grace Agnes Lord.

Lower Grammar School, Misses Mary A. Mason and Bertha I. Bird.

Central Intermediate School, Mrs. Lizzie S. Hall, Miss May Ella Folsom.

South Intermediate School, Miss Juliett A. Wiggin, Mrs. Ida Birdie Smalley.

South Primary School, Misses Alberta Wadsworth and Marian Hayford.

North Primary School, Misses Grace Ellen Walton, Annie Leila Chaples and Ida F. Roberts. (Miss Roberts is ill and her place is temporarily supplied by Miss Cordelia Hills.)

Head of Tide School, Grammar, Miss Edith M. Ladd; Primary, Miss Arline Burdeen Walton.

Brick School, Grammar, Augustus Daniel Hayes; Primary, Miss Clara Lillian Spinney.

White School, Miss Mamie Woodbury.

City Point School, Miss Harriet Kimball.

Poor's Mills School, Miss Carrie Sheldon.

Hayford School, Mrs. Abbie L. Moody.

Board Landing School, Mrs. Samuel Adams.

Pitcher School, Alphonso Wood.

Music Teacher, Mrs. Elbridge Simmons Pitcher.

Leonard L. Gentner is employed to transport scholars in the Waldo Avenue and Hartson Districts. He has a fine large barge of modern construction for the Waldo Avenue route, and good teams and harnesses and careful drivers for both routes.

CHAPTER XVI

EDUCATIONAL HISTORY — HIGH SCHOOL

Graduating Classes and their Public Exercises, 1877-1900 — Teachers — Statistics of Attendance — New Bell — List of Graduates — Old Masonic Hall utilized for Recitations.

THE teachers in the High School in 1875 were William Augustus Huston, principal, and Miss Fannie White, assistant.

In 1877, at the close of the school year, exercises were held in the North Church. The teachers this year were Augustus Hill Kelley, principal, and Miss Susan Catherine Starrett, assistant.

In 1878, the first regular public exercises of the graduating class took place June 28, at Hayford Hall.

In 1879, five graduates took diplomas — all young ladies. The Valedictory was by Miss Mary Emma Pierce, and the Class Ode was by Miss Emma Lena Peirce.

1880. The graduating class this year was composed of six young ladies, each of whom was dressed in dark silk, the class color, cardinal, being represented. Miss Arminta Jane Kittredge delivered the Salutatory, and Miss Hattie Bates, the Valedictory.

1881. Eight young ladies and four young men constituted the graduating class of this year. Four years before it numbered thirty. Miss Ellen Rosina Ross had the Salutatory Essay, and Miss Cora Frances Beckett, the Valedictory. The Class Ode was by Miss Susie Marie Partridge.

1882. The following statistics since 1874 showed that the High School was steadily gaining: —

	Full Attendance	Average Attendance
1875-76	96	73½
1876-77	81	64½
1877-78	74	63½
1878-79	73	63½
1879-80	90	81
1880-81	98	74½

Average enrollment, 87 2-7; average attendance, 70 3-7.

The graduating class this year numbered six, and its exercises took place at the school-room. The Salutatory was by Miss Cora Abigail Eames, the Valedictory by Miss Kate Laura Rankin, and the Ode by Miss Emily Frothingham Miller. The following evening an address was given by Rev. George Warren Field.

With the fall term, William C. Curtis, of Winterport, a graduate of Boston University, took charge of the school, in the place of Mr. Augustus Hill Kelley, and remained until January. During the seven years that the latter had charge, he had proved a most efficient teacher. The course of four years and public graduating exercises were inaugurated by him. In August, the mixed course of study was dropped; leaving three courses to be pursued, one each in English, Classical, and Business studies.

1883. The graduating class of this year numbered eleven. The exercises took place at the school-room, and a ball and reception were given in the evening at Peirce's Hall. William Rhodes Marshall was the Salutatorian, and Miss Alma Enna Cottrell gave the Valedictory. The teachers were John Frank Rich, principal, and Misses Susan Catherine Starrett and Mary Patten Beaman, assistants.

In 1884, the graduating exercises of the class of twelve took place at the Opera House. Joseph Williamson, Jr., had the Salutatory, and Miss Lilian Pamela Robbins, the Valedictory. A little paper called "The Leviathan" was published by the school this year. There was no change in teachers.

1885. Six young ladies and two young men graduated this year. Miss Maud Eliza Mathews gave the Salutatory, and Miss Charlotte Thorndike Sibley, the Valedictory. The Ode was by Miss Sarah Withington Francis. Miss Susan Catherine Starrett resigned as assistant.

1886. Of twenty-seven who entered the class in 1882, only eight graduated this year. Ralph Holbrook Wight delivered the Salutatory Essay, and Miss Evelyn Antoinette Cottrell, the Valedictory. The Class Ode was by Miss Susie Durham Black. The teachers were John Frank Rich, principal, and Misses Mary Perry French and Elizabeth Maltby Pond, assistants.

1887. The graduating class of this year numbered nine, of whom eight were young ladies. The Salutatory Essay was by Albert Linwood Herrick, and the Valedictory by Miss Ellen Marie Harmon. Miss Lilian Pamela Robbins succeeded Miss Elizabeth Maltby Pond as assistant teacher.

In 1888, although the graduating class commenced the year with ten members, but two continued to complete the course, Francis James Starrett, who gave the Salutatory, and Miss Marianna Robbins, the Valedictory. The exercises were at the school-room. In January, an organization of the class of 1884 was formed.

1889. Graduating exercises were held at the Opera House this year, and the class numbered seventeen. The Salutatory Essay was by Miss Harriet Ellen Robbins, and the Valedictory by Miss Caroline Williams Field.

1890. The graduates numbered but three this year. Miss Florida Burgess McKeen read the Salutatory Essay, and Miss Mabel Blanche Cushman, the Valedictory. In March, public exercises of a flag presentation took place.

In 1891, one of the largest classes for years graduated, consisting of twelve members. Exercises were given in the Opera House. Miss Bertha Fidelia Hadley was the Salutatorian, and Miss Gertrude Ferguson had the Valedictory Essay. The Odist was Maurice Evan Davidson.

1892. Eight members comprised the graduating class this year. The exercises were held at the Opera House. Miss Clara Lillian Spinney gave the Salutatory, and Miss Sara Arline Russ, the valedictory. The Ode was by Miss Sallie Burgess Durham.

1893. This graduating class consisted of nine members. Miss Sabina Caroline Morey gave the Salutatory Essay, and Miss Charlotte Benson Frost, the Valedictory. There were changes of teachers this year, Mr. Reuben Lowell Ilsley, Misses Jane Angeline McLellan and Adeline May Wescott succeeding Mr. Frank Wallace Chase and Miss Lilian Pamela Robbins.

1894. Eleven students graduated this year. The Latin Salutatory was delivered by Miss Annie Leonora Barr, and the Valedictory by Fred Wesley Bailey. Following the exercises at the Opera House was a reception at the Crosby Inn.

1895. The essays this year were not read in public. In their place was a concert, after which the diplomas were awarded. The teachers this year were Mr. Reuben Lowell Ilsley, principal, and Miss Jane Angeline McLellan and Miss Caroline Williams Field, A.B. Wellesley, 1894, assistants.

1896. Miss McLellan, now Mrs. James Faulkner Preston, of Lowell, Massachusetts, left the Belfast High School to teach French in the Dorchester High School, Boston, in April, 1896, and remained there until May, 1907, at the head of the Department of French. She studied in Paris and Blois, France, during the summers of 1897 and 1904.

A class of four young ladies graduated this year. The Salutatory Essay was read by Miss Lena Peirce Ellis, and the Valedictory by Miss Jessica Josephine Haskell. The Class Ode was by Miss Delia Hatch Pendleton. Miss Ellen Dutton Townsend, of New Haven, a graduate of Wellesley, A.B. 1894, was chosen assistant teacher this year.

1897. The largest class in the history of the school graduated this year; twelve young ladies and eight young men. Miss Margaret Nickerson Hazeltine pronounced the Salutatory, and Miss Addie Stimpson Gordon, the Valedictory. The Class Poem and Ode were by Harold Thorndike Sibley.

1898. Eight young ladies and six young men graduated in this year's class. The Salutatory Essay was by Miss Arline Burdeen Walton, and the Valedictory by Miss Louise Whitney Richards. The teachers were Hugh Dean McLellan, Miss Caroline Williams Field, and Miss Ellen Dutton Townsend.

In March, the school bell was transferred to the Head of the Tide school-house. Its place was supplied by a new one of steel alloy, weighing three hundred and ninety pounds, which was placed upon the Upper Grammar School building on the common.

1899. Nineteen students graduated this year. Miss Edith Farrar Dunton gave the Salutatory Essay, and Miss Mary Helen Bird, the Valedictory. The words and music of the Class Ode were by Miss Cleora Rosa Haney. In August, Mr. Hugh Dean McLellan having resigned as principal, Mr. William Russell Howard was chosen his successor.

1900. This graduating class numbered seventeen. The Salutatory was by Miss Jane Brown, and the Valedictory by Miss Helen Brown. Harold Elmer Bailey wrote the Class Ode. At the close of the year, the teachers were William Russell Howard, principal; Misses Caroline Williams Field and Ellen Dutton Townsend, assistants. The crowded condition of the school-room, at the close of 1900, caused the utilization of the old Masonic Hall, in the third story of the building, for recitation purposes. This hall had been leased to the Masonic bodies for ninety-nine years; but after the erection of the Masonic Temple, it was relinquished to the city.

GRADUATES

From 1875 to 1878, the school may be considered as an ungraded High School. The following is an incomplete, unclassified list of students who attended it during that period:—

In 1894 she opened a shorthand school in the Exchange Building, where she remained until 1905, when she moved to the Kimball Building. In 1911 the growth of the Pierce School demanded larger quarters, and it was removed to the new Lawrence Building, corner of West and Tremont streets, where it now occupies the greater part of the eleventh floor.

IN 1875, three newspapers were published in Belfast, all weeklies, the "Republican Journal," Democratic, of which William Henry Simpson was editor and proprietor, at its present location on Church Street; the "Progressive Age," Republican, owned and edited by William Maxfield Rust, and having an office in the third story of City Block; and the "Belfast Advertiser," devoted to news and advertisements. George Washington Burgess was the owner of the latter, and George Emerson Brackett was editor. The office was in Hayford Block.

REPUBLICAN JOURNAL

The 6th of February, 1879, completed the fiftieth year since the publication of the "Journal" commenced, the first number having been issued February 6, 1829. The event was commemorated by an able editorial of retrospection and of contrast between the old time and the new.

Displeased with some of the Democratic financial tendencies and with the course of certain local members, the "Journal" gradually drifted towards the principles of the Republican party, and on the 3d of July, 1879, announced its future advocacy of the latter. This was a strange transformation, and the more so, because a little later the "Progressive Age," always a strong supporter of the doctrines assumed by the "Journal," embraced those of the Greenback party, and soon became a full-fledged Democratic paper.

With the issue of September 30, 1880, Mr. Simpson, after twenty-two years' service, retired from his editorship.

A corporation, called the Republican Journal Publishing Company, was formed, a portion of the stock being taken by Charles Albert Pilsbury and Russell Glover Dyer. The former became editor-in-chief and business manager, and the latter conducted the local department.

In October, 1883, the paper was enlarged by the addition of a column to each page, and a proportionate increase in length.

With the commencement of 1892, the size was changed from a folio of four pages to a quarto of eight, and a new press substituted for the old one. During the year an extension to the building in the rear was erected, for the press, engine, and boiler. In October, Mr. Dyer, the local editor, resigned, to enter the employ of the Dana Sarsaparilla Company. His successor was John Sumner Fernald, who still occupies the position (1900).

WILLIAM HENRY SIMPSON

(From the Annual Report of the Maine Press Association, 1886)

WILLIAM HENRY SIMPSON, late a member of this Association, was born in Belfast, Maine, 24 September, 1825. His father was Captain Josiah Simpson, a native of Sullivan, and a resident of Belfast from 1818 till his death in 1863. William received a common-school education, principally at the Belfast High School, but was an apt pupil, a great reader, and possessed of a natural taste for literature. At about fifteen years of age he entered upon an apprenticeship in the composing-room of the "Belfast Republican Journal," then published by Cyrus Rowe, where he remained several years, fully mastering the practical details of the profession which he had chosen. He was afterwards engaged for a short time on the "Waldo Signal," at Belfast. In 1846, he was foreman on the "Lime Rock Gazette," published in Rockland, and for a time was reporter on the "Boston Post." In 1850, in company with W. H. Wheeler, he purchased the "Kennebec Journal" at Augusta, purchasing his partner's interest in 1853, and selling the paper in 1854 to James Gillespie Blaine and Joseph Baker.

In May, 1858, Mr. Simpson purchased the "Belfast Republican Journal," his salutatory appearing in the issue of 7 May, and from that date until October, 1880, he was editor and proprietor. Indeed, it may be said he was the "Republican Journal," so closely was he identified with it, and so indelibly was it stamped with his individuality. It is not a stretch of imagination to say it was Simpson's paper. He seemed to possess, in a large degree, the qualifications for his profession which are born in the man and not added to him. Besides, he had the advantage of a thorough knowledge of the mechanical details of publishing a

Politically, he came from Whig stock, but after the disorganization of the Whig party, he was a member of the Democratic party for years, and his paper was an able exponent of its doctrine; but in 1879 the policy of the paper was changed to Republican. He was a ready writer, possessed of a keen wit, a retentive memory, an aptness of illustration, and much dreaded as a controversialist. His high order of executive ability was indicated in his office routine, his establishment from the quad-box to the Hoe press, and from the devil to the foreman, being the best of its kind, and a model as a whole.

Mr. Simpson never married. He seemed not to care for travel, but was wedded to home comforts, and spent most of his time and life at the pleasant family residence in Belfast. He was not a seeker for public or political honors and offices, and was often tempted to declare that the only office he wanted was his newspaper office. Still he was not backward in sustaining local business enterprises, or in partaking of social duties and pleasures. In 1848 he was interested in the Maine Telegraph Company, was its first operator in Belfast, and subsequently became a director of the company. He was also a director in the Belfast & Moosehead Lake Railroad Company, and in 1876 was Commissioner from Maine to the Centennial Exposition.

He died 3 November, 1882, and I cannot more fittingly close this brief notice than by quoting from his address before this Association in 1876. The words were prophetic. Speaking of the country editor, he said: "His life fulfils the injunction, 'Act well your part, there all the honour lies.' And when the reversed rules of his paper tell us that its editor has passed beyond the dark curtain that shrouds the illimitable future, the sympathetic tear that springs in the eyes of many households where he was known and appreciated, will be the tribute of respect to the memory of a friend and a good man, and testify that the world is better for his having lived in it."

George Emerson Brackett.

CHARLES ALBERT PILSBURY, about forty years of age, when he became connected with the "Republican Journal," is a native of Calais, and the son of the late Hon. Albert Pilsbury, a prominent lawyer and politician of eastern Maine, who died in Halifax, N. S., in 1872, having been Consul there under Presidents Pierce and Buchanan. His mother was a Belfast lady, the daughter of the late Zacheus Porter. Mr. Pilsbury had been clerk of an important congressional committee. For ten years he acted as the Washington correspondent of several leading papers in New York and other cities, and at one time edited the Washington "Sunday Herald." His newspaper career embraced the following: In New Orleans from December, 1865, to May, 1868; editorial and literary contributor to the "New Orleans Daily Times"; contributor to "DeBow's Review." In Baltimore, May, 1868, to May, 1869; night editor of the "Baltimore Gazette," correspondent for the "New Orleans Times." In Washington, D. C., May, 1869, to May 1879; correspondent of the "New Orleans Times," "Baltimore Gazette," "Savannah News," "Mobile Register," "Atlanta Constitution," etc.: and managing editor of the "Sunday Herald"; on the editorial staff of the "Daily Union"; congressional reporter of the "National Union" (daily); as well as special correspondent for New York and Western papers. He continues to edit the Republican Journal. (1913.)

RUSSELL GLOVER DYER was born in North Haven, Maine, 19 November, 1844, and died 19 April, 1911. He entered the navy, joining the bark Ethan Allen and served two years during the Civil War. In January, 1868, he became connected with the "Journal" in the composing-room, and later was made city editor. In 1889 he went to Portland as Grand Secretary of the Odd Fellows' organization.

PROGRESSIVE AGE

In 1878, the "Age," whose support of Republican principles had been for some time wavering, renounced its allegiance, and became the organ of the new Greenback party. In 1883, the paper was enlarged in length and width, increasing its size to the extent of three columns. From 1880 to 1886, John Sumner Fernald was the local editor. Upon the death, in June, 1888, of Hon. William Maxfield Rust, its editor and proprietor, it was managed by Lucius Holcomb Murch, its former local editor, assisted by J. W. Emery. At the beginning of Volume 35, in September, the establishment was sold to the Pendleton Brothers, of Islesboro, one of whom, Mark P., became its editor. Mr. Pendleton was the younger son of Mark Pendleton, of Islesboro. He graduated at the Maine Wesleyan Seminary, and was a young man of ability and experience as a writer. Mr. Pendleton having been elected to the Legislature from his native town, Mr. Murch acted as editor during his enforced absence. In 1889, the office was moved to Nos. 56 and 58 High Street.

The paper had always been a folio sheet of four pages. In Christmas week, 1891, it adopted the quarto size, having ten pages of six columns each. A new heading, drawn by Percy Sanborn, gave an engraving of the city. On December 14, 1893, the establishment was sold to a corporation called the Belfast Age Publishing Company. Hon. William Pitt Thompson acted as editor for a year, and Charles Swan Bickford was business manager until the following February. Frank H. Colley was local editor. Frank I. Wilson took charge as editor-in-chief upon the retirement of Mr. Thompson. Wayland Knowlton, Esq., was local editor; Orrin Joseph Dickey, of Northport, took his place in September, 1895. Under the new régime, two more pages were added. In October, 1896, the office was transferred to Peirce's Parlor Theatre, at the corner of Main and Franklin streets. On the 19th of February, 1899, its plant was entirely destroyed by fire. Although the loss was partially covered by insurance, the publication of the paper ceased. Mr. Wilson removed to Massachusetts.

WILLIAM MAXFIELD RUST

(From the Annual Report of the Maine Press Association, 1889)

WILLIAM MAXFIELD RUST, formerly a member of this Association, was born in Washington, Maine, 14 December, 1818, and died at Belfast, Maine, 14 June, 1888, in the seventieth year of his age. His father was William Rust, of Boothbay; his grandfather was a soldier of the Revolution; and politically he came of Democratic stock.

Mr. Rust received only a common-school education with an academical fitting, and was a successful teacher for several years. He studied law in the forties, and was admitted to the Lincoln Bar in 1845, practicing in Washington, then in Damariscotta in 1851. In 1852 he removed to Belfast, where he resided till his death. He commenced the practice of law at Belfast, but soon abandoned it for the editorial profession, in which he labored for thirty-five years.

In 1854, 1 July, the first number of the "Progressive Age" was issued as a campaign sheet, with Mr. Rust as one of its principal contributors, and in October of the same year it was permanently established with him as editor and one of the publishers, and three years later he became sole proprietor and editor, which position he retained until his death.

The "Age" was started as an exponent of the principles of the then new Republican party, and for many years was an able advocate of those principles, but in 1878, Mr. Rust differed from the party on the currency question and ably and boldly supported the Greenback theory and party. In 1880 and 1884, he espoused the doctrine of modern Democracy, and his paper continued to advocate the principles of that party.

Mr. Rust occupied many positions of trust and honor, local, county, and State. In 1859, he was attorney of Waldo County; in 1868-69 he represented Belfast in the Legislature and took a prominent position in that body; in 1875, he was one of the Amendment Commissioners, and also Judge of Probate for Waldo County; in 1883, State Senator from Waldo County.

There were but few in Maine who had so many years' continuous service in editorial work as he, and he was reckoned as one of the ablest. His editorials showed force and originality, and one thing could always be said of him — he had the courage of his convictions, and never hesitated to advocate by pen and speech whatever he claimed to be right.

It was my fortune to have been personally acquainted with him for many years, and though to strangers he often seemed to present an appearance of brusqueness, and sometimes of apparent unsociableness, yet I can testify that to his friends and associates such appearances were deceitful, and in his home, as a husband and parent, his nature and character were of the kindest, and most agreeable and affectionate.

His later years of life evidently seemed to have been rendered somewhat unsatisfactory by failure to obtain political preferment to which it seemed to us he was entitled as a party worker and leader.

He had a love for newspaper work, and it may truly be said he died in the harness, as he lived, and as he must have wished the end to be, for the very last issue of his paper, prior to his death, contained evidences of his lifework. He was a worker to the end. (See also p. 139.)

MISCELLANEOUS PUBLICATIONS

BELFAST WEEKLY ADVERTISER. This paper, after an existence of five years, appeared on January 18, 1876, on a half-sheet, which announced its indefinite suspension.

THE BULLETIN AND BELFAST ADVERTISER, a neatly printed, eight-page monthly, was established by George Emerson Brackett, July 1, 1878, with a subscription price of fifty cents a year.

THE MAINE TEMPERANCE RECORD, an eight-page quarto semi-monthly sheet, devoted to the temperance cause, and published at one dollar a year, was established by George Emerson Brackett, in January, 1884, and still continues.

THE SEA BREEZE, devoted to the interests of the Northport Camp Ground, and published during the season there, first appeared in July, 1879. Charles J. Burgess was its first publisher, and J. L. Williams, editor. Two years later, George Emerson Brackett & Company became its editors and proprietors, and George Washington Burgess was its printer. It has been twice enlarged. In 1883, it was published in quarto form on tinted paper, with pages twelve by nine inches: four columns to a page. Its regular publication ceased in 1894, but an occasional whiff, on holidays or the like, is still felt, with a cheery blast at Christmas-time.

THE TAX-PAYER, a local campaign paper, was published semi-monthly for a short time. The first number is dated January 4, 1882. Its purpose, as stated, was a readjustment between the city and the Moosehead Lake Railroad Company. In addition to the editor-in-chief, it had nine associates.

With the close of 1883, the "Searsport Guest," "Castine Visitor," and "Liberty Local," three small papers devoted to the interests of the towns whose names they respectively bore, and printed by Charles J. Burgess & Company, were suspended, after a brief existence. They were folios, size, twenty-two by fourteen inches, and the same matter was used for the outside pages of all.

THE BELFAST CITY PRESS, a folio of four pages, twenty-nine by twenty-three inches, first appeared August 24, 1886. It was owned by a corporation, called the Belfast Publishing Company, of which Charles Baker was president. Hon. Emery Boardman, assisted by John Sumner Fernald, were at the heads of the editorial department. Its existence was brought about by the unfortunate local railroad dividend contest. It continued until January, 1889, being then merged in the "Progressive Age."

THE MISSION FIELD REPORTER, a quarterly magazine, edited by Rev. R. H. Bolton, a missionary of the Church of God, was issued during a portion of 1893, from the "Belfast Age" job office.

THE PATRIOT, a weekly paper, edited by Wayland Knowlton, and published by the Patriot Publishing Company, made its appearance January 16, 1896. It was a seven-column folio, with patent outside, and advocated the Populist cause. It disappeared after a brief and irregular career.

THE CREAM. This was the title of a monthly publication, the first number of which appeared in January, 1897. It had twenty-one pages, eleven by sixteen inches in size, with four columns to the page, inclosed in an attractive cover. The subscription price was one dollar per year. The paper was made up of stories, poetry, and family reading-matter. Of the first issue twenty-five thousand copies were printed. Hon. E. F. Hanson was editor and business manager. It suspended publication in June, 1898, and the Belfast Cream Company, a corporation which was its publisher, went into the hands of a receiver.

TWILIGHT, a monthly paper of twelve pages in magazine form, was commenced in September, 1899, with E. E. Pilsbury as editor and publisher.

THE GIRLS' HOME, a paper issued quarterly under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society of Maine, was first published in July, 1896. The editorial committee consisted of Mrs. Eliza A. Dickerson Burrington, Rev. George Sherman Mills, of Belfast; Mrs. Georgia Pulsifer Porter, of Oldtown; Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, of Caribou. The object of the paper is to further the interest of the "Belfast Home for Friendless Girls."

THE RECRUIT. This was a small monthly, established in 1897 in the interest of the Sons of Veterans, the editor being Orrin Joseph Dickey. On 19 February, 1899, with the destruction of the "Age" office, where it was printed, its publication ceased.

In May, 1898, during the Spanish difficulties a small sheet, called the "Daily Bulletin," and containing the latest telegraphic war news, was issued by the Belfast Printing Company. It was of short duration.

The only other newspapers published in Waldo County during the past quarter of a century were the "Weekly News," a four-column quarto, issued at Searsport, from August, 1893, to August, 1894; the "Winterport Advertiser," a semi-monthly quarto, begun in 1894, and still existing (1900), and the "Yankee Blade," which was published weekly at Brooks from December, 1895, to November, 1898, and afterwards monthly until its removal to Waterville in the fall of 1899. "The Farmers' Exchange" was published at Brooks in 1872-73.

For the first time, on June 23, 1880, Boston Sunday newspapers were sold in Belfast the day of their issue. They arrived early in the afternoon by a hand-car from Burnham.

BELFAST MEN CONNECTED WITH NEWSPAPERS ELSEWHERE

In 1890, Charles Swan Bickford bought an interest in the "Brunswick Telegraph."

Edward Havener Kelley. Born 27 September, 1869; graduated from the Belfast High School in 1886, and from the University of Maine in 1890. He engaged at once in journalism in which he still continues, having been for a number of years managing editor of the "Bangor Commercial," Bangor, Maine.

CHAPTER XIX

Founded by Paul Richard Hazeltine — Erection of Building — Description — Application of Wilson Fund — First Trustees — Librarians — Donation by Mrs. Richard (Ann Maria Crosby) Chenery — Portrait of the Founder — Donation from Rev. George Warren Field — Portrait of Nathaniel Wilson — Branch Library at Citypoint — Bequest of Rev. George Warren Field — Donation by Mr. Albert Crane in Memory of Albert Boyd Otis — Statistics — Bulletins — First Catalogue — Statement of Funds.

AMONG the numerous charitable bequests made by Paul Richard Hazeltine, who died 18 March, 1878, was the following: —

At the decease of my wife, Harriet H. Hazeltine, I give and bequeath to Belfast, in the State of Maine, my adopted town, $20,000 for a Public Library, the use of which to be forever free to the inhabitants of said town, under certain necessary restrictions, to be agreed on by the regularly authorized authorities of said town or city for the time being, and for the proper management of said bequest. I direct that a handsome, substantial, fireproof building be erected on some suitable spot in said city, sufficiently large for such library, with a polished marble slab or block placed in the front of said building, inscribed, —

BELFAST FREE LIBRARY

By P. R. HAZELTINE

His widow survived him until 1884. Two years later, the amount of his bequest was received by the city, which purchased for one thousand dollars a quarter of an acre of land at the westerly corner of High and Miller streets, as a site for the Library building. This lot was the homestead of Robert Miller, one of the first settlers, and the dwelling house erected by him in 1792, and which was the oldest one in the city proper, then occupied its original position. It was sold for seventy dollars, and was moved to Bridge Street.

By a vote of the City Council, the erection of the building was entrusted to a committee of that board, consisting of Cyrus James Hall, Albert Leslie Mudgett, and Charles W. Rogers, in accordance with plans drawn by Julius Munchwitz, of New York. A contract for the building in the sum of $8775 was awarded to James Thomas Pottle, and the work was completed in November, 1887.

The body of the structure is of red granite, and the finish and trimmings are of Somerville gray granite. The building is one story high with a basement, and has a frontage of fifty-six feet on High Street and of thirty-two on Miller. The rooms are nineteen feet in height. It is estimated that the bookroom has a capacity of fourteen thousand volumes.

Shortly before the Hazeltine bequest accrued, by the death of Mrs. Nancy Green, the last surviving sister of the late Nathaniel Wilson, which occurred 30 November, 1885, the city became entitled to the bequest made by Mr. Wilson for educational purposes, as is set forth in volume I of the "History of Belfast." The sum received was $31,811.43, which, combined with $9000, the balance of the Hazeltine Fund of $20,000, amounted to $40,811.43, only the income of which, by the terms of the two bequests, could be expended, leaving the principal forever intact.

As legislation seemed necessary for the proper management of these sums, an act, passed in 1887, authorized the selection by the city of five trustees, who should annually determine the means of popular instruction for which the income of the Wilson Fund should be appropriated, and Joseph Williamson, William Colburn Marshall, Albert Cargill Burgess, Ben Hazeltine, and Calvin Hervey were first chosen.

With Miss Elizabeth Maltby Pond as librarian and Miss Annie Veazie Field as assistant, the Library was opened to the public on the 1st day of May, 1888. The number of books was then 2033, of which 620 volumes were the gift of Mrs. Richard Chenery. An oil portrait of the founder was presented by Mr. Charles Bellows Hazeltine.

In 1889, the Library received a donation of books valued at one thousand dollars, from Rev. George Warren Field, of Bangor, in memory of his mother, the late Mrs. Abigail (Davis) Field.

In June, 1898, an oil portrait of Nathaniel Wilson was placed in the reading-room. It was copied from an old daguerreotype, and citizens who remembered Lieutenant Wilson pronounce the features, expression, and coloring as faithful in resemblance. The artist was Mr. Ernest L. Ipsen, of Boston. Including the frame, the portrait cost $232, and was paid for by the accumulation of moneys received for fines.¹

This year a branch library was established at Citypoint, and maintained for two years.

In 1900, a bequest of two thousand dollars, under the will of the late Rev. George Warren Field, was received, and from his estate a gift of four hundred books. Mr. Albert Crane,² of Stamford, Connecticut, presented, in trust, three thousand dollars, in memory of his friend the late Albert Boyd Otis, of Belfast, to be called "The Albert Boyd Otis Fund"; the income to be annually expended in the purchase of books of history and biography.

The number of accessions of new books, the circulation, and the number of registered persons entitled to the privileges of the Library, since the institution was organized, is shown by the following table: —

Bulletin and Finding Lists were issued in 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, and 1892.

In 1896, the first General Catalogue, comprising 155 octavo pages, was published.

Lists of the more important new books received have appeared semi-monthly in the local newspapers.

Miss Field resigned as assistant librarian in March, 1897, and Miss Georgia Thomas Burrows was chosen as her successor.

The principal of the Library funds, as credited in the last report of the City Treasurer, is $44,559.36; its estimated value, $52,844.36, producing an income for 1900-01 of $1835.04, exclusive of the Field and Otis funds.

CHAPTER XX

LAW AND THE COURTS

System of Courts, 1875 — Officers — Municipal Court — Police Court restored — Bar Association — Law Library — Portrait of Chief Justice Peters — Court-House — Its Extension — Crimes — Boys convicted of Arson — Mrs. Lydia Larrabee convicted of Manslaughter — John W. Mitchell tried for Assault — Conviction of Mrs. Martha M. Crockett for Murder — Trial of Lewis Brewster for Murder — Mob — Edmund Elliot convicted of Assault with Intent to Kill — Infanticide.

IN 1875, the system of courts was substantially as at present, three terms of the Supreme Judicial Court being held each year on the first Tuesday of January, April, and October, respectively. Questions of law were heard by the law court, composed of five or more of the judges, sitting at Bangor, for the eastern district, in June.

The County Commissioners were Darius K. Drake, then of Jackson, Stephen Strout, of Freedom, and Albert B. Clark, of Winterport.

Wakefield Gale Frye was clerk of both tribunals. Samuel Norton filled the office of Sheriff, and William Henry Fogler was County Attorney. The examiners of candidates for admission to the Bar were Joseph Williamson, William Henry Fogler, and William Henry McLellan; the former, with George Edwin Johnson and William Pitt Thompson, constituted the board in 1900, when under a new law their duties were transferred to a state examination.

The officers of the Probate Court were Asa Thurlough, of Monroe, Judge, and Bohan Prentice Field, Register. No change in the terms has since been made.

Of the Police Court, George Edwin Johnson was Judge from 1872 to 1877. Emery Boardman succeeded him. By a legislative act passed in 1878 the name of the court was changed to that of the Belfast Municipal Court, with essential modifications and enlargement of powers, having a judge and a recorder and jurisdiction in civil matters to the extent of one hundred dollars. It provided for the continuance of Judge Boardman till the expiration of his official term. The following year was passed an act to establish the Police Court of the City of Belfast, and to abolish the Belfast Municipal Court. The substituted court was without a recorder, and had less jurisdiction than the former. James Bowdoin Murch was appointed Judge, and held his first term in April, 1879, in the room then recently vacated by the Belfast National Bank. Judge Boardman claimed that the existence of the old court, under which he was commissioned, continued, and refused to surrender the seal and records to the new incumbent. A test case, which may be found in volume 70 of the Maine Reports, decided to the contrary. Upon the resignation of Judge Murch, in 1881, by reason of ill-health, Judge Boardman was reappointed, continuing until 1887, when he was succeeded by Reuel Wilford Rogers, who has since continued in office.

The Waldo County Bar Association and the Trustees of the Law Library in the County of Waldo are two distinct organizations which hold annual meetings each January. The following are the present (1900) officers of each: President, Joseph Williamson; treasurer, George Edwin Johnson; clerk, James Sumner Harriman; committee on buying books, John Riley Dunton, Fred Waldo Brown, Franklin Atwood Greer.

In 1894, the Bar procured a portrait of Chief Justice Peters, which now hangs in the new Library room.

COURT-HOUSE IMPROVEMENTS AND EXTENSION

Stone steps leading from High Street to the eastern entrance of the Court-House were provided in 1876, and the next year, two small wooden structures on the Church Street side of the county lot were removed. In 1887, the building was first supplied with steam heat. The next year, the law library was removed from the Clerk's office to a room in the second story, which the Bar furnished at its own expense. A water-supply in 1888, a new ceiling in the court-room, and the substitution of electricity for gas in 1889, constituted the principal improvements until the recent ones.

In the year 1898 the Waldo County Bar Association, at a special meeting, called for that purpose, petitioned the County Commissioners to take some steps toward enlarging the Court-House, stating that its capacity was inadequate to the needs of the county, and, furthermore, that the valuable records of the Probate and Register of Deeds Office were endangered by not being properly protected from fire. The Commissioners did not feel authorized to grant the prayer of the petitioners, and on the 24th day of February, 1899, Joseph Williamson, William Henry McLellan, and George Edwin Johnson petitioned the Supreme Court to issue a mandamus, compelling the County Commissioners to grant the request, urging as a reason that, the county being out of debt, and having over $21,000 in the treasury, it was in financial condition to make the necessary addition. After the usual legal technicalities had been gone through with, at the April term of court, Judge S. C. Strout, presiding, issued an order of mandamus commanding the County Commissioners, "to provide in the shire town of the county, a fireproof building of brick or stone, for the safekeeping of the records and papers belonging to the offices of the Register of Deeds and Probate and the Clerk of Courts, with separate fireproof rooms and suitable alcoves, cases, or boxes for each office."

The Commissioners decided to enlarge the Court-House by extending an addition toward High Street, and connecting it with the rear of the building. Plans were made by Architect E. F. Fassett, which were accepted, and the contract for the extension was let to J. S. Randall, of Portland, Maine, for about $16,000, which, together with the fittings and furnishings brought the cost of the structure to about $20,000. The extension was completed during the winter of 1900, and the records of the various offices were at once moved into it, where they are at present safely housed.

CRIMES

During the past quarter of a century, as in previous years, few crimes of a high and aggravated nature have been committed or tried in Belfast.

In 1876, William Barnes, aged seventeen, was convicted of an attempt to wreck a train on the Belfast Branch Railroad, near Unity Pond. His alleged object was to see how cars would look running off the track.

For hauling lime on Sunday, a citizen of Lincolnville was convicted by the Police Court, in 1878, and fined.

At the April term of the Supreme Court, in 1881, two boys,

Joseph F. Patterson and George F. Patterson, pleaded guilty to an indictment for arson in setting fire to the house of John Campbell, near the East Bridge. The former was sentenced to the state prison for life, and the latter to the reform school during his minority.

In 1886, Mrs. Lydia Larrabee, of Jackson, was convicted of manslaughter in causing the death of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen M. Larrabee, and received a sentence of six months in jail.

During the fire which burned Phoenix Row, June 11, 1887, John W. Mitchell, a temperance reformer and school-teacher, interfered in an altercation which had ensued between George E. White and Thomas Haugh, and being pursued, wounded the latter by shooting him with a revolver. The affair created intense excitement. At a hearing before the Police Court for an assault with intent to kill, Mitchell claimed that he acted in self-defense. He was bound over to await an investigation by the grand jury, which, however, did not find an indictment against him.

At the January term of the Supreme Court, in 1887, Mrs. Martha M. Crockett, of Swanville, was convicted of murdering her husband, Reuel Crockett, by poison, and in October was sentenced to imprisonment for life. It was proved that she had mingled "Rough on Rats," the principal ingredient of which is arsenic, with his food. The alleged motive of the murder was the expulsion from the house of one William E. Harvey, her son by a former marriage. The trial lasted seven days, and was conducted by Hon. Orville D. Baker, Attorney-General, and Reuel Wilford Rogers, County Attorney, for the State, and by Colonel William Henry Fogler, for the prisoner. Its expense to the county, including the preliminary hearing, was about $2500. Mrs. Crockett died in the state prison, November 29, 1891, aged about sixty-two years.

In Volume I, it was remarked that there is no instance of a trial of any person for a capital offense alleged to have been committed in Belfast. This record of nearly a century and a quarter was broken in October, 1891, by the trial of Lewis Brewster, of Belfast, for the murder of Charles A. Brown. Brown, an alleged tramp, had displaced Brewster, in his farm home, on Belmont Avenue. He was the co-respondent in divorce proceedings which the latter had instituted against his wife. It was claimed that Brown first assaulted Brewster, on the 25th of August, and the latter, acting in self-defense, shot him with a revolver, inflicting a wound which proved fatal. After a trial of two days, the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter, and at the next term of the court Brewster was sentenced by Judge Whitehouse to imprisonment in the county jail for ten months. The sympathy of the jury was with Brewster, who sustained a good character and who, it was claimed, had been grossly abused by Brown. William Pitt Thompson and Robert Franklin Dunton were assigned by the court to defend the prisoner. Charles E. Littlefield, Attorney-General, and Fred Waldo Brown, County Attorney, represented the State.

In March, 1892, occurred an inexcusable violation of law by a mob. Excitement having arisen from the marriage of Mrs. Anna J. French, an eccentric widow of some wealth, and nearly eighty-five years old, to one Horace C. Penney, fifty years her junior, and reputed to be an adventurer, a large crowd invaded her house on Bell Street during the evening, breaking the windows, terrifying the inmates, and threatening to ride the husband on a rail. Penney was found secreted, but after keeping the crowd at bay was captured, handled roughly, and released only after money had been extorted from him. He and his wife soon left town, and no arrests for the disturbance took place.

At the term of the Supreme Court held in January, 1898, Edmund Elliot was convicted of an assault with intent to kill by shooting Mrs. Harriet E. Leavitt in a house on Cross Street, November 11, 1897, and was sentenced by Judge Emery to four years in the state prison. Mrs. Leavitt recovered from her wounds, but died the following March.

The dead body of an infant was found on the east shore of Belfast Bay, near Patterson's Point, November 11, 1900. After a long investigation, the coroner's jury found that death was caused by strangulation, "whether by accident or otherwise, is to the jury unknown."

CHAPTER XXI

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF LAWYERS

Lawyers in 1875 — Lawyers since deceased or who have removed from Belfast

AT the commencement of 1875, the following regularly admitted lawyers resided in Belfast, viz.: Nehemiah Abbott, Hiram Orlando Alden, Emery Boardman, William Henry Burrill, William George Crosby, Jonathan Garland Dickerson, Bohan Prentice Field, William Henry Fogler, Wakefield Gale Frye, James Sumner Harriman, Willard Pope Harriman, Philo Hersey, George Edwin Johnson, Albert Gallatin Jewett, James Young McClintock, William Henry McLellan, William Colburn Marshall, Seth Llewellyn Milliken, James Bowdoin Murch, William Maxfield Rust, George Edmund Wallace, and Joseph Williamson. Messrs. Alden, Burrill, Dickerson, Field, Frye, McClintock, Marshall, Milliken, and Rust were not in active practice. Of the whole number, eight survive, viz.: Messrs. Fogler, James Sumner Harriman, Hersey, Johnson, McLellan, Marshall, Wallace, and Williamson. Messrs. Harriman, Johnson, McLellan, and Williamson remain in the exercise of their profession. Of the lawyers mentioned in this chapter, a fuller account of some will be found in volume I of this History; the present sketches only continue the account of these down to their deaths or to 1900.

NEHEMIAH ABBOTT, who began the practice of law in Belfast in 1840, continued in business until a short time before his death, which took place 30 July, 1877, at the age of seventy-three years. Mr. Abbott was in the best sense one of those whom President Lincoln called "the plain people." In his social as well as in his professional intercourse, he was affable and genial. For a quarter of a century he was the leading advocate on one side or the other of nearly all the important cases tried in Waldo County. At the October term of the Supreme Court following his decease, tributes to his worth and character were paid by Judge Dickerson and by his other professional brethren, who passed the following resolution: —

Resolved, That by the death of the Hon. Nehemiah Abbott, this Bar deploras the loss of a member distinguished during his long and active career for honor and integrity, for untiring industry, and for scrupulous fidelity to all the interests committed to him. As a lawyer, he was quick in apprehension, sound in practical judgment, forcible in argument, eminently fair towards opponents, and popular, successful, and effective in his management of cases both before juries and courts. As a citizen, his upright life, public spirit, and courteous demeanor secured him the confidence and esteem of the community in which for nearly forty years was his home.

HIRAM ORLANDO ALDEN. After retiring from the Bar in 1849, Mr. Alden continued to reside in Belfast, although business interests called him away for a large portion of the time. In 1876, his failing health induced him to resign the presidency of the Maine Telegraph Company, which he had held for twenty-eight years. His letter of declination gave an interesting history of the early struggles of that corporation, and the directors passed a resolution recognizing the value of his long and faithful services. Mr. Alden died 15 April, 1882, at the age of eighty-two. His wife, Emily Bingham Alden, died in 1870. Their children were Walter Bingham, who died in 1893, and Miss Emily H., both of Belfast; Hiram Orlando, Jr., of Pueblo, Colorado, who died in 1898; Mary, who married Captain Ansel Lothrop White, of Brooklyn, New York, and Edward, of New York City. A son of the latter, Carlos Coolidge, is a professor in the New York University Law School.

An elaborate work by James D. Reid, entitled "The Telegraph in America — Its Founders, Promoters, and Noted Men," published in 1879, contains a sketch of Mr. Alden.

EMERY BOARDMAN, son of Isaac Miller Boardman, died 15 August, 1899, aged fifty. He was City Clerk of Belfast from 1873 to 1876; City Treasurer in 1884; and Judge of the Police Court from 1877 to 1887. In 1873-74, he edited the "Belfast Weekly Advertiser," and from 1888 to 1890, the "Belfast City Press." A vigorous writer, he was well versed in history, literature, and current events. After retiring from journalism, he resumed the practice of law, and in his leisure hours prepared a little volume entitled "Winning Whist," which was published in New York, in 1896. Judge Boardman married Miss Caro A. Kaler, of Belfast, 13 June, 1878. They had no children.

WILLIAM HENRY BURRILL, who relinquished practice in 1849, died 8 October, 1884, aged seventy-two. He preferred a quiet life to the turmoil of politics, and after being Representative to the Legislature in 1872, declined to accept any other public position. He was closely identified with all local enterprises, and was largely interested in shipping. Of a retiring disposition, he was conscientious, reliable, and straightforward in all his dealings. Although childless, his kind impulses drew him towards children, and he took many to his household, who loved him as a father. His wife, who was Miss Rebecca Atherton, of Portland, died in 1894.

HON. WILLIAM GEORGE CROSBY passed away at his residence, the Crosby homestead, in Belfast, 21 March, 1881, aged seventy-five years. He was the son of Hon. William Crosby, and was born in Belfast 10 September, 1805, and graduated at Bowdoin College, in the class of 1823, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1826. Mr. Crosby was married in 1831 to Miss Ann M. Patterson, daughter of Captain Robert Patterson, 4th, a son of one of the first settlers of Belfast. Their children who survived infancy were: Anne Maria, who married (1) Colonel Alfred Waldo Johnson, (2) Colonel Richard Chenery; Sarah Frances, who married John Hitchcock, Esq., of Boston; William, George, Frederick, and Horace. (These have all passed away, 1912.)

In the death of Governor Crosby, the community lost one of its most valued and beloved citizens. During the continuation of a long professional life, devoted to the practice of law, his eloquence and skill as an advocate rendered him a leader at the Bar, while by his sound judgment and learning, he became equally distinguished as a safe counselor. Before as well as after he retired from active business, his cordial sympathy, amenity of manners, charm of conversation, and readiness to impart advice or instruction bound him closely by ties of regard and attachment to all who shared his acquaintance, and the news of his death was received with deep significance and regret. In politics, Governor Crosby was always a Whig. Contrary to his wishes, he was a candidate for Congress from Waldo and Kennebec District in 1838; an honor he declined in 1840. He was a delegate to the National Convention of 1844, which nominated Henry Clay. Two years later, he was chosen Secretary of the Board of Education of Maine, which position he held for three years, visiting all parts of the State, and lecturing in the principal towns. To his recommendations we are indebted for the best features of our public schools. In 1850, Mr. Crosby was unanimously nominated for Governor by a large Whig convention, and received a heavier vote than had been given any Whig candidate, since Governor Kent. He received a second nomination in 1852, and, although Belfast was then a strong Democratic town, his fellow citizens honored him with a majority of over two hundred. There was no choice by the people, as the Democratic party was divided, and after a protracted contest in the Legislature, he was chosen over Governor Hubbard, the regular Democratic nominee, and Anson G. Chandler, who represented the Anti-Maine Law division. His election was repeated by the Legislature in 1854. During these two years, his constitutional advisers, as well as many members of the House and Senate, were men of ability and public confidence. In the council were: Franklin Smith, Amos M. Roberts, Albert Pilsbury, Horatio Huntington Johnson, Theodore C. Woodman, and Samuel P. Shaw. While the Legislature contained George M. Chase, Shepard Carey, William P. Fessenden, Artemus Libbey, Henry W. Paine, Freeman H. Morse, John B. Hill, George P. Sewell, Alfred Waldo Johnson, and Lot M. Morrill. His messages were able, practical, and acceptable, and his various appointments to office were judicious and satisfactory. Upon the disruption of the Whig party in 1856, Governor Crosby acted with the Democrats, although taking no prominent positions. In 1866, he was appointed collector of customs for this district, which was the last public position he held. He received the degree of LL.D. from Bowdoin College in 1870. For several years he was connected with the government of that institution, and always cherished for his Alma Mater a warm interest and regard. He was a member of the Maine Historical Society from 1846 to the time of his death. He became a Mason in 1844 by joining Phoenix Lodge. When Timothy Chase Lodge was formed, he left Phoenix, and was one of the incorporators of the new lodge, and was master for 1868 and 1869. After leaving the gubernatorial chair, Governor Crosby resided for a few years in Boston, where he engaged in literary pursuits. He returned to Belfast in 1859, and resumed the practice of law, which he continued until 1870. He had been in professional life for nearly forty years, and his name was synonymous with probity, integrity, and fairness. Always courteous in his demeanor, he never forgot or refused the claim of the younger members of the Bar to sympathy and aid. He was long a member of the Unitarian Church, and until prevented by infirmity, was a constant attendant at public worship. His last public appearance was when he delivered a lecture in the "Popular Course," in the winter of 1877. In 1874-75 he paid a graceful tribute to his native city, by preparing for the "Republican Journal" a series of fifty-two papers, entitled "The Annals of Belfast for Half a Century, from 1805 to 1855. By an Old Settler." Like most men of a poetic temperament, Governor Crosby was a lover of nature. He loved the woods, the streams, the lakes, and their associations, with a longing that nothing could satisfy but a visit to his congenial haunts. The "Lakeside Cottage," on the shores of Lake Quantabacook in Searsmont, to which he frequently resorted with a few cherished friends, was continually beckoning, and it was a happy day when he could lay aside his law-books for the fishing-rod. For him, there was no sweeter music than the low plash of the waves on the beach, at his camp door. The often expressed wish of the Governor, that his breath might be surrendered in the room where it was first given, was not permitted to him. But in another apartment, in the home of his birth, in his library; among those mute companions, which in joy and sorrow, in health and sickness, had been his pleasure, his comfort, and his strength, and surrounded by his sorrowing friends, his calm and well-rounded life passed painlessly away.

JUDGE JONATHAN GARLAND DICKERSON was of English descent. He was born in New Chester (now Hill), New Hampshire, 5 November, 1811. He entered New Hampton Institution in 1830, where he at once became prominent in student debates. In 1832, he matriculated at Waterville College, and graduating in 1836, began the study of law. Three years later he was admitted to the Bar and entered upon practice at Searsport. In 1842, he was a member of the Legislature from Prospect. His next public service was at Frankfort, where he held the office of Deputy Collector of Customs. In 1849, he removed to Belfast, and in 1855, purchased the "Republican Journal," which he controlled for three years. He was twice elected County Attorney, and in 1858 was appointed, by President Buchanan, Collector of Customs of the port of Belfast, which position he held until the accession of President Lincoln in 1861. In 1862, he was appointed, by Governor Israel Washburn, an Associate Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine, was reappointed in 1869 by Governor Joshua L. Chamberlain, and in 1876, by Governor Selden Connor. He died 1 September, 1878, while serving in this capacity. In addition to other honors, Judge Dickerson received from Colby University the degree of Doctor of Laws. His professional life of nearly forty years was characterized by untiring industry, study, honesty, and great independence of character. He was regarded as a wise and safe counselor, an eloquent and earnest advocate, and as judge, learned and able, bringing to the investigation of legal questions keen powers of research and analysis, making his decisions from principle rather than from precedent. His written opinions, prepared with scrupulous care, were models of their kind.

Judge Dickerson first married Ellen Getchell, of Waterville, Maine, by whom he had one son, Frank Wilberforce, whose education was obtained in the Belfast schools and Westbrook Seminary, and who served in the War of the Rebellion (in the regular army) with distinction, with the rank of brevet major. He next married Lydia Jane Merithew, of Searsport, by whom he had (1) a son, early deceased; (2) Ellen Louise, educated in the Belfast schools and the Gannett School of Boston, who married Colonel Edward H. Leib, and who had one daughter, Louise Dickerson Leib, educated in the Searsport schools and a graduate of Dr. Sargent's School, Cambridge; (3) a second daughter, Lucy Ames, who married John M. Burleigh, of South Berwick, Maine, and who had four children: Clara Matilda, graduate of Smith College, John Holmes, University of Maine, Louise Dickerson, Smith College, Anita Merithew, Smith College.

Judge Dickerson was afterward married to Eliza A. Berry, of New York. They had three sons: Charles Berry; Frederick William, educated at the Franklin Academy and University of Maine; Jonathan Garland who died at fourteen years of age.

BOHAN PRENTICE FIELD. In 1875, Mr. Field was Register of Probate, a position he had filled since 1852, with the exception of two years. From 1881 to 1885, he was superseded owing to a political change; he was restored in the latter year, and retained the position until the close of 1892. Upon his retirement the Waldo Bar testified their appreciation of his efficient and courteous conduct of the office, by the presentation of a gold-headed cane. His death occurred 1 October, 1897. He was then eighty-two years of age and our oldest lawyer. His portrait, made in 1895, adorns the office where he so long and faithfully served.

WILLIAM HENRY FOGLER. For sketch of Colonel Fogler and his war record see Volume I. He was Alderman, 1871-73; Attorney for Waldo County, 1875-78; a law partner of Judge Philo Hersey in 1883; Mayor of Belfast, 1885; and was a prominent Mason. In 1890 he removed to Rockland, representing that town in the Legislature, 1897; and in 1898 became a Judge of the Supreme Court. He died February 18, 1902.

WAKEFIELD GALE FRYE. At the close of 1879, Mr. Frye vacated the office of Clerk of the Courts, which he had held for ten years, and resumed the practice of law, having an office over the store of Alden Darwin Chase. In February, 1882, he was appointed Consul-General of the United States at Halifax, where he remained until 1885, when he was superseded by a political change of administration. He then engaged in business in Boston, and for a short time was the legal partner of Hon. Bordman Hall. In June, 1889, he was returned by President Harrison as Consul-General to Halifax, and remained there until his death, 14 August, 1893.

Mr. Frye was a man of stanch integrity and high moral character, and was universally respected and beloved. His age was sixty-six years and eight months.

The "Halifax Herald," in a notice of Mr. Frye, says: "He was a model representative of his government — conscientious, unassuming, dignified. He enjoyed the highest respect of the people who knew him, and his death will be greatly regretted."

JAMES SUMNER HARRIMAN was in business with his father until the death of the latter in 1878, when he formed a legal partnership with his brother, George Frank, which was terminated by the removal of the latter to New York. He was City Clerk from 1878 to 1886, and City Solicitor in 1893-94. He held the position of Deputy Collector of the Customs, from 1890 to 1893, and in 1897 was appointed Collector by President McKinley. He married Ella, daughter of the late William H. Dutton. In 1898 he built a house on Pearl Street.

WILLARD POPE HARRIMAN was in his sixty-fourth year at the time of his death, 19 January, 1878. Up to 1871, he had held many public offices, but after that, devoted himself to the practice of his profession. Though he entered the Bar late in life, he acquired a prominent position, and carried on a large business. He was social and genial in his manners, and while not a member, was a liberal supporter of the Methodist Church. James Sumner and George Frank Harriman are his sons.

COLONEL PHILO HERSEY practiced law in Belfast until November, 1885. He then removed to Santa Clara, California. In 1876-77, he was on the military staff of Governor Connor, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. From 1877 to 1881, he was Judge of Probate for Waldo County. In 1883, he formed a legal partnership with Colonel William Henry Fogler, which continued until the following year. Upon his departure to California, a farewell entertainment was given him by the Grand Army Post, and he was presented with a gold-headed cane. Colonel Hersey continues to reside in California. He has visited Maine twice within the past four years. His wife, Arbella, daughter of the late Hon. Horatio Huntington Johnson, died in 1895.

ALBERT GALLATIN JEWETT was born in Pittston, Maine, 27 November, 1802, son of Daniel and Betsy (Tarbox) Jewett, who came to Pittston in 1787. He graduated from Waterville College in 1826; read law with Joseph Williamson, Sr., and was admitted to the Waldo County Bar in 1829. He went to Bangor to practice, became prominent there, and was County Attorney for Penobscot County for five years. The Bangor House is said to have been built through his exertions.

He settled in Belfast in 1860. He married Hannah, daughter of John Wilson. They had one daughter, Isabella, who married Charles Miller Harris.

Mr. Jewett was a prominent Democrat up to the breaking-out of the War of the Rebellion. Then he became a Republican or a "War Democrat." In 1844, he was one of the Maine members of the memorable Democratic National Convention at Baltimore, and supported Martin Van Buren for the nomination for President. There were four or five candidates, and the convention was divided. When it became evident that Mr. Van Burer could not get the nomination, Mr. Jewett ardently supported Mr. James K. Polk, who was nominated on the ninth ballot. The bitterness of the Southern delegates, which subsequently ripened into secession, was manifest in this convention. Mr. Jewett was a prominent delegate, and standing up in his seat he hurled defiance at the rebellious wing of the party. After the nomination of Polk, Mr. Jewett stumped Tennessee for him. While there he was the guest of ex-President Andrew Jackson, and spent several days with him at the "Hermitage." After Polk's election, he appointed Mr. Jewett chargé d'affaires in Peru, where he remained for three years. He then went to Paris, spending some time for the purpose of educating his daughter. He was in Paris during the trying scenes of the French Revolution which culminated in 1848, in the abdication of Louis Philippe. Mr. Jewett was a correspondent at this time, for the "New York Herald." In 1849, he left Paris and came to Bangor, Maine. From that time until 1860 he engaged in shipping enterprises at Aspinwall and Savannah, was attorney for the Brunswick and Altamaha Canal Company; but finally, again took up the practice of law at Savannah. In 1860, he came to Belfast to live permanently. When Fort Sumter was fired upon, Mr. Jewett was among the few Maine men to appreciate the magnitude of the coming struggle. As mayor of Belfast, in 1863-65, he was active in all measures pertaining to the war and made a stirring appeal to the enrolled men. In 1867, he was an earnest advocate of the Belfast and Moosehead Lake railroad project and became one of the first directors of the Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad Company.

As a lawyer he excelled. A prominent member of the Bar says: "He was particularly strong as an advocate, and was well versed in common law. He was engaged in many prominent suits, and became known throughout the State. He was an earnest and forcible speaker and had great influence with a jury." Mr. Jewett at one time formed a law partnership with Philo Chase, and at the time of his death was the law partner of Fred Waldo Brown. In 1863-65 and again in 1867-68 he was Mayor of Belfast. But he was too pronounced and outspoken in his opinions ever to become a successful politician.

On 8 April, 1865, Mr. Jewett's house on Wilson Hill, at the corner of Main and Congress streets, was destroyed by fire. He then moved to his farm on Lincolnville Avenue, distant about a mile from the city, where he lived with his daughter and grandchildren until his death, on 4 April, 1885.

GEORGE EDWIN JOHNSON. After being Judge of the Police Court for five years, Judge Johnson resigned in September, 1877, having been chosen County Attorney. This position he occupied until 1881. During 1882, he was in partnership with Reuel Wilford Rogers. He was chosen Mayor in 1882, and for the two following years. Since 1885, he has been Judge of Probate, and City Solicitor from 1897.

JAMES YOUNG MCCLINTOCK was born in Bristol, Maine, in 1801, of hardy Scotch-Irish stock. At the age of twenty-four he went to Swanville as a school-teacher, and the following year removed to Belfast, engaging in trade at what is known as the Board Landing. Here he laid the foundation for the handsome property he afterward accumulated, by habits of industry and economy. In 1850, he built the block at the corner of Main and High streets, known as City Block. Two years later he erected the two brick tenement blocks on High and Spring streets. While at the Board Landing, he built several vessels and became interested in vessel property. Mr. McClintock was an ardent Democrat, and as an active politician was known beyond the limits of Belfast. On election day, in olden times, he would mass his voters, and with fife and drum march them to the polls. During exciting campaigns he wagered heavily on the result, sometimes losing and winning thousands of dollars.

In 1838, 1843, and 1856 he was Sheriff of Waldo County, and was Deputy Sheriff for thirty years. In 1873, he was admitted to the Waldo County Bar, but his practice was confined to his own business. He was a Coroner for Waldo County at the time of his death. Mr. McClintock was a very positive man — equally strong in his likes and dislikes. He is credited with many kind acts, and was very fond of children, driving numbers of them in his wagon to and from their schools. For many years he was a potent factor in our local affairs, and his was a well-known figure on our streets. Up to the time of his last illness he was a remarkably active man for one of his age.

WILLIAM HENRY McLELLAN. Mr. McLellan began the practice of law in Belfast in 1860. In 1876, he was the Democratic candidate for Congress, from the Fifth District, and three years later the Legislature elected him Attorney-General of the State. In September, 1882, he removed to Kansas City, Missouri. Before his departure, the Waldo Bar gave him a dinner at which complimentary resolutions were passed. He returned to Belfast in July, 1888, and resumed the practice of his profession. He died in 1912 at Belfast.

At the first regular meeting of the Waldo County Bar Association after his decease the committee appointed to prepare resolutions on the death of William Henry McLellan, reported as follows:—

IN MEMORIAM — WILLIAM HENRY McLELLAN

Hon. William Henry McLellan, president of the Waldo County Bar Association and for many years the acknowledged leader of the Waldo County Bar, died in this city on the 25th day of March, A.D. 1912.

He was born in Skowhegan, 26 November, 1832, graduated from the University of New York in 1853, was admitted to the Bar in Androscoggin county in 1855, and had been a practitioner at this Bar since 1860, until failing health obliged him to retire from active practice about four years ago. He was possessed of an exceptionally active mind and retentive memory, and as an advocate had no superior in this State. He was always true to his client and quick to see that his rights were in no way jeopardized. He took great pleasure in rendering to young attorneys any assistance in his power and his counsel and advice were often sought by them and always freely given. His promise to a brother attorney he always regarded as sacred, and scrupulously performed.

Resolved, that in his death this Bar has lost its most distinguished member, and as an expression of their appreciation of his many kindnesses and their sorrow at his decease, that this memorial be inscribed on a page of the records of this association set apart for the purpose, and that a copy be sent to each member of the family of our deceased brother and published in the "Republican Journal" and "Waldo County Herald."

GEORGE E. JOHNSON,
REUEL W. ROGERS,
ROBERT F. DUNTON,
Committee.

WILLIAM COLBURN MARSHALL, the second son of Hon. Thomas Henry Marshall, was born in Belfast, 27 August, 1827. He graduated at Bowdoin College in 1847. During the following years he studied law with the late Hon. Solyman Heath and Hon. Woodbury Davis, and was admitted to the Bar of Waldo County in 1851. The same year he removed to Racine, Wisconsin, where he became established in practice. In 1861, he returned to Belfast, where he has since resided, engaged in mercantile, and other business, but not resuming his profession. Mr. Marshall has been overseer of Bowdoin College, trustee of Belfast Free Library, director of Belfast & Moosehead Lake Railroad, first president of the Belfast Board of Trade, a director and chief stockholder of the Belfast Shoe Factory, organizer and president of the Memorial Hall Association that erected the building and gave the hall to Thomas H. Marshall Post, G.A.R. He had also been engaged in horse-breeding, and his stock has been prominent, and taken many premiums at our State Fairs. He was president of the Waldo County Horse-Breeder's Association, and was a trustee of the Maine State Agricultural Society. He was Mayor in 1871, 1872, and 1873, and Collector of Customs from 1876 to 1884. By appointment from Governor Cleaves in 1896 and by subsequent election, he held the office of State Assessor from 1897 to 1901. He married, in 1859, Miss Lois Rhodes, of Cleveland, Ohio, who died in 1896. Their only surviving child, William Rhodes, resides in Boston, Massachusetts.

SETH LLEWELLYN MILLIKEN, was born in Montville, Maine, 12 December, 1831, son of William and Lucy (Perrigo) Milliken. After such education as he could acquire in the country schools, he took a three-years' course at Colby University, and then entered Union College, New York, from which he graduated in 1856; and six weeks later was elected Representative to the Legislature from Camden, where he then resided. December 8, 1859, Mr. Milliken married Sarah Elizabeth Arnold, of Augusta, and removed to Belfast. After coming here, he read law in the offices of Hon. Nehemiah Abbott and Judge Jonathan Garland Dickerson. He was elected Clerk of Courts for Waldo County, in 1859, which office he held for about twelve years. In 1883, he was elected Representative to Congress, and was reëlected for eight consecutive terms, thus holding the position for nearly fifteen years until the time of his death, which occurred at Washington, D.C., 18 April, 1897. The character of his funeral services was so unusual in Belfast as to claim brief mention here. A delegation of the following members of the Senate and House accompanied the remains to Belfast: Senators Hale of Maine, Gallinger of New Hampshire, Carter of Montana;

Representatives Boutelle of Maine, Hicks of Pennsylvania, Shannon of New York, Skinner of North Carolina, Weymouth of Massachusetts, Hilborn of California, Dinsmore of Arkansas, Stallings of Alabama, Graff of Illinois, and Terry of Arkansas. Deputy Sergeants-at-Arms Peirce and Carter White, of the House of Representatives, had charge of arrangements. His body lay in state in the Universalist Church under guard, furnished by the Grand Army of the Republic, until the afternoon of the funeral, when it was taken to the Unitarian Church, owing to the greater seating capacity of that edifice. Governor Llewellyn Powers and Councillor H. W. Mayo of Penobscot headed the procession as it entered the auditorium of the church. Senators Hale and Gallinger followed heading the congressional delegation, and next came the immediate family and relatives; then, in the order given, the City Council, Waldo County Bar, the Masons, and the Grand Army. The pallbearers were: Thomas W. Pitcher, A. J. Harriman, Dr. D. P. Flanders, Edward Sibley, Lucius F. McDonald, Asa A. Howes. Governor Llewellyn Powers and ex-Governor Edwin C. Burleigh, Hon. Oramandel Smith, and Assistant Secretary of State Chadbourn, acted as honorary pallbearers, on the part of the State. Rev. Charles H. Wells, pastor of the Universalist Church, delivered the funeral address. The remains were taken to Grove Cemetery, and placed in the receiving tomb. These were the days of Burleigh, Dingley, and Boutelle in the House, and Hale and Frye in the Senate: and Mr. Milliken, in company with these men, whom Maine had sent to represent her at Washington during the epoch, was allowed to remain there long enough to acquaint himself with the routine and requirements of his office. Through long familiarity, he became thoroughly versed in the workings of the machinery of our National Capitol, and he was considered by his colleagues of the House as a most efficient and valuable member of the various committees to which they appointed him. He was for a number of years Chairman of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, and the beautifying of Washington with suitable public buildings became a matter of personal pride to him. That the lower side of Pennsylvania Avenue should become the property of the National Government, and be devoted exclusively to its buildings and parks, was his idea. He was also instrumental in securing the passage of a large number of bills authorizing the erection of government buildings in different parts of the country.

It was his desire that no resident of his district, the Third Maine, who appealed to him should be refused anything that it was within his power to grant. The veterans of the Grand Army always considered him their friend, and he ever had their interests at heart, and his influence was used in securing many pensions for deserving old soldiers.

The following is quoted from "Memorial Addresses on the Life and Character of Seth L. Milliken," delivered in the United States House of Representatives and Senate: —

Mr. Milliken came of good stock. On the paternal side he was of Scotch descent. His maternal ancestors were the Counts of Perrigaux, who were prominently identified with the early history of France. He thus inherited the best characteristics of two strong races, — from his father, a strong will, tenacity of purpose, and marked power of analysis; from his mother, a poetical temperament, innate courtesy, and a ready wit. It is to the combination of these qualities that we may trace his notable success as a public speaker, and his happy faculty of making and retaining strong friendships.

Thoroughly equipped by a large experience with men, by extensive reading, by careful study, endowed by his Maker with a fine physique, an attractive voice, graceful manners, he became a very popular platform orator, and his services were in demand in every political campaign all over the country, and he traveled thousands of miles, working for the Republican party. And while ever loyal to it, and a firm believer in its tenets, he was always tolerant of the views of his opponents. As a Memorial Day and Fourth of July orator, he was also much sought after.

From his earliest years Mr. Milliken was left almost entirely to depend upon his own resources. He paid for his own schooling, he worked his way through college, and in all his after life he was in all things self-dependent and independent. He never forgot the lessons of such a life nor the people who extended to him their sympathy and trust, and he was amply rewarded by the sympathy and trust reposed in him by his own district.

He is an excellent example of a type of American of the last century, that has become famous the world over: — the poor country boy, who, self-educated, self-trained, and finally selfmade, attains, through his own energy, perseverance, and sagacity, to one of the highest positions within the gift of his countrymen.

Few men in public life possessed a finer tact in dealing with others. It was not in Mr. Milliken's nature to treasure resentment. Sanguine in temperament and accustomed to look on the bright side of life, he had an abiding love for his native state and country, and a profound faith in the future of both. He died as he had lived, in the harness. At the meridian of his powers, at the age of sixty-five years, he was called suddenly from the activities of an unusually full and successful career, which touched some of the most important national questions of his time. From its duties, its hopes, and its aspirations he was summoned to "the lone couch of his everlasting sleep."

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mary Maud Milliken, and a son, Seth Mellen Milliken, of New York City.

JAMES BOWDOIN MURCH. In 1879, Mr. Murch was appointed Judge of the Belfast Police Court, a tribunal which took the place of the Municipal Court. This position, however, he did not long enjoy, as he died on the 1st day of April, 1880. He was a sound lawyer, of broad mind and large heart; cheerful, and having a keen sense of humor. At the term of the Supreme Court following his decease, suitable resolutions to his memory were presented, responded to by the Presiding Justice. Judge Murch left two children, Lucius Holcomb Murch, of Belfast, and Charlotte, now Mrs. Bertram L. Smith, of Patten. His widow, a native of North Carolina, died 11 December, 1896.

WILLIAM MAXFIELD RUST, who had resided in Belfast since 1853, died 14 June, 1888, aged sixty-nine years. Becoming editor of the "Progressive Age" in 1854, he continued as such during the remainder of his life. In 1875, he was appointed Judge of Probate for Waldo County, to fill the unexpired term of Hon. Asa Thurlough, and held that position until January, 1877. He was a State Senator in 1883-84 and during the latter year a delegate at large to the Democratic National Convention.

In politics, Judge Rust was an early member of the Republican party and acted with it until the formation of the Greenback party in this State, which he was largely instrumental in accomplishing. Subsequently he united with the Democrats, becoming prominent in that organization. He was a lawyer of ability; a successful editor, an active politician, a man of original opinions, strong convictions, marked social qualities, and of domestic tastes. He always had courage to promulgate his clearly defined views, whether or not they were favorably received. (See p. 112.)

GEORGE EDMUND WALLACE. Mr. Wallace represented Belfast in the Legislature of 1879. In 1881, he was chosen County Attorney, and held the position for four years. From November, 1878, to June, 1881, he was in partnership with Franklin Atwood Greer. Impaired health compelled him to leave Maine, and in 1892 he became established in Los Angeles, California, where he now resides.

JOSEPH WILLIAMSON continues in practice in the same location which he has occupied for forty-six years. He was City Solicitor in 1875, and from 1886 to 1890. In 1877, he published the first volume of the "History of Belfast," and in 1896, a "Bibliography of Maine." An account of both works may be found in another chapter. The honorary degree of Doctor of Letters was conferred upon him by Bowdoin College, in 1896.

The above lines are from the pen of Mr. Williamson himself. To them we append the following resolutions, adopted by the Waldo County Bar Association, the Trustees of the Belfast Free Library, and a committee of the Waldo Club, respectively; and an editorial which appeared in the "Republican Journal" at the time of his death, which occurred in Belfast, 4 December, 1902. On 12 January, 1903, an impressive and largely attended Memorial Service to the late Hon. Joseph Williamson was held in the Supreme Judicial Court. See also the introduction by the Editor, at the beginning of this volume, and the memoir of Joseph Williamson, by his brother, the late William Cross Williamson.

On behalf of the Waldo County Bar Association, we present the following resolutions, and move that they be spread upon the records of this Court: —

WHEREAS, We, the members of the Waldo Bar, desire to give expression to, and place on record, our sense of the loss we have sustained in the death of our brother Joseph Williamson, and to express our high appreciation of his character as a lawyer, citizen, and friend, be it

Resolved, That his death removes from our number an honored and distinguished member of the Bar who will long be remembered for his high attainments as a lawyer, his dignified and courteous bearing toward the Court and Bar, his genial nature, his agreeable companionship in social intercourse and his honorable and kindly bearing in all the relations of life.

Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to the family of our deceased brother, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the members thereof.

WILLIAM PITT THOMPSON,
ROBERT FRANKLIN DUNTON, REUEL WILFORD ROGERS, Committee.

The regular monthly meeting of the Trustees of the Belfast Free Library was held January 2, 1903. Hon. William C. Marshall was elected chairman to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Hon. Joseph Williamson. The following resolution was adopted:—

Resolved, That we greatly deplore the death of Judge Williamson, who has been chairman of the Board of Trustees of Belfast Free Library since its foundation and has given it his constant care and supervision during that long period of fifteen years. It is a great loss to the Library.

We desire to place on record our high appreciation of his faithful service.

The board at present consists of William C. Marshall, N. F. Houston, Ben Hazeltine, and Dr. Elmer Small.

At the annual meeting of the Waldo Club, held at their rooms March 20th, 1903, the following resolutions were adopted:—

Resolved, That we greatly miss at our Club the presence and companionship of the late Hon. Joseph Williamson, whose recent and sudden death is mourned by us as a personal bereavement. He was a regular attendant at the Club on evenings when the business of the day was over and enjoyed those hours of recreation with great zest. He was a thorough gentleman, courteous, sympathetic, companionable. He had the respect of every member of the Club.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the records of the Club and a copy sent to his relatives.

WILLIAM COLBURN MARSHALL,
GILMAN PINGREE LOMBARD,
FRANK LEE FIELD,

Committee on Resolutions.

The following is from an editorial in the "Republican Journal":—

The death of Hon. Joseph Williamson has taken from us our most widely known citizen. Learned in the law; of a judicial mind that made the title of Judge Williamson most fitting; a wise counselor; loyal in every fibre to his native city, holding dear her fame and ever ready to do aught in his power to promote her welfare, he will be greatly missed in the community in which he has so long been a familiar figure. His literary labors had extended over more than half a century, and aside from his well-known "History of Belfast" and his "Bibliography of Maine" he has embodied in pamphlets and otherwise published much material that must prove of great value to future historians. This work was his recreation; the law his business, and as lawyer or historian his place will be hard to fill.

Since 1875, the following lawyers, formerly in practice in Belfast, have died:—

WILLIAM STEVENS, who removed to Andover, Massachusetts, in 1835, died in Lawrence, Massachusetts, 7 January, 1878, aged nearly seventy-nine. For twenty-nine years he was Judge of the Police Court of Lawrence.

ALBERT BINGHAM, a resident of Belfast from 1836 to 1845, died in Newton, Massachusetts, 8 August, 1878. He had held positions in the Boston and Portsmouth custom-houses.

HOWARD BROOKS ABBOTT, who gave up practice in 1845, became a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He died in Waterville, 2 February, 1876, aged sixty-two years.

WALTER BINGHAM ALDEN, who retired from practice in 1853, and engaged in mercantile business in New York, died in Belfast, 9 September, 1893. He was an extensive reader, an entertaining conversationalist, and well informed upon all subjects. An invalid for many years, bodily infirmities withdrew him from active life.

PHILO CHASE, after leaving Belfast in 1868, became a successful lawyer in New York, where he died 5 November, 1898, after a long illness.

EMERY SAWYER, who practiced in Belfast for a short time in 1866, and then removed to Searsport, died in that town, 11 July, 1882. He was born in Brooks, 6 March, 1818. For twenty-eight years he held the position of trial justice.

LAWYERS ESTABLISHED OR ADMITTED TO THE BAR IN BELFAST AFTER 1874

FRED WALDO BROWN, son of Silas Dinsmore Brown, of the Head of the Tide, was born there 11 March, 1857. He studied law with George Edwin Johnson and Thompson & Dunton, and was admitted to the Bar in October, 1877. He opened an office in September, 1882. The following year he formed a partnership with the Hon. Albert Gallatin Jewett, which continued until the death of the latter. He was County Attorney in 1891 and 1892. He married Miss Hester M. Pierce, of Ellsworth.

FRED L. BANKS, son of Frank Banks, was admitted to the Bar at the January term, 1887, of the Supreme Court, but did not practice here. He now resides in Boston.

ROBERT FRANKLIN DUNTON, son of the late Horatio Dunton, of Searsmont, was born in that town, 24 November, 1848. He was admitted to the Bar in October, 1872 at Belfast, and practiced four years at Trinidad, Colorado, before returning to Belfast in 1877. The following year he became the partner of

Hon. William Pitt Thompson, a relation which continued until 1890. He was chosen City Solicitor from 1879 to 1885, both inclusive, and again in 1891 and 1892; County Attorney, in 1887-88, and Mayor, in 1893 and 1894. In 1899, he became president of the People's National Bank, of which he had been vice-president. Mr. Dunton married, 5 June, 1878, Elizabeth Mabel Farrar, of Searsmont. He was elected president of the Belfast Savings Bank in January, 1906, to fill the vacancy created by the death of Edward Johnson, Esq. This position he resigned some years later, upon being appointed Bank Commissioner for the State of Maine. He was a Representative to the Legislature in 1907, and Chairman of the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation, 1909-11. He has been a director in the City National Bank of Belfast. Though his present duties call him to all parts of the State, he continues the practice of the law under the firm name of Dunton & Morse, at Belfast.

JOHN RILEY DUNTON, brother of the foregoing, was born in Searsmont, 9 August, 1859. He fitted for college at the Castine Normal School. During a portion of 1886, he was a Deputy Collector in the Belfast Custom-House. After graduating at Bates College in 1887, he taught in grammar and high schools in Belfast, Lewiston, and Leominster, Massachusetts. He was admitted to the Bar in September, 1898, and entered into partnership with his brother. He became a member of the Maine Historical Society in 1894. Mr. Dunton was Superintendent of Schools of Belfast from 1901 to 1905; Mayor, in 1906-07, and is at present (1913) a member of the 76th Maine Legislature. He is a partner in the law firm of Dunton & Morse.

W. FRED P. FOGG, formerly of Strong, came to Belfast in November, 1895, as the attorney of the Petit Manan Land and Industrial Company, and remained until the following April, when he removed to Wiscasset.

FRANKLIN ATWOOD GREER, son of Daniel A. Greer, of Belmont, where he was born in 1854, studied law with Judge George Edwin Johnson and was admitted to the Bar at the April term, 1875, of the Supreme Court. He commenced practice in Belfast in June, 1876. In November, 1878, he formed a copartnership with George Edmund Wallace, which continued until June, 1881.

JOHN CALVIN HARKNESS, son of the late Thomas Harkness, was born in 1839, and graduated at Bowdoin College in 1864. He was principal of the Camden High School in 1864-66, then pursued legal studies at the Harvard Law School; for five years he was president of the Delaware State Normal School, and afterwards principal of the Harkness Academy, in Wilmington, Delaware. He was admitted to the Waldo Bar, in January, 1884, and soon afterwards returned to Wilmington, Delaware, where he now resides.

GEORGE FRANK HARRIMAN, son of the late Hon. Willard P. Harriman, was born in Waldo, 16 September, 1852. He received the degree of A.B. at Bowdoin College in the class of 1875, and having been admitted to the Bar of Waldo County the same year, took the degree of LL.B. at Boston University in 1876. He practiced in Belfast in connection with his brother, James Sumner, from 1878 to November, 1882, and in 1882 he removed to New York, where he is a member of the legal firm of Harriman & Fessenden.

CHARLES EDMAN JOHNSON, a native of Freedom, studied law with Enoch K. Boyle, and was admitted to the Bar in April term of court, 1872. He practiced in Belfast from May, 1877, to August, 1878, and afterwards removed to Georgia, where he engaged in manufacturing. He now resides at Fairfield, Maine.

WAYLAND KNOWLTON, son of Hon. Joseph W. Knowlton, of Liberty, was admitted to the Bar in April, 1879. He practiced in Liberty two years, when he came to Belfast, where he continues to reside. He was the Democratic candidate for Register of Probate in 1900.

WILLIAM HENRY McLELLAN, JR., son of Hon. William Henry McLellan, received an education at Geneva, Switzerland, and Stuttgart, Germany. He returned to this country in 1884, studied law with his father in Kansas City, Missouri, two years, and at the Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the Maine Bar at the January term of the Supreme Court in 1890, practiced in Belfast a year, and then formed a partnership with Hon. Thomas W. Vose, of Bangor, which continued until 1893. He then removed to Toledo, Ohio, where he is still in practice.

HUGH DEAN McLELLAN, son of Hon. William Henry McLellan, and younger brother of the foregoing, was born in Belfast, 10 September, 1876. He graduated at Colby College in 1895, studied law with his father, and was admitted to the Bar in April, 1897. During the two following years he was principal of the Belfast High School. In 1898, he received the Democratic nomination for County Attorney. In the same year Judge Webb appointed him Referee in Bankruptcy under the new law, a position which he held until October, 1899, when he resigned and went to New York to continue his legal studies at the Law School of Columbia University, receiving the degree of LL.B. at that institution in 1902. He was admitted to the Suffolk County (Massachusetts) Bar in 1902, and has since been engaged in the general practice of law, in Boston, with offices at 10 Tremont Street.

REUEL WILFORD ROGERS, son of Cyrus W. and Jane (Estes) Rogers, was born in Troy, 20 August, 1846. He graduated at Bates College in 1874, studied law with James Libby, Jr., of Unity, and was admitted to the Bar in April, 1877. He practiced in Burnham until August, 1878, and then removed to Belfast. In 1881, he became a partner of Hon. George Edwin Johnson. During 1882-83, he was Deputy Collector of Customs; County Attorney, 1885-86; and in April, 1888, was appointed Judge of the Police Court, a position which he now occupies. He married Miss Angie E. Libby, of Burnham, in 1881.

WILLIAM PITT THOMPSON, a native of Troy, removed to Unity, when three years old. In early life he worked upon a farm, and followed the sea. Later, he attended the East Maine Conference and Readfield Seminaries, and during his vacations taught thirty-three terms of school in Waldo and other counties. After reading law with Judge George Edwin Johnson and the late Enoch K. Boyle, he was admitted to the Waldo Bar in October, 1870. He commenced practice in North Vassalboro, and was chosen representative from that town in 1875. He removed here in April, 1876. In 1877, he formed a copartnership with Hon. Robert Franklin Dunton, which continued until June, 1890. He was City Solicitor in 1878; Alderman, 1882-85; Democratic candidate for Governor in 1890, and for Congress two years later; Mayor of Belfast, 1891-92, and Collector of Customs, 1893-96. From 1894 to March, 1897, he was in partnership with Norman Wardwell, Esq. In 1899, Mr. Thompson received the appointment of Register in Bankruptcy. In 1900, as a candidate for County Attorney, he ran largely ahead of the rest of the ticket.

He resides (1912) in Bangor, where he is engaged in the practice of the law.

NORMAN WARDWELL, a native of Brooksville, studied law with Hon. George M. Warren, of Castine, and was admitted to the Bar in Belfast at the January term of the Supreme Court in 1894. Shortly after, he became associated with Hon. William Pitt Thompson, and so remained until March, 1897, when he removed to Bangor. He was City Solicitor of Belfast, in 1895-96, and in 1896 a member of the School Committee.

TILESTON WADLIN, was born in Northport, 19 January, 1851. He has been Clerk of the Courts since October, 1886, first by appointment in the place of William Berry, deceased, and subsequently by repeated elections. He was admitted to the Bar in Oxford County, in May, 1899, but has never been in active practice. He married Miss Almatia Aubine Brown, of Morrill, 17 January, 1882.

FREDERICK STEVENS WALLS, a native of Searsmont, was Sheriff from 1877 to 1879, and in April of the last-named year was admitted to the Bar, but did not practice in Belfast. Subsequently he acted as Deputy Collector of the Customs. In 1890, he removed to Vinalhaven, where he continues to reside. He has since been Senator, and Representative to the Legislature.

JOSEPH WILLIAMSON, JR., born in Belfast, 14 February, 1869, graduated at Bowdoin College in 1888, studied law at Boston University, and with his father. His admission to the Bar was in October, 1891. He formed a partnership with the latter, which existed until June, 1893. He then removed to Augusta, where he continued to practice, as a member of the firm of Williamson & Burleigh. Before leaving Belfast, he served on the School Committee. He is at present (1912) County Attorney for Kennebec County, and a member of the firm of Williamson, Burleigh & McLean.

WALTER FRANK FREDERICK, was born in Belfast, 27 November, 1868, son of Frank Bartlett and Georgianna (Boardman) Frederick. He attended the local schools, and when about eighteen years of age removed to Boston with his mother and brothers, George and Frank, all of whom have since died. His legal education was acquired in the practical experience of twenty-five years' employment in the Massachusetts courts. He entered such employment almost immediately after leaving Belfast, and began his studies under the direction of those in charge of the various departments with which he was connected, and with private tutors. He was admitted as an attorney, in 1902, to the Suffolk County (Massachusetts) Bar, and was afterwards appointed by the judges of the respective courts as Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court, Assistant Clerk, and later Clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court. He was elected Clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court for one term, but was defeated for reelection, after a hard-fought contest, which excited widespread interest. His defeat was a matter of much regret to the better element of Boston's voters, as well as to his legal colleagues, to whom his long familiarity with the workings of the courts had made his official services invaluable. He is at present engaged in the general practice of the Law in Boston, as a member of the firm of Ham, Frederick & Yont.

CARLOS COOLIDGE ALDEN. (The following biographical sketch is taken from the publication entitled "Who's Who in America," Vol. VII, 1912-13, by permission:)

Home: 27 Ashland Ave. Offices: 60 Wall St., New York, and 933 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

The above is a grandson of the late Hon. Hiram Orlando Alden, of Belfast, and a son of Edward Alden, Esq., now of New York. His mother, Adelaide Cousens, was a daughter of Captain John Cousens, of Belfast.

CLARENCE FREEMAN FRENCH, was born in Belfast, 20 August, 1864, son of Allen Drinkwater and Mary Elizabeth (Yates) French. He was a student at the Harvard Law School in 1888-89 and was admitted to the Bar in Middlesex County, Massachusetts, in 1889. He practiced at Fort Paine, Alabama, 1889-90; in Waltham, Massachusetts, 1890-1900; and in Boston since 1900, now having his office at 16 State Street. His practice is mostly in real estate, probate, and corporation matters. He has been special counsel for the City of Waltham in some important cases. He has held the following public offices in Waltham: Alderman for two years; Chairman of License Commissioners for one year; and member of the School Committee for the last eight years.

BORDMAN HALL was born in Bangor, 18 April, 1856, son of Colonel Joseph F. and Mary M. Hall, who moved to Belfast in 1860. Mr. Hall attended the Waterville Classical Institute and Colby University. After studying law with the late Attorney-General William Henry McLellan, he took his degree of LL.B. at Boston University, and began the practice of law in Boston. He has served on the School Board and the Board of Aldermen of that city, and for three years was Assistant United States Attorney during the Cleveland administration. Mr. Hall has served as a newspaper correspondent, and has from time to time written on law subjects. He married Mary E. Hamlin, of Waterville, Maine.

EDGAR GILMAN PRATT, son of Captain Nichols and Abbie (Veazie) Pratt, was born in Shanghai, China, 2 May, 1874. He was educated in the public schools at Belfast; was graduated from the Belfast High School in 1892; from Bowdoin College with the degree of A.B. in 1897, and from the New York Law School with the degree of LL.B. in 1899. He was admitted to practice at the New York Bar in the same year and immediately began the exercise of his profession in New York City. In 1905, he settled in Redlands, California, and has ever since been a resident of that city, — engaged in business and in the practice of his profession. In 1905, he married Alice, the daughter of Ebed L. and Elizabeth Ripley, of Hingham Centre, Massachusetts. They have one child, Nichols Pratt.

ALBERT BOYD OTIS. (The following sketch, by Hon. Joseph Williamson, is reprinted from the "N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg." of January, 1898. At the suggestion of the Otis family slight corrections have been made in the genealogical data:)

The subject of this biographical sketch was born on the 24th day of June, 1839, in Belfast, Maine, where he died on the 17th day of January, 1897.

His father, Samuel Otis, born in Wiscasset, Maine, May 25, 1805, was for over half a century a merchant in Belfast, until his death

October 19, 1884. His mother, whose maiden name was Eliza M. Nickerson, born in Belfast, July 28, 1812, was married December 27, 1832, and died March 16, 1889.

His paternal grandfather, David Otis, was born in Bristol, Maine, October 22, 1766. Thirty years later he moved to Wiscasset, where he married Jane, daughter of Colonel Samuel Boyd, of that town. David Otis was a master mariner of ability and enterprise. He died in 1849, having survived his wife eleven years. Samuel Otis, father of David, first resided in Dartmouth, Massachusetts. He emigrated to Nova Scotia in 1761, and lived in the township now called Yarmouth. His name appears in the membership of a committee appointed to divide the forfeited lands of that township, under the act of August, 1761. Returning to New England about 1765, he settled on Katherine Island, now Rutherford Island, in Bristol, Maine, which he afterwards purchased. In 1775, he became chairman of the Committee of Safety, and in that capacity addressed a letter to the Provincial Congress, which is preserved among its records. His death occurred in 1805. There is little doubt that the family descends in a direct line from John Otis, — Otis, or Outtis, — who came to Hingham, in 1632, from Glastonbury, near Wells, in Somersetshire, England.

On his mother's side, Mr. Otis had a like honorable line of ancestry. Her father, Salathiel Nickerson, born in Chatham, Massachusetts, November 1, 1789, died in Belfast, February 13, 1868. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and a successful merchant. His wife, Martha Rogers McClure, was a daughter of James McClure, a Revolutionary officer, whose father came from the north of Ireland in 1727, and with two others made the first settlement of Hillsboro, New Hampshire.

The father of Salathiel Nickerson also lived in Chatham. He was a Revolutionary soldier, a representative to the General Court of Massachusetts, and a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1820. He lived to the age of eighty-seven. His ancestor, William Nickerson, was an early immigrant to Massachusetts. The Admiralty Records of London show the examination of William Nickerson, of Norwich, in Norfolk County, weaver, aged 33, and Anne, aged 28, with four children, all intending, April 8, 1637, to go to Boston, New England, "to inhabit." It is said that he first went to Watertown. He subsequently settled in Chatham, having bought land there of the Indians. On his mother's side through the Nickersons, Mr. Otis was also descended from Elder William Brewster and from Stephen Hopkins, both signers of the Mayflower compact in 1620. The ancestry of Mr. Otis, therefore, embraces two of the Pilgrim Fathers. He always took more pride, however, in his connection with the sturdy Scotch-Irish families of Boyd and Nesmith, than in his Plymouth progenitors.

The early education of Mr. Otis was obtained in the public schools of Belfast and at Westbrook Seminary, near Portland. In 1859, he entered the freshman class of Tufts College, and four years later took the degree of Bachelor of Arts at that institution. His natural ability, fondness for study and close application won for him the highest honors. He received the Goddard Prize for English composition, and at the termination of his college course was chosen a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, which, as is well known, admits only the first scholars in its several branches as members. After graduating he read law for a year with Hon. Nehemiah Abbott, of Belfast, then engaged in an extensive practice, and having passed another year at the Law School at Harvard College, was admitted to the Waldo County Bar at the October term of the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine in 1865.

Desiring to obtain a still higher standard of legal equipment, he devoted an additional year to study at the Dane Law School, receiving in 1866 the degree of Bachelor of Laws from Harvard, and in the same year the degree of Master of Arts from his Alma Mater.

Immediately commencing practice in Boston, he was for several years connected in legal business with the late ex-Governor John Albion Andrew (Bowdoin College, 1837), and after the death of the latter, with the Governor's son, Hon. John Forrester Andrew (Harvard University, 1872), recently deceased.

Mr. Otis did not aspire to distinction in the forensic department of his vocation. He preferred "the cool sequestered vale of life" to the strifes of the courtroom. His natural function was that of adviser and counsellor rather than that of barrister or advocate. In positions of confidence and trust his services were constantly employed. Public honors did not possess for him an attraction. "Quiet studies" and the companionship of chosen friends gave him an enjoyment rarely to be found amid the excitement of political life.

As a man, friend, and neighbor, Mr. Otis was greatly esteemed. His sincerity and candor commanded the respect of all who came within his influence. In conversation there were few subjects which he did not illustrate by fascinating and brilliant remarks. He was ever ready with a pertinent anecdote, and a certain felicity of expression which never failing to enlist attention made his presence welcome and entertaining wherever he went. But his bright shafts were free from acerbity, and left no wound. To malevolence or envy he was a stranger. If he could not speak well of one, he spoke not at all. He had gathered a large library of the books which he loved, and of which he was a constant reader, and his literary criticisms were just and sagacious. The memory of his endearing qualities will always be cherished by those who knew him. An old neighbor said, upon learning of his death, "he was a man made to be loved."

Mr. Otis was tall and erect of figure, of handsome features, of courteous and dignified bearing, and of a countenance which was full of light, especially when it reflected the sallies of quiet humor which he was ever ready to give and to receive.

During the last ten years of his life he passed a part of every season at Isle au Haut, off the coast of Maine, where, with other members of the "Point Lookout Club," he had landed interests. He was never married. An only sister, Martha Jane Otis, survives him. Soon after his mother's death, he purchased the Nickerson homestead, so called a beautiful spot at "The Narrows," just above the business centre of Belfast, and commanding a view of the wide expanse of Penobscot Bay, and the blue summits of Mount Desert. Here, during many summers, he engaged in horticulture. The adornment of his grounds, as well as of the rooms of the old-fashioned house in which he lived, showed in every detail his refined and cultivated taste.

The death of Mr. Otis, which resulted from heart disease, was sudden. Although his friends had been long aware that he was in declining health, his cheerful spirits suggested no immediate apprehension of danger. He was to be seen about the streets as usual only the day before he died.

In religious faith Mr. Otis was a Unitarian, and was much attached to the service of King's Chapel in Boston, which for many years was his place of worship. While in Belfast, he constantly attended services at the Church of the First Parish.

He became a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1869, and for several years acted as one of the Committee on Papers and Essays. Since 1885, he has been on the roll of corresponding members of the Maine Historical Society. In the objects of these organizations he ever manifested a deep interest, and constantly contributed to them not only with his pen, but by donations of books and ancient documents. Of the Belfast Free Library he was a liberal patron, and his valued counsel concerning its management is held in grateful recollection.

CHAPTER XXII

PHYSICIANS

Names of those in Practice in 1875 — Regular Allopathic and Homœopathic Physicians since — Biographical Sketches — Physicians of Other Schools — Resident Dentists — Belfast Dentists practicing elsewhere — Veterinary Surgeons.

IN January, 1875, the following physicians were in practice in Belfast: John George Brooks, David Pollard Flanders, John Murray Fletcher, John Homer, Horatio Huntington Johnson, Jr., Richard Moody, Lewis Warrington Pendleton, Elmer Small, and Albert Thompson Wheelock. Biographical sketches of each, up to that date, are given in the earlier volume. Doctors Brooks, Flanders, and Small are all of the number who remain.

DR. JOHN GEORGE BROOKS gradually relinquished active practice, after 1872. He served as Mayor of Belfast, in 1874 and 1875, and as Representative to the Legislature in 1880. He has been a trustee of the Belfast Savings Bank from its establishment in 1868, and since 1879, has been president of the Belfast National Bank. Dr. Brooks died 24 March, 1904.

DR. DAVID POLLARD FLANDERS continues in the same active and successful practice which has characterized him for over forty years, and still occupies the office in the Opera House Block, Belfast, where he has been since its erection in 1866.

DR. JOHN MURRAY FLETCHER, who had practiced in Belfast since 1874, died 7 August, 1899, of pleurisy, after a long illness. In addition to general practice, he made a specialty of diseases of the eye, for which he took a post-graduate course in New York. He was active in municipal affairs, being a member of the City Council in 1879 and 1880, an Alderman in 1881, City Physician, 1878-80, and Mayor in 1897 and 1898. During his administration, the railroad debt was refunded with a reduced rate of interest. In 1885 and 1886, he held the office of County Treasurer, and for several years received the appointment of Pension Examining Surgeon. He belonged to four Masonic institutions. His widow, a daughter of the late Dr. George Holmes, of Belmont, and two children, Edward Holmes Fletcher and Sarah Holmes Fletcher who married George Austin Bailey, survived him. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bailey are both now deceased.

DR. JOHN HOMER, a graduate of Harvard University Medical School in 1863, came to Belfast at the close of 1874, and remained about four years. His office was at No. 58 Main Street. He was City Physician in 1877.

DR. HORATIO HUNTINGTON JOHNSON died of typhoid fever, 4 August, 1896, aged fifty-one. He took great interest in surgery, and achieved high success in many complicated cases. A close student of his profession, he kept up with the advance in medical science and practice. As a man, he was social, and had many friends. He married Martha, daughter of Captain William H. Brown, who survives him.

DR. RICHARD MOODY, who came to Belfast in 1829, died 2 October, 1884, aged eighty-one years. He was born in Saco. He graduated from the Medical School of Maine in 1828, and began the practice of his profession in Belfast two years later. During his long and active life, he took a lively interest in all matters pertaining to the social, moral, and intellectual improvement of the community. He was of decided opinions, and thoroughly honest and conscientious. He was Mayor of Belfast in 1860. For many years he was a prominent Odd Fellow. For some years prior to his death he had been in failing health, and passed several winters in Virginia. His widow, Eliza J. Moody, a daughter of the late Frye Hall, and four children, William H., Richard Henry, Mrs. Augusta Jane Moody Howes, and Mrs. Elizabeth Moody Daughtrey, of Norfolk, Virginia, survived him.

DR. LEWIS WARRINGTON PENDLETON. In March, 1880, after fifteen years of professional life in Belfast, Dr. Pendleton removed to Portland, where he soon acquired a large practice, and became one of the best known and successful physicians in that city. His death took place at Palm Beach, Florida, 11 January, 1898, at the age of fifty-three. He was a man of integrity, a good citizen, and a warm friend. He was survived by his widow, a daughter of the late William Harrison Conner, of Belfast. Their son, Dana, a promising young man of eighteen, died in 1896.

DR. ELMER SMALL, whose professional life in Belfast began 1 January, 1872, continues in active and extensive practice. He was appointed to the United States Marine Hospital service in 1891.

DR. ALBERT THOMPSON WHEELLOCK, died 5 March, 1876, aged sixty-three years. He resided in Belfast thirty-four years. He was never married.

DANIEL SYLVESTER, although not the recipient of any diploma authorizing the title of Doctor, was called such for many years, and should be mentioned in this connection. He was born in Freedom, in 1808, and learned the trade of a wheelwright. When twenty-five years old, he was treated for illness by the noted Dr. Samuel Thompson, from whom he received instruction in the Thompsonian system. In 1835, after practicing in Freedom and other towns, he came to Belfast, where he remained until his death, which took place 17 July, 1895, at the age of eighty-seven years. In 1840, he married Jane, daughter of the late Robert Patterson, 2d, of Belfast. Of their five children, Mrs. Lizzie Hall, a well-known school-teacher, survives. A son, Eugene, died in Andersonville Prison during the Civil War. Dr. Sylvester was a man of strong prejudices, but of good judgment.

The following regularly educated allopathic and homœopathic physicians came to Belfast after January, 1875. Their names are given alphabetically: —

DR. FRED A. DAVIS, a graduate of the Hahnemann Medical College of Philadelphia, came to Belfast in May, 1884. He had practiced at Ellsworth. His office was in Phoenix Row. His stay was brief.

DR. ARTHUR CHILDS ELLINGWOOD was born in Swanville, 4 December, 1846. He received the degree of M.D. at the Medical School of Maine, in 1873. He first practiced at the Head of the Tide, and removed to the city proper in 1890. He was City Physician in 1886, 1887, 1888, 1891, and 1892.

DR. EDWARD WILLIAM GOULD resided in Belfast from 1878 to 1884. He was born in Bucksport, 27 May, 1853; graduated at the Maine Medical School in 1887; practiced at Swanville and Searsport, afterwards removed to Thomaston; and now resides in Rockland. He was Commissioner of Seashore Fisheries, in 1890-93.

DR. JOHN CHELLIS HAM, from Morrill, came to Belfast in 1893. He was City Physician in 1893 and 1894.

DR. HENRY S. HUNTINGTON resided on Northport Avenue,

Belfast, during portions of 1880 and 1881. He is supposed to have died suddenly in Augusta, 10 February, 1884, aged about sixty years.

DR. H. M. JEWETT, from Bangor, but formerly of Woodstock, New Brunswick, a graduate at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Baltimore, Maryland, was in Belfast, in May, 1890, and had an office in the Johnson Block.

SAMUEL WORTH JOHNSON was born 15 October, 1842, in Albion. He graduated at the Medical School of Maine in 1864, and after practicing in Dixmont several years, came to Belfast in September, 1882. He was City Physician in 1883, 1884, 1885, 1889, and 1890. He continues in practice (1913).

DR. GUSTAVUS CLARK KILGORE, a native of Smithfield, was born in 1850. After teaching in several Maine seminaries, he took the degree of Doctor of Medicine at the University of Vermont, in 1880, and commenced practice here in October, 1880, his first office being in the Johnson Block. He was City Physician in 1881 and 1882.

DR. ARTHUR LINCOLN PARSONS, of Augusta, a graduate of the Hahnemann Medical College of Philadelphia in 1890, came to Belfast in June, 1891, and took an office in the Masonic Temple. In March, 1892, he moved to Bucksport, succeeding Dr. W. C. Stetson, of that town. He was born in Augusta, 8 October, 1869, and died there 31 July, 1895. He had married 17 March, 1892, Annie Haywood Treat, who survived him.

DR. EUGENE LESLIE STEVENS, son of Augustus and Sarah J. (Dyer) Stevens, of Troy, was born 20 September, 1865. He graduated at Bates College in 1889, was Principal of the High School at Absecon, New Jersey, 1889-90, and received the degree of M.D. at the Medical School of Maine, in 1892. He practiced first at Howard, Rhode Island, and came to Belfast in 1895. He was City Physician in 1895, 1897, and 1899. He is one of the Waldo County Board of Pension Examining Surgeons.

DR. JOHN STEVENS, JR., a native of Bangor, settled in Belfast in December, 1897. His degree of M.D. was from the University of Minnesota. He was chosen City Physician in 1898 and in 1900. Dr. Stevens married Miss Bessie Loucebe, daughter of Henry Clay Marden, 24 December, 1900.

DR. EVERARD ALLEN WILSON is a native of Searsmont. After being concerned in the business of an apothecary, and attending lectures at the University of Vermont, he graduated at that institution in 1897. Hew as subsequently Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy there. He commenced practice in Belfast in 1899, being associated with Dr. Gustavus Clark Kilgore.

Among persons born in Belfast, who have taken degrees as regular doctors of medicine, and settled elsewhere, are the following:—

He has written and published "The Ear and its Diseases," 1882; "Cruising and Blockading," 1885; "The Sea Letter," 1903; "Southern Buds and Sons of War," 1907; and "Navy Lads and Lassies," 1911.

DR. DUDLEY ALLEN SARGENT. (The following biographical sketch of Dr. Sargent is taken from the publication entitled, "Who's Who in America," Vol. VII, 1912-13, by permission:)

Director physical training; b. Belfast, Me., Sept. 28, 1849; s. Benjamin and Caroline (Rogers) Sargent; A.B. Bowdoin, 1875, A.M. 1887; M.D. Yale, 1878; (hon. Sc.D., Bowdoin, 1894); m. Ella Fraser Ledyard, of Brooklyn, April 7, 1881. Dir. Hemenway Gymnasium since 1879, asst. prof. physical training, 1879-89, Harvard; dir. Normal School of Physical Training, Cambridge, Mass., since 1881. Fellow of the American Assn. for Advancement of Science. Inventor of modern gymnasium apparatus. Pres. Am. Assn. Promotion Physical Training, 1890-95, Health Education League, 1907. Author: Universal Test for Strength, Handbook of Developing Exercises, Speed and Endurance, 1902; Health, Strength and Power, 1904; Physical Education, 1906; also numerous articles and papers on physical training; Handbook of Measurements and Anthropometric measurements. Home: 27 Everett St., Cambridge, Mass. He has one son, Ledyard, a graduate of Harvard, and engaged in research work in chemistry and scientific agriculture.

From the "Biographical History of Massachusetts," we append a few paragraphs concerning Dr. Sargent, adapted as follows:—

While still a boy he lost his father, who was a ship-carpenter and sparmaker; and from the age of twelve he lived largely in the service of an uncle, who was a farmer, merchant, manufacturer, and general builder and contractor. By work with him, young Sargent acquired a knowledge of a variety of manual labors, on the farm, in the mills, in rough carpentry, in the handling of farm products, and in the care of horses. He lived by the water, and learned to row, skate, and swim as unconsciously as to walk, and he had a special fondness for athletic games. During the Civil War he shipped as a sailor on coasting vessels. The value of this early training on his future career can hardly be overestimated. It gave him physical strength, agility, and resourcefulness, as well as a knowledge of men and things.

An adept in gymnastic feats, he accepted the position of director of the gymnasium at Bowdoin as the means of earning a college education. After graduating at Bowdoin College, he took a similar position at Yale, as giving him the opportunity for medical instruction. He remained at Yale until 1879, when he became director of the Hemenway Gymnasium at Harvard, where he continues.

In 1881, he established a normal school in Cambridge for the training of teachers in physical education, and started the Harvard Summer School of Physical Training in 1887. These two schools have had an attendance of some twenty-five hundred students of both sexes, many of whom have gone forth to teach the various branches of physical education in schools, colleges, and athletic associations throughout the United States and Canada. Military and naval schools have adopted his system of measurements and his apparatus; and distinguished military officers have been among his pupils.

He has invented many pieces of gymnastic apparatus and developing appliances, anthropometric charts, and systems of measurements, cards and handbooks. Together with the late Frederick Law Olmsted, he planned and established the first out-of-door gymnasium in America, at the Charlesbank in Boston.

Dr. Sargent is president of the Boston Health Education League, which has for its chief function the publication and dissemination of literature on personal hygiene and the general care of the health. Some two hundred thousand of these booklets have been distributed to boys and girls at school, to working-men and women, and to fathers' and mothers' Clubs.

In view of Dr. Sargent's prominent position as a physical director, and his lifelong success in educating youth, it may be of interest to repeat here his oft-quoted advice, as follows: "Young men should peruse the biographies of those who have succeeded in life, and should early engage in a variety of manual occupations and athletic exercises, thus training their active as well as their receptive faculties."

DR. HERBERT EUGENE KNOWLTON, born at Belfast, 28 February, 1866; son of Lewis Allen and Elizabeth Eaton (Pendleton) Knowlton. He graduated at the Harvard Medical School, with the degree of M.D. in 1891, and established himself in practice in Cambridge, Massachusetts, where he still continues.

GEORGE FRANKLIN EAMES, M.D., D.D.S. He received the degree of D.D.S. from the Philadelphia Dental College in 1877, and that of M.D. from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1882. He was Professor of Pathology and Therapeutics in Boston Dental College from 1888 to 1899; president of the Massachusetts Dental Society, 1888-89, of the Dental Section, American Medical Association, 1904-05, and of the American Academy of Dental Science, 1900. He is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society and an Active Fellow of the Boston Medical Library Association. He is author of "Practice of Dental Medicine," a work which was adopted as a textbook in dental colleges by the National Association of Dental Faculties; and was the originator of the individual communion cup in churches, etc. From 1900 to 1905 he was an American correspondent of the French journal "La Revue de Stomatologie."

FREDERICK CLIFFORD GAY, M.D., son of Edwin H. and Mary (Murch) Gay, was born in Belfast, 18 April, 1864. He graduated from the Belfast High School in 1883, and from the New York University Medical College in 1891. In 1892, he began the practice of his profession in Bangor, where he was elected City Physician and Secretary of the Penobscot County Medical Society. He held these offices until 1894, when he removed to Windsor, Vermont. In 1902, he left Windsor and established himself in Brooklyn, New York, where he has since continued in practice, at No. 7 Hancock Street.

The following list comprises physicians of other schools, or claiming to be such, 1875 to 1900: —

J. A. BEECHER, M.D., electro-therapeutist, who had practiced at Bangor and Searsport, was in Belfast during a portion of 1886.

BENJAMIN COLSON, clairvoyant, came to Belfast from Prospect, in September, 1886.

JASON GORDON, a native of Thorndike, who obtained the degree of M.D. from the Magnetic and Electric School of Boston, commenced practice in Belfast in May, 1883. He died March 3, 1894.

LUTHER WILLIAM HAMMONS, M.D. (degree from Maine Medical Association), electric, who practiced in Islesboro for six years, moved to Belfast in 1891. He was City Physician in 1896.

PRINCE EDWARD LUCE, a native of Waldo, was a member of the medical classes of 1884 and 1887, in the University of Vermont, but is not credited with any degree there. He commenced practice in Belfast in 1887, afterwards resided in Rockland, Bangor, and other places, and returned to Belfast in 1899.

MRS. SARAH FRANCES MEADER, became a metaphysician in 1883, removed to Lynn, and acquired prominence in metaphysical circles, as a writer, lecturer, and practitioner.

B. MERRILL, electric, resided in Belfast during 1880 and 1881.

DR. D. P. ORDWAY, from Belmont, occupied the office in Belfast vacated by Dr. Sherman, in 1887.

DR. H. M. RACKLIFF, opened an office in the Hayford Block, Belfast, in April, 1881. He came from Brooklyn, New York.

DR. JAMES H. SHERMAN, resided in Belfast from 1884 to 1887. He removed to Malden, Massachusetts, and thence to North Middleboro, Massachusetts, where he now resides.

THOMAS HORATIO SIDELINGER. His name first appears in Belfast, as an electric physician in 1899. He received the degree of M.D. from the Medical College of Milwaukee in 1896.

W. A. STACEY, electric, practiced in Belfast during portions of 1878-79.

DENTISTS

DR. GILMAN PINGREE LOMBARD is the oldest dentist in Belfast, having established himself there in 1871, succeeding Dr. Calvin Moore, who moved that year to California. The following is from the "Republican Journal" of March 24, 1890:—

Mr. H. J. Locke, of Belfast, has received a letter from his niece at San Francisco, stating that Dr. Calvin Moore died at his home in that city, March 5, in the 66th year of his age, of apoplexy. Dr. Moore was a dentist, a native of Limerick, in this state, and came to Belfast in 1851 or 1852. He was one of the most successful dentists in the country, and built up a large practice. His first wife died here in 1868. Then he married Mrs. Samuel W. Locke. In 1871 Dr. Moore sold out his practice to Dr. G. P. Lombard and removed to San Francisco, where he has since resided. As in the East, Dr. Moore soon became known at his new home as a skilful dentist, and obtained a large practice. He leaves a wife and six children, two being Mrs. Moore's by her former marriage. Dr. Charles Locke succeeds to the business of his stepfather.

DR. GEORGE WESLEY STODDARD is the next in order. He came to Belfast in June, 1877. In 1886, his brother, Dr. Augustine Oliver Stoddard, became associated with him, and the firm continues in practice (1900).

DR. ISAAC HILLS began practice in Belfast in 1878.

DR. CHARLES WILLARD JENNYS advertised as a dentist in December, 1887. In 1890 he went to Brooks and later to Milbridge, returning in 1908, to practice in Belfast.

DR. WILLIAM CUNNINGHAM LIBBEY, who had practiced at Presque Isle and at Pittsfield, opened an office in Belfast 24 November, 1892. Dr. Libby was born in Belfast in 1867, attended the city schools and graduated from the Maine Central Institute in 1887. The next year and a half he passed in the dental office of E. C. Bryant, Pittsfield. Then he took courses in the Baltimore, Maryland, College of Dental Surgery. Next he was in Presque Isle one year, and returned to Belfast, where he continues to practice (1913).

Dr. Irving M. Luce, now of Merrimack, Massachusetts, practiced in Belfast in the summer of 1891.

The Maine Dental Society, held its annual session in Belfast in 1876 and in 1879.

Among those dentists from Belfast who located elsewhere are Dr. GEORGE F. EAMES, son of Franklin P. Eames, and a graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College in 1877;¹ DR. CLARENCE W. DAVIS, son of the late Marshall Davis, who settled in Augusta; DR. GEORGE H. JENNISON, who went to Lowell, Massachusetts; DR. EDWIN PAUL GILES, in Boston, and DR. FRANK EDWARD FOLLETT.

VETERINARY SURGEONS

DR. FRANK EVERETT FREEMAN came to Belfast about 1895; after practicing in Belfast for nearly a year and a half he went to Waterville, in 1897. He was a native of Northport.

DR. WILLIAM LINCOLN WEST graduated from the Ontario Veterinary College in 1895, with the highest honors of his class. After practicing at Ellsworth two years, he came to Belfast in 1897. In 1899, he took a post-graduate course at the McKillip Veterinary College of Chicago, which was the first post-graduate course in veterinary medicine ever held in America. He was for several years secretary of the Maine Veterinary Association, and in 1898 was chosen its president. He went to New York in 1904, returning to Belfast in 1910, where he still remains.

MILITARY HISTORY

Grand Army of the Republic — Thomas H. Marshall Post established — Project of Soldier's Monument — Memorial Hall — Description — Portraits and Memorials — Cannon placed on the Grounds in front of Memorial Hall — Sheridan Francis Miller Command organized — City Guards — Artillery Guns removed to State Arsenal — Boys' Brigade — Regimental Reunions — Nineteenth, Fourth, and Twenty-sixth Regiments — Thomas H. Marshall Relief Corps — Present Members of the Thomas H. Marshall Post¹ — Sons of Veterans — Spanish War.

THE THOMAS H. MARSHALL POST, No. 42, G.A.R., was organized in Belfast, June 7, 1881. Commencing with the following year it has ever since had charge of the exercises on Decoration Day. In January, 1886, the Post first occupied old Phoenix Hall, and remained there until the destruction of the building by fire the following June. It then obtained quarters in a building on Main Street.

For several years the Post made efforts to raise funds for a soldier's monument. Although the subscriptions were liberal, sufficient money was not obtained. Suggestions that a building combining accommodations for city purposes and a hall for memorials of those of our fellow citizens who had given their lives to the country, with quarters for the survivors of the great conflict, met with general favor. In May, 1889, the following order, passed by the city, induced the formation of the Memorial Association, for the purposes indicated: —

Ordered, That if any corporation duly organized for the purpose shall obtain a clear title to the land between Church and High Streets, known as the Angier lot, and of the adjoining lots covered by the store of Richard Pike Stickney, and by the Washington Hall building, and during the present year shall erect and complete thereon, to the acceptance of the City Council, a building containing a Memorial Hall for Thomas H. Marshall Post, G.A.R., together with rooms and offices for the city and for the fire department; the total cost of said land and building not to exceed $23,000.00, of which cost said Post is to contribute the funds now at its command, estimated at about $2,500.00; that the city will take a lease of said rooms and offices for the term of twenty-five years, at a rental which will secure a four per cent income on the cost of said land and building, exclusive of the fund contributed by said Post, and which will also provide for insurance, taxes, and repairs; said corporation binding itself, at the option of the lessee, to convey to it said land and building at their cost, exclusive of said contributed fund, at any time during said term, subject to a lease of said Memorial Hall to said Post, so long as it shall exist; and said city bonding itself to so pay for said land and building at the expiration of said term; and that the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized, in the name of said city, to execute any and all instruments necessary for carrying this order into effect.

Subsequent municipal action authorized the investment of $22,000 of the Wilson Fund in stock of the corporation, upon the completion of the building, and until such completion citizens became responsible for the money required.

The Angier property having been purchased for $2450, the Washington Hall lot for $1500; and the Church Street store lot for $150, work was immediately commenced by Israel Wood Parker, contractor, according to plans made by Brigham & Spofford, of Boston, architects. The building was completed the following year. It is irregular in shape, two stories and a basement, with projections and a cupola. It has an unbroken front of fifty feet on High Street, and the same, irregularly, on Church Street. From one projection to the other it is sixty-nine feet and two inches. The building is of brick, with granite belting and terra-cotta finish. The interior is finished in ash and in the most substantial manner throughout. The basement is used for the fire department of the city. The first floor, with the entrance from Church Street, is occupied by the Belfast City Government, Police Court, and Treasurer's offices. The city government rooms are supplied with handsome furniture, each member having a table and chair. On the second floor is Memorial Hall, occupied by Thomas H. Marshall Post, the Sons of Veterans and the Ladies' Relief Corps. The cost of the whole was about $25,000.

The City Government held its first meeting in the new rooms September 4, 1890. The hall was dedicated by Thomas H. Marshall Post. It occupied the High Street end of the second story, and is forty-eight feet long by thirty-four feet, six inches wide. This is constantly used by the old soldiers, and its walls are adorned with mementoes, flags, and portraits. Among the latter is one of Colonel Thomas Henry Marshall, presented by his widow upon condition that, whenever the Post ceased to exist, it should revert to her son, Melville Tilden Marshall. A carved wooden eagle, made in France for the Knox mansion at Thomaston, and given by Charles Albert Pilsbury, is placed on the exterior.

The Angier house was built by Paul Giles, before 1805; Washington Hall by the Whigs, as place of meeting, in 1844. When the old Giles house was torn down, an original shingle was discovered with "Paul Giles 1803" on it.

THE OLD CANNON

On May 25, 1891, at the suggestion of Mr. Edward Johnson, a squad from the Post went to the Pattershall Hill, on the East Side of the river half a mile above the Upper Bridge, and unearthed a twenty-four-pound cannon which had been buried there for ten years, and brought it away. It was met above Primrose Hill by a band and a procession of citizens, which after marching through the streets deposited the old relic on the Memorial Hall lot. Later, it was mounted on a granite gun-carriage, and now occupies a position in front of the building. This gun has a history. With three others it was brought to Castine in 1808, and placed in a small battery or fort at the entrance of the harbor. Six years later, when the British occupied that town, the commander of the fort fired one volley from the four guns, which he then spiked and abandoned. On the night of July 3, 1857, a party of young men from Belfast brought one of the guns to this city, where, after various adventures and changes of location, it found a resting-place as stated. The length of the gun is eleven feet, and its weight nearly five thousand pounds.

There is some reason for supposing that it was used at the siege of Boston in 1776, and that it may have been brought from Ticonderoga, by General Knox.

It seemed fitting that some further mention be made of this old cannon, a relic of the War of 1812, and the materials for the following sketch of its history have been supplied, after much research, by George A. Quimby, Esq.

A few days prior to the Fourth of July, in 1857, some young men in Belfast conceived the idea of going over to Castine and stealing one of the old cannons, bringing it across the bay, and firing it "the night before the Fourth." At the time, there was a small sloop at Belfast, of about eight tons, called the Yankee Adams, and seven men started in her on a subsequent evening for Castine, to get the gun. They found, however, that they could not, with so small a crew, handle the heavy piece, and further, that it would probably swamp the boat, even should they succeed in putting it aboard. Their combined efforts resulted simply in dumping it part way down the embankment.

A few nights later, the same adventurous spirits pressed into service a big skow from Peirce's shipyard above the Lower Bridge, and fitted it with rowlocks and put on board a pair of large wheels, which were used to haul timber in the shipyard, rollers, shears, blocks, coils of rope, chains, hoisting-gear, jack-screws, crow- and pinch-bars, axes, shovels, picks, etc. Thus prepared, they started on the night of the third of July, with nineteen able-bodied young men, for Castine. Just before their departure the sail-boat Yankee Adams got under way with a crew of seven on board, the intention being that she should pick up the skow and tow her across the bay. The night was foggy, and after leaving the wharf, neither craft again saw the other, until they finally reached their destination. After rowing the skow for hours her crew saw a light, which they supposed was Dice's Head Light at Castine, but found out later that they had gotten off their course, being swept up the bay by the tide, and were then under Fort Point Light. Working back down the bay, they finally arrived at Castine, and landed near the place where the gun was. After toiling several hours, they succeeded in getting the heavy cannon down the bank, on to the beach, and into the skow. They then induced Captain Hodgdon, of the Day Spring, to tow the skow to Belfast, and on the morning of the "Glorious Fourth," the gun was landed at the lower steam-boat wharf.

It was then discovered that the gun could not be fired until the rat-tail file, which the United States troops had driven into its touch-hole and broken off, before evacuating the fort at Castine and leaving it to the British in 1814, had been removed. This proving impracticable, it was decided to drill a new hole, and an improvised drill being quickly arranged, this was, after several hours' hard labor, at last accomplished. The great gun was then hauled to the high bank below the steamboat wharf, and was fired many times during the day, its echoes booming across the waters of our bay, even to the town of Castine, ten miles distant, whence it had been transported the previous night, and which had not heard sounds of such magnitude since the same piece had last spoken in the War of 1812.

From then, until 1891, this ponderous, old-time engine of war had a checkered career, and a variety of resting-places. It was, as we have noted, brought over from Castine in July, 1857, and was first fired on the Fourth of July, which that year fell on a Friday, from the high rocky bank just below the steamboat wharf; that is, on the ledges, back of the first few houses now on the upper end, of the water side, of the present Bay View Street. Neither the street nor its houses were then in existence.

Some residents of Belmont, doubtless inspired by the example of their city neighbors, stole it on Sunday, the 13th, and carried it to that town. Here it was discovered under a pile of brush, brought back, and placed in the Custom-House grounds, on Tuesday the 15th, and a guard kept over it there for some days.

On a subsequent Fourth of July, it was taken to the Muster Field, above Congress Street, at present the site of the city stone crusher; and used for firing many salutes in honor of the day, after which it was, with the sanction of General Henry W. Cunningham, then a customs official, deposited in the cellar of the Custom-House for safe-keeping. Later, the iron door was torn from the entrance to the cellar, in the night, and the cannon's next journey was to the Rag Wharf, East Side. This wharf, from which those of us of the present generation used to swim as boys, has since fallen into decay and disappeared. It derived its name from the fact, that, in the days when paper was made exclusively from rags, these were landed on it by vessels from Boston and elsewhere, for the paper mills of James Patterson White and others, situated about a mile inland on Goose River.

Some vandals dumped the gun off the Rag Wharf on to the mud flats, where it lay half-buried for a long time, its rusty breech alternately covered and uncovered by the tides. From this resting-place it was dragged, under the supervision of Captain George T. Osborne, to the top of Pattershall Hill, about one mile farther up, and on the same side of the Passagassawakeag

River, and mounted on a sightly and commanding spot overlooking the town, river, and bay. From here its deafening reports roared down the valley and surrounding country to celebrate the election of Garfield and Arthur, and it was here it was spiked with a fork tine, as follows: Three young Democrats had driven over the river to where the gun was, and finding it guarded by a man with a rifle, they enticed him away under some pretext, and spiked the gun by driving a steel fork tine into its touch-hole. On learning that the gun was thus put out of commission, the Republicans had some steel punches made, and drove the fork tine down into the barrel. Captain Osborne helped in this operation, and then, breaking the point off a boat-hook and inserting the hook into the muzzle of the gun, succeeded in pulling out the tine: whereupon the piece was fired, as described, to celebrate the Republican victory.

After reposing on this hillside for ten years, partly buried in the ground, and completely hidden by the long grass in summer, and the snows in winter, it was one day stumbled upon by the late Edward Johnson, while climbing with members of his family to the top of Pattershall Hill, to enjoy the view. At his suggestion it was borne, as previously stated, with appropriate honors to its present, and, we trust, final, resting-place, in front of Memorial Hall. Here its gaping mouth was fittingly closed to the weather, and the red rust of years having been reverently removed from its earth-stained flanks, it became resplendent under successive coats of shining black paint. And then it was placed on the grass-plot and handsomely mounted by the "Old Soldiers" on a granite foundation, bearing the inscription, "1812-1891, G.A.R." The gun is of cast iron, eleven feet long, between five and six inches bore, and twenty inches across the breech. On the breech, cast into the gun, is this inscription, "No. 38-4910," presumably meaning, that when it was cast its serial number was 38, and its weight 4910 pounds. It is generally considered to be a twenty-four-pounder. The foundation and granite for this old piece of ordnance was constructed by the local G.A.R. at a cost of $110; the whole making an appropriate ornament to the grounds in front of Memorial Hall. (See illust.)

In confirmation of the foregoing account of the peregrinations of the old gun, we quote the following from the "Republican Journal" of July 10, 1857, under the caption of "The Fourth in Belfast." "The patriotic ebullitions of our citizens were in the shape of cannon-firing, bell-ringing and such like demonstrations. A company, not yet named, proceeded beforehand to Castine, and from that war-scarred peninsula brought an iron gun, about the size of a pine log, the real title to which may be with the Dutch, French, English, or American government. The roaring of this old 'devilish enginery' sent a patriotic thrill through all hearts, from the far interior to Monhegan."

Every effort was made, at the time, to veil in mystery the actions of the band of men who composed the expedition that went to Castine for the gun, and their names were never made public. It has even been stated that a government agent came to Belfast to investigate the "theft." At this late date, however, no harm can result from putting the names of the participants in this typical Fourth of July celebration, characteristic of the days of our grandfathers, on record.

The crew of the Yankee Adams consisted of seven men, including her owner, Captain Hatch, who was in charge, but we have been able to ascertain the names of five of them only, as follows: Captain Hatch, John Warren Wight, Silas Perkins, Austin Burgess, and Simon Payson. (This Simon Payson may possibly have been the son of the man of the same name who served in the War of 1812, and who, at the age of sixty-seven, marched with the veterans of that war through the streets of Belfast, when the Rebellion broke out. See Vol. I, p. 469.)

Of the nineteen men on the scow, the following fourteen names only are now known: Peter Welch, Axel Lowney, Samuel G. Howard, Frank Bartlett Frederick, Harvey Smalley, George William Patterson, Benson Walker, Charles Gilman, Fitz W. Gilbert, Amos Wooster, Horace Perkins, James Perkins, Isaac Darby, and George T. Osborne. Of the hardy spirits who made up these "gallant piratical crews," of over half a century ago, so far as we know only Messrs. Peter Welch, Harvey Smalley, James Perkins, and George T. Osborne are living, in 1912.

In 1894, a portrait of Washington was presented to the Post by Mrs. Sarah L. Holt. In 1897, it received the gift of a book, called "Nurses of the War," from Mrs. J. T. Gilman, aged ninety-two years, of Worcester, Massachusetts, a former resident of Belfast, whose son, Alonzo M. Gilman, died from wounds received at Irish Bend, in 1863.

At the installation of officers, January 2, 1900, Alden Darwin Chase, in behalf of Charles Henry Bray, presented the Post with a piece of wood from the Washington Elm at Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Two thirty-two-pounder cannon, each weighing 4480 pounds, and twenty one-hundred-pound balls were received from the United States War Department and placed on the grounds in front of Memorial Hall in 1896.

Sheridan Francis Miller Command No. 23, Union Veterans' Union, named in honor of one of Belfast's heroes who lost his life in battle, was organized in 1896. A portrait of Lieutenant Miller was presented to the Union in 1898, by his sisters, Mrs. Julia Gorham McKeen and Mrs. Nancy Maria Marden, of Belfast, and Mrs. Ada Sophia Colby, of Waterville. The Post was disbanded in 1900. Sheridan Francis Miller, who fell near Fredericksburg on the 2d of May, 1863, was the son of George A. and Susan Miller, and a nephew of Freeman Miller. Young Miller was mustered as corporal of Company K, Fourth Maine, was promoted to second and first lieutenant, and when killed was acting as captain of that company.

In 1875, one company of State Militia existed in Belfast, the Belfast City Guards, Company H of the First Regiment. William Henry Fogler was captain, and Fitz W. Gilbert and Allen Drinkwater French, lieutenants. The following year, Colonel Fogler resigned, and was succeeded by William Henry Sanborn. A flag was presented to the company by citizens. In 1877, the Guards spent the Fourth of July at Hampden, and in August, numbering fifty men, attended the State Muster at Augusta.

At the commencement of 1880, certain political differences at the organization of the Legislature seemed to menace public property at the Capital, and Captain Sanborn was ordered to have his men ready to go for its protection at a moment's warning. Although under arms for several days, their services were not required. The company disbanded the following May. A new company, numbering forty-four, succeeded it, but did not organize. In 1880, the two brass guns, formerly belonging to the Belfast Artillery, were carried to the Bangor Arsenal.

In 1883, a militia enrollment made by the Belfast Assessors, showed 766 able-bodied men, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, liable to military service at the call of the State. At that time there were 139 pensioners residing in Belfast.

A Boys' Brigade, composed of two companies, Company A, Captain Luville Pottle, and Company B, Captain Wilson Ellis, was organized in 1894, and both companies were uniformed and armed, the former having breech-loading rifles, and the latter Quaker guns. March 30, a drill and entertainment were given at the Opera House for the benefit of the Brigade, in which a similar organization, composed of young ladies under command of Captain Katherine Pendleton Bickford, assisted.

In 1895, just eight hundred men were liable to military duty in Belfast.

September 2, 1875, a reunion of the Nineteenth Regiment was held. General Selden Connor delivered an address, and a supper was given at the American House. At the reunion at Richmond, in 1878, the address was by Colonel William Henry Fogler.

In 1877, the Fourth Maine Regiment held its annual reunion in Belfast. There was a clambake, and a ball at Peirce's Hall.

In 1885, an organization of the Twenty-sixth Maine Regiment was effected in Belfast in September, Captain Andrew Euell Clark, being chosen president. Historians from each company were appointed. Its first annual reunion took place at Peirce's Hall, August 26, 1886. A history of this regiment was published in 1899. The Thomas H. Marshall Relief Corps, No. 23, U.S.R.C., was established in 1885.

SONS OF VETERANS

A Camp of the Sons of Veterans, called A. E. Clark Camp, No. 43, from Captain Andrew Euell Clark, of the Twenty-sixth Maine Regiment, was instituted in Belfast July 6, 1886, with Charles F. Merriam as captain.

In connection with the Camp, in 1892, a Ladies' Relief Corps was organized. It afterwards took the name of Woman's Relief Corps, and in 1899, of Ladies' Aid Society, Sons of Veterans.

The tenth annual encampment of the Maine Division of Sons of Veterans was held in Belfast, June 7, 1892. There was a parade, and a concert and ball were given by the local Camp.

In 1896, the Camp had an increase in membership, and adopted the regular uniform. In October, they moved from Memorial Hall to rooms fitted up on Main Street.

THE SPANISH WAR

The formal declaration of hostilities against Spain, April 21, 1898, inspired feelings of patriotism in Belfast resembling in their demonstrations the early days of the Civil War. Flags were displayed from almost every public building, places of business, and many private residences. As no military organization existed in the city only a few Belfast young men entered the service.

Lieutenant Seth Mellen Milliken, who graduated from West Point in June, 1897, resigned shortly after to enter business life in New York, but when the war broke out, he offered his services and was accepted. He went to Cavite, Philippine Islands, with rank of captain. Receiver Albert Wooster Thompson, of the Land Office at Clayton, New Mexico, had charge of recruiting men for Roosevelt's Rough Riders in his section. Ensign William Veazie Pratt was in the Navy, and saw some hard service in Cuba in the Mayflower. Among those who entered the service from Belfast were William Oakes Aldus and Ernest Richards, in the Navy; Fred L. Fletcher, in the Second Massachusetts Artillery; Edward Clements, in the Sixth Massachusetts; Fred Trull and George E. Benson, in the First Maine Infantry. Russell D. Sanborn, son of John Sanborn, enlisted in Company F, Regular Infantry, and went to the Philippines, where he participated in three fights. In 1900, he was assigned to duty in the Adjutant-General's office, in Manila, where he remains. Captain W. H. Sanborn opened a recruiting office for the United States Cavalry, and obtained several recruits.

Thomas H. Marshall Post, G.A.R., and A. E. Clark Camp, Sons of Veterans, offered their services to the Government. One member of the latter organization, Ivra Heal, of Searsmont, entered the service and fell a victim to disease.

Belfast ladies furnished two hundred sanitary bands for the soldiers at the front. The victories at Manila and Santiago were celebrated by processions, flag-raising, etc.

In May, 1898, by direction of the City Council, Mayor John Murray Fletcher petitioned the national and state authorities to furnish defences for Belfast and Penobscot waters. This and other representations induced the War Department to place mines in Bucksport Narrows, and during the summer navigation up the river only took place in restricted channels.

CHAPTER XXIV

CEMETERIES

Grove Cemetery — Plan of Lots — City assumes Protection of Graves of Nathaniel Wilson, Alfred Waldo Johnson, and Paul Richard Hazeltine — Enlargement — Iron Fence — Cemetery Trustees — Other Cemeteries.

IN 1875, the following burial places existed in Belfast and are still maintained: Grove Cemetery, East Belfast Cemetery, Head of the Tide Cemetery, South Belfast Cemetery, Citypoint Cemetery,¹ and West Belfast Cemetery. The last-named is private property and is not under municipal control. No new places of burial have been established.

GROVE CEMETERY

An ordinance passed in 1877 provided that every certificate of lots sold should be countersigned by the City Treasurer, and that the superintendent should cause to be made an accurate plan of the cemetery, designating bounds of all lots sold, with the names of the owners, and of all lots remaining unsold. Such a plan, showing the location of every grave, was prepared by William Williams Castle, and is displayed in the Aldermanic Chamber. The next year an ordinance required all sextons to notify annually the owners of lots in the respective cemeteries, of the displacement of any stones or monuments on their lots, and to reset and replace those on lots whose owners were unknown or could not be reached.

By a vote of the city in 1879, the remains of about two hundred of the city's poor and of strangers, who had been buried near the centre of the enclosure, were removed to the northeast corner, and the lots sold. The few headstones were carefully replaced over the new graves. Some of the bodies seemed nearly petrified.

In October, 1885, the following proceedings were taken by the City Government: —

Be it resolved by the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council of the City of Belfast, in city council assembled, as follows: —

WHEREAS, the generous bequests to the people of this city for charitable and educational purposes by our deceased fellow citizens, Nathaniel Wilson, Alfred Waldo Johnson, and Paul Richard Hazeltine, should receive from the City of Belfast a proper recognition and appreciation: therefore —

Resolved, That the City of Belfast hereby assumes forever the duty of caring for, and protecting, the burial lots in Grove Cemetery, wherever the remains of said Nathaniel Wilson, Alfred Waldo Johnson, and Paul Richard Hazeltine are buried.

This recognition was acknowledged by the executors of the wills of Colonel Johnson and Major Hazeltine.

In 1881, the remains of Mr. Wilson were removed from the place of their original interment to a lot near the main entrance, where a monument had been erected by his trustees. The four sides of the centerpiece bear the following inscriptions written by the late Governor William George Crosby: On the front: "In memory of Nathaniel Wilson, a native of Belfast. Born Dec. 20th, 1790. Died Oct. 27th, 1849." Rear tablet: "For nearly forty years in the service of his country." Right side: "The Friend and Benefactor of the People of his Native Town." Left side: An "Intrepid Man, a True Man, and an Honest One."

A touching incident happened at the cemetery in this city recently. A gentleman was walking along the avenue, when he was approached by two little girls, with bunches of violets in their hands, who said, "Please, sir, will you show us Mr. Alfred Waldo Johnson's grave?" While aiding their search, he asked why they desired to find that particular place. "Last winter," was the reply, "when it was cold, and we were very poor, we had a barrel of flour sent to us from money that he left when he died. I don't know what we should have done without it, and we want to put these flowers on his grave." And with grateful tears they laid on the mound their offering of simple wayside flowers. It was the dying thought of a kind-hearted man, this legacy to those in want; but how it will spring up along the future years in blossoms sweeter than those in kingly gardens — flowers that will cause the giver's memory to smell sweet and blossom in the dust! And what a beautiful thought that the kindly, compassionate heart of one gone before can so reach out from its grave to relieve the sufferings of the living! Such a monument is better and more enduring than marble.

In 1889, the cemetery was enlarged by the purchase of about thirteen acres, adjoining the southwest side, from the late Miss Almira Abigail Hicks, for fifteen hundred dollars. A plan of the extension, which comprises over one thousand lots, was made by Hiram Pitcher Farrow, civil engineer. The area of the whole ground is now twenty acres, and contains more than eight thousand graves. The avenues aggregate ten miles in length. Principally through the efforts of the late Mrs. William Colburn Marshall, an ornamental iron fence along the front and a portion of the eastern side of the cemetery was built in 1893. The cost was fourteen hundred and nine dollars, of which all but three hundred dollars was raised by private subscription.

In 1898, a board of cemetery trustees was created by city ordinance. The next year, the hearse, which cost eight hundred dollars in 1881, and was paid for out of the cemetery fund, was sold, and has since been managed by the sexton, in connection with the interments, as a private undertaking.

OTHER CEMETERIES

Plans of the cemeteries in Wards one and four were completed in 1881. They are framed, and are displayed in the city rooms.

In 1893, South Belfast Cemetery was enlarged by the purchase of two acres. Five years later, a fence was built around the whole.

In 1894, the cemetery in West Belfast was placed in good condition by the people in the vicinity, under the direction of a committee of ladies, and an iron fence was put up at a cost of one hundred and thirty dollars. The city appropriated twenty dollars of this sum.

An addition of three fourths of an acre to the Head of the Tide Cemetery was made in 1899.

CHAPTER XXV

STREETS AND ROADS

Ordinance concerning Street Grades — Standpipes — Street Signs placed — District System abolished — New Streets and Extensions of Old Ones — Damages and Betterments in widening High Street — Plan of the Change — Lot at the Junction of High and Church streets — Plan for widening Northport Avenue — Streets unnamed — Road at South Belfast — Discontinuance of Roads.

IN 1876, a city ordinance of Belfast provided that no "highway surveyor should raise or lower any street or way, to the injury of an owner of land adjoining, or so as to incommode any person's house or other building, without a written permission first obtained from the municipal officers."

In 1888, standpipes for filling the street sprinkler were established on Main Street near the Custom-House, and over Primrose Hill. The circular granite watering-trough, placed in Custom-House Square, in 1844, was sold and taken to Northport. The City Government ordered signs containing the names of the streets to be placed at every corner; and two hundred and twenty-five signs were so placed. A movement for systematically numbering the buildings and lots was made.

In 1898, the law creating a road commissioner in the place of highway surveyors took effect; and William Ayer Mason was elected to that position in Belfast. Like all radical changes, the substitution met with criticism.

Below will be found an account, with the respective dates, of the acceptance by the Belfast City Government of various new streets and of the extension and widening of others.

Alto Street. February 7, 1876. Accepted according to the following location: "Beginning at a stake on the southerly side of Belmont Avenue, opposite the entrance to the cemetery; thence south one and one-half degrees west, forty-four rods, to Lincolnville Road; thence south four and one-half degrees west, on Lincolnville Road and to Miller Street, thirty-nine and one-half rods." The street to be two and one-half rods wide, and to be on the easterly side of the above lines. No damages were awarded.

Atlantic Street, running westerly from Waldo Avenue on land of the late Hiram Emery Peirce, is designated in Colton's "Atlas of Maine," 1885, but was never laid out or accepted by the city.

Bay View Street. December 3, 1883. An extension was accepted as follows: "Beginning at a stake standing at the southerly end of Bay View Street as now built; thence south nine and one fourth degrees east, across the land of the heirs of Reuben Sibley, and across land of the heirs of Nehemiah Abbott, fifty rods and twenty links, to a stake in the northerly side of Allyn Street, said street to be three rods wide and to lie on the westerly side of said line."

Beaver Street. A report on Beaver Street of the Mayor to the municipal officers, made October 7, 1878, showed that "the northerly line intersects the southerly line of Main Street at an iron bolt ten and one half feet from the northwesterly corner of the Belfast National Bank building, and that the course of said northerly line of Beaver Street from said iron bolt to High Street was south, eighty-four and one quarter degrees east, magnetic."

Bell Street. June 7, 1875. "Ordered that the street between the properties of Columbia Perkins Carter and Captain Darius Doak, and running from High Street to Union Street, be named Bell Street.

Bradbury Street was continued November 1, 1875, as follows: "East two degrees south, from Cedar Street, sixteen rods, to the south line of the Carlton lot; thence north seventy-nine degrees east, thirty-three rods, to the southeast corner of Frank Merriam Lancaster's land on Northport Avenue; said street to be three rods wide, and to lie southerly of the above-described line." No damages were allowed.

Cedar Street. The following extension was accepted, October 5, 1891: "Beginning at a stake in the south side of Salmond Street in the west line of Cedar Street extended; thence running south by a line of stakes two rods apart to a stake in the north line of Amos Frank Bowen's land; said street to be four rods wide, and lying east of said line of stakes." Damages of thirty-five dollars were allowed Miss Caroline Elsie White, over whose land the extension passes.

Church Street. May 3, 1888. Mrs. Hattie Adela Burkett, owner of land at the south junction of Church and High streets, gave notice of her intention to prevent the prescriptive acquisition of any right of way or easement on the same.

Court Street was extended November 1, 1875, "from the southerly side of Park Street, forty-three rods and ten links, to Elm Street, being four rods wide; taking sixty-three rods of land claimed by Mary M. Hall, of Lincolnville, to whom is awarded four hundred and eight dollars as damages for the land so taken."

January 10, 1876, "Ordered, that the southerly extension of Court Street from Park Street to Elm Street be and is hereby accepted, said extension to be four rods wide, and that one hundred and eight dollars be allowed to Mary M. Hall."

September 5, 1892. An extension of Court Street from Elm to Salmond Street was accepted as follows: "Beginning at the southerly terminus of the easterly line of Court Street; thence south thirty-four degrees east, parallel with Cedar Street, over land of Mary M. Hall, and land of the heirs of Richard Moody, deceased, to the division line between the old McFarland and Salmond lots; thence south parallel with Cedar Street, over land of Albion H. Bradbury, to Salmond Street; said street to be four rods wide and to lie on the westerly side of said line above described. Damages of one dollar each to Mrs. Hall, the heirs of Richard Moody jointly, and to Albion H. Bradbury." ¹

January 2, 1893, a short street was laid out as follows: "Beginning at Bradbury Street at the northwest corner of land of George Edwin Johnson; thence southerly on said Johnson's westerly line nine rods; thence same course to Salmond Street; said street to be three rods wide, and to be wholly upon the land of Edwin Salmond, to whom one dollar is allowed as damages."

Durham Street was accepted and named, November 8, 1876, as follows: "Beginning on the west line of Northport Avenue at a stake on the southeast corner of land owned by Franklin Houston Durham, near the residence of William Bloomfield White; thence west five degrees north, one hundred and one rods, fifteen links, to Congress Street, terminating at a stake on the easterly line of said Congress Street, five rods south of the southwest corner of Irvin Calderwood's garden; said street to be three and one half rods wide, and to lie southerly of the above-described line. No damages allowed. Eighteen rods from its junction with Northport Ave. ordered to be built forthwith, Nov. 8, 1875."

Field Street. January 4, 1875. "Ordered, that the street known as Field Street, lying between Green Street, and Peirce Street, be and is hereby named Bridge Street."

Front Street. September 5, 1893. An extension of Front Street from the south terminus to Commercial Street was accepted with the following location: "Beginning at an iron bolt in the ground nine feet southwesterly of the southerly corner of the Fuel and Hay Company's barn, and in a line with the southeasterly end thereof; thence south thirty-four degrees and thirty minutes east, over Miller Street and over land of C. P. Carter & Co., and land of David Whitten Dyer, six hundred and eleven and nine tenths feet, to an iron bolt on land of said David Whitten Dyer; thence south sixty-two degrees and twenty-eight minutes east, over land of said David Whitten Dyer, one hundred and fifty-six and six tenths feet, to an iron bolt at the line of Commercial Street; said Street to be fifty feet in width and to lie on the southwesterly side of above-described line. Damages of five hundred dollars allowed respectively to C. P. Carter & Co. and to David Whitten Dyer."

Harbor Street. October 7, 1875. An extension of Harbor Street accepted as follows: "Beginning at an iron bolt on High Street, seventeen feet from the corner of Lendal Tyler Shales's house; thence north eighty-three degrees, thirty minutes east, to an iron stake on the west line of Union Street; said street to be two rods wide, and to lie on the northerly side of the above-named line; the length of the extension to said street being two hundred and sixty-five and five tenths feet."

High Street. June 6, 1877. A change in the location of High Street, at the junction with Main Street, was accepted as follows: "Beginning at an iron bolt in the ground eighteen feet westerly of the building occupied by David Lancaster as a store, on the corner of Main and High Streets, and in line of the front of the brick stores on the south side of Maine Street, three hundred and six and one third feet, to a block of granite in the fence at the northerly side of the central entrance to James Young McClin-tock's dwelling house; thence westerly at a right angle sixty-six feet to the westerly side of High Street, to a bolt beside the fence of the Locke lot, said bolt being thirty feet northwesterly from the eleven hundred and twenty-five dollars were allowed to Humphrey Nicholas Lancaster, and three hundred and twenty-five dollars to Samuel A. and Asa Abbott Howes. A sheriff's jury afterwards increased the Lancaster allowance to two thousand four hundred and forty-nine dollars, and upon an appeal taken by the Messrs. Howes, forty-four hundred dollars was awarded.

These changes are shown upon the accompanying plan; the dotted line following the old bounds, while the black lines are those now established. The wooden stores next to the Windsor Hotel, then the New England House, were moved back in 1879.

The sum of fifteen hundred dollars as betterments was assessed upon the Masonic Temple lot, on account of increased value by reason of the foregoing changes. Upon appeal to the Supreme Court, it was reduced to one thousand dollars. In excavating for the foundation of the Masonic Temple the old Nesmith spring of water, surrounded by a well-preserved barrel embedded in clay, was discovered at about twelve feet below the surface, showing that the street level had been much raised since the spring was used.

Control of the lot at the junction of High, Bridge, and Church streets was given to Dr. Lewis Warrington Pendleton, in 1877, by the City Council, subject to revocation. The following year, Dr. Pendleton graded the lot, and set out four trees, of which three now remain. The city has no title to the premises.

Holt Street was accepted June 4, 1894, without name, as follows: "Beginning on the easterly side of Bridge Street, near the southwesterly corner of land of Daniel C. Toothaker, at an iron bolt; thence north seventy-eight degrees east one hundred and ninety and seven tenths feet, to an iron bolt standing twenty-two and seven tenths feet westerly of George Holt's house and in line with the southerly side thereof; said street to be fifty feet wide and to lie on the southerly side of the above line. Damages of one dollar allowed, respectively, to estate of Robert Franklin Peirce, estate of William Holt, and William H. McIntosh." The street was officially named July 2, 1894.

John Street. January 4, 1875. "Ordered, that the street known as Peirce Street, leading from High Street past the house of John Stanwood Caldwell, on Waldo Avenue, be and hereby is named John Street."

Main Street. February 7, 1876. The southerly line of Main Street was accepted as follows: "Beginning at the northeast corner of Frederick Austin Knowlton's store; thence south eighty-three and one fourth degrees west, on a line with the front of the said Knowlton's store, fifty feet; thence south sixty-eight degrees west forty-six and one half feet, to Samuel Augustus Blodgett's line, five feet from the northeast corner of said Blodgett's blacksmith shop; thence south fifty degrees west eleven rods, to bolt in the ground on land of Mary E. Hatch, said bolt being in a line with the front of the stores belonging to Enoch Crowell Hilton, Reuben Sibley, and the heirs of Robert Pote. Awarded to Mary E. Hatch, one hundred and twenty-five dollars; to Milton F. Carter, one hundred dollars; to William Augustus Swift, one hundred dollars; and to Mary M. Hall, one hundred and fifty dollars, as damages for land taken."

Mayo Street was accepted without name August 6, 1888, as follows: "Beginning on the easterly side of Northport Avenue, at a stake in the northerly line of Captain Harrison Mahoney's land; thence, by line of said Mahoney's land, south eighty-five degrees, two hundred and sixty-four feet, to stake at said Mahoney's northeast corner; thence south eighty-four degrees, thirty-eight minutes east, ten hundred and thirty-five feet, nearly to a stake at high-water mark; said street to be forty one and twenty-five hundredths feet wide, and to be on the northerly side of above described line." No damages for the land taken were allowed. The street was officially named June 4, 1894.

Northport Avenue. August 2, 1875. "Ordered, that a sum not exceeding thirty dollars be expended upon the land leading from Northport Avenue, between lots No. 44 and 45, to the shore." In 1885, a petition for widening Northport Avenue was made to the City Council and renewed five years later, supported by a private subscription. The plan contemplated rows of shade trees.

Pacific Avenue is designated in Colton's "Atlas of Maine," 1885, as running westerly from Waldo Avenue, on land of the late Hiram Emery Peirce. It was never laid out or accepted by the city.

Park Street. In 1875, a street was accepted without name as follows: "Commencing at the corner of Park and Union Streets, nearest to the house occupied by Thomas J. Farrow, running thence north fifty-two and one half degrees east thirteen rods, to its intersection with Bay View Street; said new way to lie on the southwestwardly side of said line, and to be three rods wide." No land damages were claimed or allowed. It is a continuation of Park Street.

Pine Street. October 12, 1885. The Street Commissioner was directed to remove the fence recently erected across Pine Street on the easterly side of Church Street.

River Avenue, laid out in 1874, was accepted without name July 5, 1875, as follows: "Commencing at a point on Peirce Street, ten feet eastwardly from the house of Mrs. Miller on said street; thence north thirteen and one fourth degrees west twenty-five rods and five links, to the stone wall between the lands of Eben Peirce and Benjamin Franklin Field; said street to lie to the eastward of said line, and to be three rods wide." September 20, 1875, it was voted that it be named River Avenue.

Salmond Street was widened November 8, 1875, northwardly two rods, making said street four rods wide. The northwardly bound of said additional two rods in width being as follows:

"Beginning at a stake in the easterly line of Congress Street, four rods northwardly of the south bound of said street; thence east five degrees south thirty-seven rods, to Cedar Street; thence across Cedar Street, continuing the same course fifty-five and one fourth rods, to Northport Avenue." No damages were allowed.

March 3, 1879. Salmond Street was accepted as a three rod street as follows: "By adding one rod in width to the northerly line of said street as originally located, along the entire length thereof, between Northport Avenue and Congress Street."

Union Street. An extension of Union Street from Allyn Street to Condon Street, was accepted May 26, 1890, as follows: "Beginning at an iron bolt in or near the northerly line of Condon Street at a point one hundred and thirty-two feet easterly of the easterly line of Northport Avenue (said one hundred and thirty-two feet being measured at a right angle with said easterly line of Northport Avenue); thence northerly, parallel with said Northport Avenue, four hundred and seventy-seven feet, nearly, over land of Durham and Hall (known as the Allyn Field), to the northerly line of said lot; thence, same course, about twenty feet, to the southerly line of Allyn Street, and opposite the present terminus of Union Street. Said street to be forty-nine and one half feet wide, and to lie on the easterly side of the above-described line."

Wight Street, without a name, was accepted July 6, 1891, as follows: "Beginning on Northport Avenue at the southerly line of land of David Whitten Dyer, on lot number forty-three of the first division of lots, twenty rods southerly of the northerly line of said lot number forty-three; thence westerly parallel with said northerly line of lot number forty-three, to Congress Street; the line described to be the northerly line of said way, and said way to be three rods wide, and southerly of said line." The street was named Wight Street August 3, 1891.

November 6, 1899, a street without name was accepted as follows: "Beginning on the westerly side of Congress Street at the northeasterly corner of land occupied by Elisha Knowlton, and the southeasterly corner of land of Addie Maria Stimpson and Elizabeth Aleria Stimpson; thence running westerly on the southerly line of land of said Addie Maria and Elizabeth Aleria Stimpson, five hundred and eighty-four feet, to the northwesterly corner of land occupied by A. K. Wood, the line described to be the southerly line of said way, and said town way to be one rod wide."

Citypoint. December 4, 1882, a street from near the store of S. Otis & Co. to near the Depot was accepted as follows: "Beginning at a cedar post ten links north of the northeast corner of the store of Samuel Otis & Co.; thence in a southeastwardly direction thirteen rods to a birch stake in the ground one rod north of the northwest corner of the Depot building; thence in a northwardly direction, on the line of the railroad company's land, three rods to a birch stake in the ground; thence in a northwestwardly direction fourteen rods to an iron bolt in the ground one rod from the front of the store of Albert Gammans and three rods from the place of beginning."

February 6, 1899, a town way was accepted as follows: "Beginning at an iron bolt and stones about one rod north of the northeast corner of the dwelling house of Israel Adams Gardner; thence running northerly through land of said Gardner to the easterly line of the Paul Road, so called, at the northerly line of said Gardner's lot, fifty rods; the line described to be the easterly line of said town way, and said town way to be three rods wide."

February 7, 1881, it was ordered: "That all that portion of the three spans of the bridge over Passagassawakeag stream at Poor's Mills, commonly called the Poor's Mills Bridge, which lies easterly of a line twenty feet easterly of the westerly side of said bridge as now built, be and hereby is discontinued, and the width of each of said spans of said bridge is hereby established at twenty feet."

August 3, 1885, a report of a committee on the petition of W. H. Banks et al. for a discontinuance of a portion of the road leading from Poor's Mills Road, so called, to the Luther Pitcher Road, so called, recommending that the prayer of the petitioners be granted, was accepted, and the road discontinued in accordance with the report of the committee.

October 4, 1894, it was ordered: "That the road leading from Waldo Avenue, near the school-house, to High Street, near the residence of Albert Boyd Otis, be discontinued." (McMullin's Lane.)

NORTHPORT AVENUE AND VICINITY, IN THE EARLY PART OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

The map of Northport Avenue and vicinity, facing this page, showing it as it was in the early part of the last century, was begun about 1902, by the late Charles Read, at the request of the late Judge Williamson, for this volume. Mr. Read did not finish it before his death in 1903; but his sons, George Tilden and Willis H., into whose possession it came, have, with the help of Hiram Pitcher Farrow, Civil Engineer, completed it in 1912. On pages 634-35 of Volume I may be found some interesting data relative to the original road.

In this connection the following letter will be of interest: —

BOSTON, MASS., April 9, 1913.

MR. ALFRED JOHNSON.

DEAR SIR: In reply to your questions I send you the following: My father, James Patterson White, moved into his new house at the junction of Church and High Streets, late in 1840. At that time there were no structures on the east side of the Northport Road south of this house excepting "the pound," which was at the corner of the lane leading to the subsequent White & Conner shipyard. This enclosure was situated upon the Allyn lot, was forty feet square, and of large boulder stones, some eight feet high, and along its top were laid flat, longitudinal halves of old ship-masts of the largest size, the whole forming favorite roosts for village boys. From "the pound" to an elm tree opposite the Read house going south, it was a measured mile, hence the name "mile tree" (still extant, 1913). This road was used as a trotting-course, and for timing the speed of horses. The fields between the Northport Road and the bay were given to growing grass for hay and for pasturage. There were few trees on these shore lots, but in one of them, the present Johnson lot, not far from the shore, there was a deep ravine, in which were pools which held water all through the summer. Here, largely owing to the presence of this fresh water, was a favorite camping-ground for families of Penobscot Indians, who came down from Oldtown in their birch canoes, erected canvas tents and made highly colored baskets of ash strips. The women, including the famous "Molly Molasses," who lived to be over a hundred years old, wore long calico jumpers, and men's tall silk hats. The men hunted seals and porpoises, and fished. There they spent several weeks each summer. At that time the waters of the bay often swarmed with tinkers and menhaden, and both shad and salmon were abundant in their seasons. The houses on the western side of the Northport Road, running south from the ruins of the old Academy, burnt in 1842, were, as I recall them, occupied by the following: Salmond, Robert White (original lot No. 41), Coombs, Whalen, Eells, Read, Murphy, and at the corner of the road leading to Little River Bridge, the Dodge house. The eastern portions of all these lots were devoted to hay, pasturage, and the growth of vegetables; the western portions to wood lots.

The house which my grandfather, Robert White, built in 1801, on his lot No. 41, was Colonial in style. It had a porch with columns in front, a long ell in the rear, a dairy, a great barn, and sheds for sheep and swine. Large colonies of cliff-swallows built their mud nests under the eaves of the barn and upon the roof timbers within.

After my grandfather's death, this house was occupied by his son, Bloomfield White, who later removed it to another lot, where it was rebuilt, and erected a new house upon the same site. The latter is the house in which his daughter, Caroline White, now lives.

When my father's house, the James Patterson White house, was first occupied, no buildings intervened between it and the water, and the whole expanse of Belfast Bay was open to view from its lower windows.

Yours sincerely,

JAMES CLARKE WHITE.

BRIDGES

Principal Bridges in 1875 — East, or Lower, Bridge — Repaired at Great Expense in 1885 — Project of an Iron Bridge at Foot of Main Street — Location approved by United States Government — Eight Bridges destroyed or damaged in 1896 — Lower Bridge entirely rebuilt — Cost and Description — Free Ferry — Upper Bridge — Other Bridges.

IN 1875, the principal bridges in the City of Belfast were the East, or Lower Bridge, Upper Bridge, Citypoint Bridge, Head of the Tide Bridge, Goose River Bridge, and Little River Bridge.

East, or Lower, Bridge. In 1881, about two thousand dollars was expended in repairing this bridge and in erecting a new pier. The City Council ordered an inquiry into the cost of a new bridge from near Lewis's Wharf to the Rag Wharf, so called, on the East Side of the river. In 1885, extensive repairs were made, costing between three and four thousand dollars; about half of the roadway being covered with cedar and gravel. Travel was suspended for two months, and foot passengers were carried across by a ferry.

In 1895, the project of building an iron bridge across the harbor from the foot of Main Street to near Durham's Wharf on the East Side, a distance of thirteen hundred and fifty feet including abutments, was agitated. In August, it was submitted to a popular vote for the instruction of the City Government, with the result of six hundred and eighty-three votes in favor to seventy-five opposed. The evening before voting a mass meeting was held, at which the dangerous condition of the old bridge, and the prospects of an electric railroad if a new one took its place, were discussed. Plans and specifications having been prepared proposals for the new structure were advertised for. A report of the committee to whom the matter was delegated, recommending an acceptance of the offer of $69,300 made by the Berlin Iron Bridge Company, was rejected by the City Council. A remonstrance by citizens opposed to the project was then made to the United States Government, upon the ground that the location would injure the harbor. After a hearing at Portland, attended by several citizens, the Secretary of War approved the western terminus, but ordered that the eastern one be farther up the harbor. A proposition to divert the proceeds of railroad stock to build the structure being threatened by legal proceedings, the plan came to an end for the want of funds.

The draw in the Lower Bridge was rebuilt and other repairs made in 1899.

An account of the freshet of March 1, 1896, which carried away or damaged eight bridges on the Belfast or Passagassawakeag River, including the Lower Bridge is given in another chapter. Until the Citypoint Bridge was replaced, a fortnight later, travellers to and from the East Side were compelled to go by the way of the Head of the Tide, and over a month elapsed before the former means of communication were restored. Meanwhile, a ferry for foot passengers was maintained.

In 1900, the defective condition of the Lower Bridge rendered thorough and immediate action necessary to provide a safe and suitable highway across the harbor. A change of location to the foot of Main Street was urged, but after careful consideration by the City Government, it was determined to build an entirely new structure, upon the site of the old one. Proposals having been advertised for, upon specifications made by Hon. Parker Spofford, C.E., a contract was completed in May with Harry A. Babbidge, of Islesboro, for $6775. Work was soon commenced, and on the 12th of September, 1900, the present structure was opened to the public. Its length is twelve hundred and ten feet, and the surface is a foot higher than that of the old one. It is floored with double planking. In behalf of the City, Captain James Henry Perkins superintended the work, and while it was in progress provided accommodations for foot passengers. During a portion of the summer, Samuel Batson Holt ran a free ferry from his landing to the East Side of the river.

Upper Bridge. In 1876, Hollis Smart received one hundred and forty dollars as draw tender, an occupation which is now substantially gone. During 1895, the bridge was almost entirely rebuilt, at an expense of $972.50. Bancroft Huzzy Conant and Sanford Hills Mathews were the contractors. It was destroyed by the freshet of March, 1896, but was rebuilt. Three years later, the western approach was graded and widened.

Other bridges. Little River Bridge, carried away by the freshet destruction of the waterworks dam, in November, 1887, was replaced by one of steel. This was in turn replaced by an iron one, in 1894. The Head of the Tide Bridge, weakened by the freshet of March, 1896, was rebuilt in 1897. A new bridge over Goose River, on the Searsport Shore Road, was completed in November, 1886. It is about three hundred and fifty feet long, and four feet wider than the old one.

CUSTOM-HOUSE AND POST-OFFICE

CUSTOM-HOUSE

IN July, 1877, a United States revenue flag first floated from the Belfast Custom-House building. In April, 1891, two staffs were erected on the roof, from which the American ensign as well as the revenue flag has since been displayed.

In 1886, an appropriation of $15,000 made by Congress, "for enlarging and repairing the public building in Belfast," resulted the next year in an extension of twenty feet to the rear, making its whole dimensions forty by fifty feet. The Post-Office rooms on the first floor were somewhat remodelled, but those of the Custom-House occupying the upper story were unchanged. The contractors were M. C. Foster & Co., of Waterville; their bid being $10,961. In 1888, a driveway was built from street to street in the rear, for delivering the mails, and a concrete walk laid. In the summer of 1889 the granite and iron fence between the Government land and the Crosby Inn lot was removed.

The accompanying plan of Custom-House Square, as it was prior to the erection of the Custom-House, was made by George A. Quimby, Esq., from data furnished by the venerable Peter Welch, January 1, 1913. It is approximate only.

Mr. Welch was born seventy-seven years ago, and as a boy lived in the house marked "Peter Welch House," on the Franklin Street side of the diagram. He states that, when excavations were made two years ago, for the extension on the rear of the Custom-House, the cellar wall of his father's old barn was unearthed. His father's name was also Peter, and the present Peter, though nearly an octogenarian, has always been familiarly referred to as "young Peter."

The old stone watering-trough was removed years ago, and is now in use, by the roadside, at Temple Heights, the Spiritualist Camp-Ground, Northport.

The following comments upon the plan are from Dr. James C. White, of Boston, whose remarkable memory and abiding love of the town of his birth have been an invaluable aid and encouragement to those who have tried to carry on Mr. Williamson's historical work: —

259 MARLBOROUGH STREET,

DEAR MR. JOHNSON: —

I am pleased to see the sketch of Custom-House Square. I remember the site of the hearse house and the engine house; — also that at one time Mr. Thurlow had his tailor shop at the apex of the point. I remember particularly that Daniel Faunce occupied a large, green, wooden store on the Main Street side, opposite the Harraden store, while my father was building the brick block at the corner of Main Street, one of the stores in which Daniel Faunce subsequently occupied. A big fire department reservoir was sunk near the "watering-trough."

Very truly yours,

JAMES CLARKE WHITE.

POST-OFFICE

In 1875, besides the Post-Office in Belfast, post-offices existed at Poor's Mills, and at the Head of the Tide; the latter under the name of Waldo. Except on Sunday there were two daily mails each way by train, and by stage daily to and from Augusta, Bangor, and Rockland. Mails also went tri-weekly each way to and from Ellsworth, Albion, Frankfort, and Camden.

In 1878, 584 new boxes were added to the main office.

1880. The office at Poor's Mills was discontinued. It was restored in 1893, and is still maintained.

1883. October 1, the new two-cent postal rate on letters was substituted for that of three cents, which rate had taken effect in 1851.

1885. In October, the Special letter delivery system was established. A ten-cent stamp insured the prompt delivery of a letter by carrier within one mile of a post-office.

1887. In March, an office was established at City-Point. The form of its name was changed to Citypoint in 1894.

1887. In April, John Watson Knowlton, who had been postal clerk on the railroad since it was built, resigned. William Brown Snow, later U.S. Post-Office Inspector, succeeded him, and remained until 1894, when Harry Mellen Prentiss, the present incumbent, was appointed.

1888. In January, 456 lock-boxes of Yale pattern were added to those in the central office, making in all 1030.

1890. The mail service to Searsport and Stockton Springs was extended to two daily trips each way. That to Islesboro began by steamer, instead of by boat across from Saturday Cove.

1893. April 1, the city having complied with the requirement for numbering houses, free delivery commenced, embracing all points within a mile of the central office, and extending to the corner of the roads above the east end of the Lower Bridge, and to the Upper Bridge. Three daily collections and two deliveries were established. Carroll Thompson, Horatio Herbert Carter, Jr., and Charles Benjamin Eaton were the carriers. Percy Raymond Follett was afterwards added as a substitute carrier. Boxes were placed in different localities throughout the city.

1897. From June 20 to September 20, a daily mail service to and from Boston and intermediate landings was maintained, by the outside steamboats, and the service was continued during the two following summers.

The following is the succession of postmasters at the different offices from 1875 to 1901: —

HOTELS

Hotels in 1875 — American House — Landlords — Burned in 1885 — New England House — Windsor Hotel — Phoenix House — Sanborn House — Revere House — Ocean House — Crosby Inn — Description and Engraving — Destroyed by Fire — Financial Condition — Sale of Lot.

IN 1875, the following were the hotels in Belfast: the American House, New England House, Phoenix House, and the Sanborn House.

The American House, formerly the Eagle Hotel, stood on Main Street, on the present site of the Odd Fellows' Block. Its succession of landlords was as follows: 1875, E. L. and H. A. Clark; 1875-76, Jacob D. and B. F. Tucker; 1876-79, Jacob D. Tucker; 1879-82, Will R. Holmes; 1882-84, Humphrey Nicholas Lancaster; 1884-85, William Weeks. In 1879, extensive improvements were made, and water was introduced by a force pump. It was burned July 12, 1885. (See chapter xxxv, on Fires.)

The New England House was the present Windsor Hotel. Its landlords were: 1875-76, Nathaniel W. Holmes; 1876, B. F. Tucker; 1877, Will R. Holmes and Charles C. Clark; 1878, James D. Tucker; 1879-81, Nathaniel W. Holmes; 1882-85, Charles H. Crosby. In August, 1885, the name was changed to Windsor Hotel, and William G. Cox & Son became landlords. The latter retired in 1888. The following year it was sold to Israel Cox. In March, 1890, Robert Brownrigg became its purchaser and landlord. From October, 1890, to 1894, it was leased to Henry Staples and Thomas Haugh. Mr. Brownrigg resumed the management in 1894. Marcellus R. Knowlton, the present proprietor, succeeded him in 1897, and afterwards purchased the premises (1900).

The Phoenix House is located on High Street, between Market and Bridge streets. From 1875 to 1878, R. H. Mitchell conducted it. He was succeeded by A. M. and J. C. Robbins, Jr., who continued as proprietors until 1883; the landlords after that year were: J. C. Robbins, to 1886; Charles A. Ellis, to 1890; and Frank E. Nash, the same year. In 1891, Leonard L. Gentner became the owner and landlord. For a short time, in 1889, the name of the house was "The Belfast Tavern."

The Sanborn House, at the corner of Main and Pleasant streets, was called "Farmers' Inn" from 1880 to 1884. In 1889, it took the name of "The Arlington House," and in 1897, that of "The Commonwealth Hotel." The landlords were: 1876, W. R. Mathews, 1876-80, A. H. Monroe; 1880, C. W. Hill; 1881-84, M. F. Weed; 1884-88, Joseph Sanborn; 1888-90, Alfred Jones; 1890-95, Israel V. Miller; 1895-97, Stephen Peirce; 1897, George W. Patterson; 1898, Edward H. Knowlton, the proprietor in 1900.

The Revere House, on Spring Street, was called "The Dyer House," until 1886. Its landlords have been as follows: 1878, E. A. Dyer; 1879-82, J. C. Crosby; 1882-84, J. D. Tucker; 1884, G. S. Robertson; 1885, Mrs. S. H. Gray; 1886, E. H. Haney & Co.; 1886-88, Ira T. Lovejoy; 1888-89, J. Austin McKeen; 1890, E. A. Jones, who continued in 1900.

The Ocean House, at the corner of Main and Federal streets, was first called "The Robertson House." It was conducted in 1885 by Simeon Ellis, who was succeeded by William Q. Spinney, in 1886; by Robert Waterman, in 1887; by John Jones, 1890-91; by Eli Ellis and Albert R. Thurston, in 1891.

The Crosby Inn. In October, 1887, Colonel Richard Chenery, Calvin Hervey, Israel Wood Parker, Alden Darwin Chase, Albion H. Bradbury, Nathan Foster Houston, James Thomas Pottle, A. Cutter Sibley, and Seth Llewellyn Milliken were incorporated under the name of "The Belfast Hotel Company." The sum of $21,650 having been subscribed by thirty-two stockholders, all of Belfast; the Crosby lot, in the rear of the Custom-House, was purchased for $6500 as a site, and the erection of a house, to be called "The Crosby Inn," immediately commenced. The house was opened June 1, 1889. Its situation combined glimpses of the bay from the upper stories, trees and shrubbery, spacious grounds, and complete retirement, with close proximity to the business centre of the City. It is thus described in the "Republican Journal" of May 30, 1889:—

The main building on the front is one hundred and ten feet long. The southern wing is sixty-seven by thirty-four feet, and the northern wing thirty-six by fifty-seven. This does not include the kitchen, or the Crosby mansion, which is converted into another wing. The building has three floors. A veranda ten feet wide extends along the entire front, with balconies at the second story. No distinct style of architecture has been followed. The veranda might be called Doric, and the upper part of the building Queen Anne. Every room has a window, and the structure has ample light: there are thirty-eight windows in the first story, thirty-six in each of the second and third stories. There are several gables in the roof, while at the eastern corner is a tower extending above the roof and surmounted by a weather vane. The building is irregular in form, the rear wall being several feet longer than the front. This was caused by making the northern wing conform to Main Street, resulting in its joining the main building at an obtuse angle. There are sixty-five sleeping-rooms in the hotel, and it contains all the modern improvements. The whole building is heated by steam, piped for gas, and supplied with water from the Belfast Water Works. The position of the building insures perfect drainage, and great care has been taken in putting in the plumbing. The building cost $40,000, and ranks with the best hotels in Maine. The architect was Mr. E. E. Lewis, of Gardiner, and the builder Mr. Israel Wood Parker, of Belfast.

The first landlord was George H. Bemis, who had for clerks, Waldo B. Washburn and Charles Henry Mitchell. Mr. Bemis remained until November, 1891. Subsequently the hotel was kept open by the directors, leased temporarily to H. P. O. Wright and George W. Varney; afterwards run by the directors, under charge of Fred George White, and then leased to Wright, Varney and Thomas Haugh, who were the proprietors at the time of its destruction by fire, January 4, 1896. (See chapter xxxv, on Fires.)

The following facts show the financial condition of the company. The Crosby estate took $6500 of the stock; five citizens took from $500 to $1000 each, and thirty-two citizens took from $100 to $500 each, making a total of $22,000. To complete the house the company was obliged to issue four per cent bonds to the amount of $20,000, and the bonds were mostly sold to the stockholders. For all stock and bonds the company received full par value. At the time of the fire the company had drawn and paid five bonds, to the amount of $1000. The $12,000 insurance received was paid on the bonds pro rata, leaving the balance of debt $7000. No interest had been paid on the bonds since 1895. The hotel property was repeatedly sold for taxes. In 1900, a compromise was effected by which the city received $1000 in full for its claim, and the lot was sold to Mrs. Anne M. Chenery for $6500. No dividends on the stock were ever paid, and the stock itself was entirely absorbed by the bondholders, who also sustained a loss.

IN 1875, the steamers Katahdin, Captain William R. Roix, and the Cambridge, Captain Charles B. Sanford, made semi-weekly trips between Bangor and Boston, excepting during the winter and early spring months. Commencing in April, the City of Richmond, Captain Christopher Kilby, ran thrice a week between Bangor and Portland, on what was termed the inside route. The Pioneer ran a portion of the year to and from Brooksville, and during the autumn the May Field made four trips each week to the same place, connecting with the outside boats.

In 1876, the steamboat arrangements were substantially the same as in 1875. On the morning of June 17, during a fog, the Cambridge, then commanded by Captain John P. Johnson, struck upon a ledge off Monhegan, but suffered no material injury. While being repaired, her place was supplied for several weeks by the New Brunswick. In December after the Richmond discontinued her trips, the Lewiston called at Belfast weekly on her passage between Machias and Portland. The Pioneer ran between Belfast and Castine until December, when she was succeeded by the Howell. In the summer the Pioneer made one trip each week to Vinalhaven.

1877. The Boston and Portland steamers ran as before. In May, the steamer May Queen, eighty-four tons, built by Carter & Co. for parties in Belfast, was launched, and the next month ran to Castine, being commanded by Captain Fred Augustus Gilmore. On July 12, fourteen steamers engaged in catching porgies were visible in the bay.

1878. The Katahdin, Cambridge, Richmond, and May Queen ran as during previous years. In April, the owners of the Planet were incorporated as the Merchants' and Mechanics' Steamboat Company. On November 7, Captain John P. Johnson, of the Cambridge, died in Chelsea, Massachusetts, aged about fifty years.

1879. During a portion of the year Captain Otis Ingraham commanded the Cambridge. Captain W. E. Dennison succeeded Captain Kilby on the Richmond. In the spring and fall, the Lewiston, Captain Charles Deering, touched at Belfast weekly, in going between Portland and Bangor. During the summer, the Charles Houghton made trips between Rockland and Bangor. The Planet was partially burned October 24, while being repaired. She was formerly a sailing packet to Islesboro.

1880. In April, the Richmond was withdrawn from that portion of the route above Rockland. Simpson's Wharf, at which she touched, was closed to public use. Thus terminated the inside line connecting with the railroad at Portland, after being maintained for thirty-seven years. In June, the Sanford Steamship Company's line added the New Brunswick,¹ and ran daily steamers to and from Boston. During the same month the Clara Clarita, Captain Thomas Reed Shute, ran thrice weekly between Rockland and Bucksport. The Sea-Flower, Captain Charles Thomas Gilmore, on the Brooksville route, was succeeded by the May Queen in December. The Planet was sold to New York parties, for $3000.

1881. The daily line to Boston was resumed, June 15, by the Cambridge, Katahdin, and New Brunswick, the latter commanded by Captain C. Frank Homer. August 30, the Richmond² struck on Marsh Island Ledge, and filled, but no one was injured. She was afterwards floated in a damaged condition. From May to December, the James A. Gary made weekly trips to and from New York, carrying freight only. The May Field,

² In 1898, having been named the City of Key West, she ran between Florida and Cuba.

Captain Farnsworth, commenced running from Bucksport to Rockland, November 28. The Sea-Flower was sold at auction in May, for $1765. She was originally a sailing vessel.

1882. The name of the Sanford Steamship Company was changed to the Boston and Bangor Steamship Company. A pamphlet history of the corporation, formerly known as Sanford's Independent Line, was published this year. On April 10, the new steamer Penobscot, 1400 tons, arrived on her first trip. Captain William R. Roix was her master. Six trips each way between Bangor and Boston were made during the summer. In October, the Mount Desert, Captain David Robinson, commenced weekly trips between Rockland and Bangor.

1883. The Boston steamers made their trips as usual, Captain Rogers in command of the Penobscot, Captain Otis Ingraham, of the Katahdin. The company owning them, added the Rockland, of 100 tons, to run from Rockland to Bar Harbor. The May Queen was withdrawn from the Castine route, and was succeeded by the Florence, of Bangor.

1884. This year, besides the three steamers to and from Boston, the Florence, Captain Adoniram Decker, continued her trips to Castine and Brooksville, and the May Field went every Monday to Vinalhaven. Cyrus James Hall fitted the May Queen for towing vessels between his Mount Desert Quarry and Belfast. During June, the little steamer Brunette ran to and from Islesboro. In October, the Saguenay, formerly the Daniel Webster, which ran on the inside route from 1853 to 1866, was burned in Canada, where she had been owned for several years. The old steamer Senator, formerly on the Bangor and Boston route, which went to California in 1849, was constructed into a barge, and taken to New Zealand.

1885. The Cambridge, Penobscot, and Katahdin continued as in previous years. The May Queen was sold to Captain Robert Tapley, of Brooksville. The Florence ran to Castine. During a fog, on the forenoon of September 23, the Cambridge, when on her way to Bangor, with six hundred passengers, struck a reef near the Monument, and remained two hours, when she floated, in a leaky condition. She went to Boston for repairs. No one was injured. The passengers were taken to Bangor by the Katahdin.

1886. This was an unfortunate year for the Boston steamers.

On the morning of February 10, the Cambridge, Captain Otis Ingraham, with forty passengers and a heavy freight, ran upon Old Man Ledge, five miles from George's Island. The sea was smooth and the weather pleasant. She broke in two, and the next day had entirely disappeared. All on board were safely landed on George's Island. The steamer was nineteen years old, and measured 1337 tons. She was insured for $50,000; less than half her value. The loss on Belfast freight was about $10,000.

On the evening of November 30, the Penobscot, bound to Boston, struck on Otter Island, causing her to leak. She steamed back to Rockland, and from thence went to Boston for repairs. The passengers and freight were not injured.

The Florence continued to run daily trips to Castine; the May Field made tri-weekly trips between Bucksport and Rockland; and for a short time the Three Brothers ran to Islesboro and Camden. In October, Fred William Pote succeeded Daniel Lane as agent of the Boston and Bangor Company. The Steamer Lewiston, 1227 tons, built in 1856, was purchased for this line for $35,000. The May Queen was sold to Salem parties, and her name changed to Frank N. Low.

1887. More steamers than usual plied on the Penobscot in this year. Besides the Katahdin, Penobscot, and Lewiston, of the Boston route, the Mary Morgan ran between Bangor and Rockland; the Electa between Belfast and Castine; the Little Buttercup to and from Islesboro; the M. and M. as an excursion boat; the Lucy P. Miller, succeeded in December by the Caroline Miller, between Bangor, Belfast, and New York. The Mount Waldo ran for a short time to New York. The Mary Morgan, Captain Joseph Wentworth, was a fast iron side-wheel steamer of three hundred tons. She was not successful, and ceased her trips in October. The M. and M. formerly belonged in Thomaston. Her name represents the initials of Mary and Maud, daughters of her first master. The Lucy P. Miller, a screw steamer of 533 tons, was commanded by Captain William Rogers, of Frankfort. She hailed from Key West. The Caroline Miller had double the freight capacity of the latter. She was formerly the British steamer Dawn, built in 1886 at Grangemouth, England.

1888. The Penobscot, Katahdin, and Lewiston commenced daily trips to Boston, June 14. The Rockland ran daily to Rockland and Bangor, and the Electa, Captain Edward True, went thrice a day to and from Castine. During a part of the year the Lucy P. Miller and Caroline Miller were on the New York route. An outlay of about $10,000 was made on the steamboat wharf and buildings. The wharf is 460 feet in length, and 165 feet wide across the outer end.

1889. The same steamers made substantially the same trips as in 1888. The Castine, thirty-five tons, and eighty-five feet long, built in Brewer, came to Belfast for the first time in June. Captain Adoniram Decker, of Islesboro, was master, and she ran a part of the summer to Castine, in place of the Florence.

1890. No additions to the steamers of 1889 took place, except that the City of San Antonio, an iron steamer, ponderous and slow, for a short time took the place of the Lucy P. Miller, and the Emmeline ran across the bay.

1891. There were no marked changes in the trips of the larger steamers. In July, the Viking, owned by George H. Kimball, of Cleveland, arrived from Ashtabula, Ohio, and temporarily took the place of the Electa. The Emmeline ran between Castine and Rockland, and beginning in September, the Castine made semi-weekly trips to Bar Harbor. The Lucy P. Miller, on the New York route, was superseded by the Portland, an iron steamer.

1892. Service by the outside boats continued as usual. In June, the Rockland resumed her trips. The Castine ran to Deer Island, and the Electa, Emmeline, and Viking maintained communication with the eastern bay landings. February 1, the Electa began carrying the mail to Islesboro, the old route by the way of Northport being discontinued. The Pentagoet, formerly the revenue cutter Perry, employed on the Western Lakes, arrived from Quebec and occasionally appeared at our wharves. George H. Kimball was her owner. In July, the City of Richmond was withdrawn from Maine waters, having been purchased by New York parties.

1893. The Boston steamers extended their daily trips later than usual. Between Bucksport and Rockland, the Emmeline made tri-weekly trips, and with the Viking, commenced landing at Lewis's Wharf, which had been enlarged and supplied with a slip for their accommodation. In December, the new steamer City of Bangor, recently launched at East Boston, was severely damaged by fire.

1894. From January to June the Boston steamers made their usual trips, which were increased to daily ones from June to October. On the 20th of June the new City of Bangor, Captain Otis Ingraham, arrived at Belfast early in the afternoon; and was greeted with bells and whistles. She remained an hour and was visited by a large number of spectators. She was built in Boston, in 1894, is 277 feet long, and has a gross tonnage of 1661.41. She took the place of the Katahdin, which was withdrawn. Charles Edward Johnson became the Belfast agent of the line, in the place of Fred William Pote, who joined the new boat as her steward. The Rockland made daily trips between Bangor and Rockland. The Viking continued on the Castine and Islesboro route through the summer and early fall, making two round trips daily from June 15 to September 24. In October, the latter was changed to the Bangor and Rockland route, and the Golden-Rod put on the Castine route. The latter was afterwards succeeded by the Electa. Early in the season the Emmeline made tri-weekly trips between Bucksport and Rockland, but during the summer was kept in Belfast and used as an excursion boat, except during the Northport Camp-Meetings, when she made regular trips between Belfast and the camp-grounds. She afterwards ran on several routes from Swan's Island, coming to Belfast Mondays and returning Tuesdays.

1895. During the summer, the City of Bangor went up the river thrice each week, and left Bangor the same days. The Penobscot and Lewiston maintained their usual service. Early in the season the Rockland resumed her daily round trips. In June, the Katahdin, which had run from May 19, 1863, to June 18, 1894, was condemned as unseaworthy. She was built at a cost of $250,000, in 1862-63, being then regarded as an elaborate and elegant boat. Her first commander was Captain Charles B. Sanford. His successors were Captains Henry S. Rich, John P. Johnson, William R. Roix, C. Frank Homer, Marcus R. Peirce, now of the Penobscot, and Otis Ingraham, of the City of Bangor. All except Captains Peirce and Ingraham are dead. During the spring, the Viking commenced running between Rockland and Bangor, on alternate days. The Florence went twice weekly to Mount Desert. The Emmeline ran on a Bangor and Rockland line, three trips per week, early in the season, was off during the summer and started again in the fall, making round trips daily between Rockland and Bucksport. The M. and M. started on a route between Camden and Bangor early in the fall, but made only a few trips.

1896. Service to and from Boston was given by the City of Bangor and Penobscot, which, during the summer season, made six round trips weekly, arriving at Belfast from Boston in the morning, and returning at five o'clock in the afternoon. Between Bangor and Rockland, no small boat ran until the fall, when the Rockland made tri-weekly trips. In November, the Castine was sold to the Coombs Brothers of Islesboro, who continued her on the eastern route. Captain C. W. Smallidge, her former master, chartered the Florence, and ran her on the same time-table, to and from Castine.

1897. During the busy season, the City of Bangor and Penobscot made six round trips weekly. Their company opened a new route this year, running the steamer Rockland daily between Belfast and Brooklin, touching at intermediate landings. She left Belfast on arrival of the morning boat from Boston and returned in season to connect with the afternoon boat to Boston. During the early part of the year there were two steamers on the Belfast, Islesboro, and Castine line, the Silver Star and Castine. The latter withdrew in July. She afterwards was on a route between Belfast and Rockland, via Castine, Brooksville, and Islesboro. She received a new engine during the year. The steamer M. and M. started this season on a route from Bucksport to Camden, making the round trip daily, and did a good business during the summer.

1898. The arrangement of the Boston and Bangor steamers remained unchanged. In September, the M. and M. was withdrawn from the Bucksport and Camden route; the Tremont taking her place. Throughout the year Captain Smallidge continued the Silver Star to and from Brooksville. The Castine was upon the same route until early summer, when she exchanged it for the excursion business. From June to November, the Coast Navigation Company placed the steamer Salacia, Captain O. C. Oliver, on a route between Portland and Bangor. She made two round trips per week, and during the summer made both trips wholly in the daytime. In August, the Metropolitan Steamship Company put on the Pentagoet, Captain Cates, as a freight boat between New York and Bangor, making one round trip per week. Captain Cates was afterwards succeeded by Captain Orrin Ingraham, of Rockland. She passed Highland Light, Cape Cod, on her way east, the forenoon of November 26, and was never seen afterwards. She no doubt foundered in the gale of the 26th and 27th. It was in this gale also that the Steamer Portland, Captain Hollis Blanchard, formerly of Belfast, foundered at sea with all on board. The Kanawha made one round trip early in December, going to Eastport via the Penobscot Bay route. She was of about 650 tons, and was built in Boston for Mobile parties in 1881. In October, the Lewiston was sold at auction for $1300.

1899. On the Boston and Bangor route were continued the City of Bangor and Penobscot; on that to Castine, the Silver Star, and between Bucksport and Bangor the M. and M., which had received an additional length of twenty-two feet; all running as in previous years. During the summer, the Castine did service as an excursion boat. On October, Fred William Pote, who had been steward of the City of Bangor, resumed his position as Belfast agent of the Bangor and Boston line. The Metropolitan line between New York and Bangor, which the loss of the Pentagoet in the gale of November 26-27, 1898, suspended, was resumed in March, with the steamer H. E. Runnels, 1014 tons. She made but one trip.

1900. The Boston and Bangor steamers ran as usual, the City of Bangor and Penobscot making six trips per week during the summer. Captain Marcus Peirce, of the Penobscot, resigned, and Captain William A. Roix¹ was appointed to the command of that boat. The M. and M. on the Bucksport and Camden line, and the Silver Star on the Brooksville, Castine, Islesboro, and Belfast line, each did a good business during the year. The Castine continued as an excursion boat, and had a busy season. She and the Silver Star brought a number of trading excursions from Castine and Islesboro, all largely patronized. The Tremont began on a route from Bucksport to Seal Harbor, via Belfast and Castine, in January, but suspended after a few trips.

The following paragraph is from a note written by Robie Gale Frye, Esq., of the Boston Custom-House, who has aided in compiling the above list: "Then there were also, the old 'Pioneer,' hailing at the time from Vinalhaven, speed (estimated) about five miles per hour (unless against the wind), which plied across the bay, and among the islands: and the William Tibbitts, which excited interest the first time she entered our waters, because she was an 'iron' vessel, and a 'propeller.' She ran on the Boston and Bangor line (the Sanford Line in those days). The first time in my memory Belfast Bay froze, in 1875 or thereabouts, I used to go down with the boys to see her 'ram' the ice."

RAILROAD AND RAILWAY PROJECTS

Belfast and Moosehead Lake Branch — Officers — Train Arrangements — Waldo Station established — Improvements — Standard Time — Spur Track to Oak Hill — Penobscot Bay and River Railroad — Belfast Street Railway Incorporated — Waldo Street Railroad Company.

AN account of the financial condition of the Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad is given in the chapter upon Municipal Affairs. In 1875, the directors of the road were Charles Bellows Hazeltine, John Warren White, Daniel Faunce, William McGilvery, William McGray Woods, Josiah Mitchell, Philo Hersey, Edward Johnson, Jonathan Garland Dickerson. The succession of officers is as follows: Presidents: Charles Bellows Hazeltine, 1874-95, and from 1897 until his death, 1907, Edgar Filmore Hanson, 1895-96. Clerks: John Haraden Quimby, 1874-95, and from 1897 to his death in 1899; James Pattee, 1895-96; William Henry Quimby, from 1899. Belfast station agents: 1875-77, H. H. Adams; 1878, G. L. Foss; 1878-79, J. S. Little; 1879-97, Frank E. Crowley; 1897, Lewis W. George, the present incumbent. John Atwell Mace was conductor until the summer of 1893; since December 28 of that year, Jere Sullivan, who, as baggage-master and freight conductor, has been employed on the road since its completion in 1870. (1900.)

In 1875, trains left Belfast at 8 o'clock A.M., and 3.30 P.M.; returning at noon and at 7.35 evening. This service was substantially continued until August 23, 1886, when a night train was added, leaving Belfast at 7.55 P.M. and arriving at 5.20 A.M. The fare to Boston was fixed at $5, or $9 for a round trip limited ticket. The night trains were discontinued September 15, 1887, and restored from October, 1890, to May, 1891. Since the last date the arrangements have been as at present. (1900.)

1877. A station at Littlefield's Crossing, in Waldo, was established.

1879, June. A hard-pine bridge was built at City Point.

1882. A solid embankment with a stone sea wall and tidal culvert took the place of the piling between the station and the Lower Bridge.

1883, November 18. Standard time was first adopted in running trains.

1887. Improvements on the Belfast station were made, including a long covered platform.

1888, November. The city requested the erection of gates at the crossings of both bridges. This was done at the Lower Bridge.

1890. One thousand feet of side track were built just above the Lower Bridge.

1891. A new freight house, 140 by 25 feet, was erected.

1892. Car scales and a coal shed were built.

1893. The line was laid with steel rails, and a smoking-car first added to the trains. New station depots were erected at Burnham and Brooks.

1894. The Oak Hill quarry spur track was completed. The rails were removed in 1899.

1900. A reduction of some twenty per cent in fares took place.

In 1875, the corporation known as the Penobscot Bay and River Railroad asked the Legislature to renew its charter, with a right to cross Belfast River at any point desired. A large delegation of citizens went to Augusta and opposed the application, which was refused.

PROJECTED STREET RAILWAYS

In March, 1891, Robert Franklin Peirce and others organized the Belfast Street Railway Company, for building an electric road three and one half miles long from Belfast to Northport Camp-Ground. The route was surveyed, and its location down Church Street and Northport Avenue allowed by the city of Belfast, and approved by the Railroad Commissioners.

The Legislature in 1891 incorporated the Waldo Street Railroad Company, with a capital of $500,000, and with authority to construct a railroad operated by electric or animal power from Stockton Springs to Camden. The road was organized in May. In 1893, the charter was amended by conferring a right to cross Belfast Bay or Harbor, by a bridge at any place above Lane's Wharf. Four years after, another amendment authorized the bridge to be of sufficient width for teams, foot passengers, and the railway tracks of the corporation. In 1899, the time within which the corporation was required by general law actually to commence business was extended to March 27, 1901, and it was authorized to cease running its cars, either by electricity or animal power, during such portion of the winter months as it may be impracticable to operate said railroad on account of snow. An application for a second company, to be called The Searsport and Northport Railway, was rejected by the Legislature of 1891.

In 1900, the chartered rights of the Waldo Street Railroad Company were conditionally transferred to Mr. Harry L. Kochersperger, of Chicago, who agreed that a road should be completed by June, 1901. Nothing resulted from this undertaking.

TELEGRAPHS

THE line of the Western Union Telegraph Company was the only one in Belfast at the beginning of 1875. In December, 1881, Miss M. Adelaide Pillsbury, after twelve years of constant service as operator, exchanged her position for one in Boston. Miss Frances B. Field, from Farmington, filled her place until October, 1885, and was succeeded by Mrs. Olive Etta Staples, now Mrs. Olive Etta Clay. In December, of the latter year, the office was removed from the City Block to its present location in Howes's Block, at the corner of Main and High streets. Its first quarters were in the old building on the same site. In 1886, to avoid snow-slides, the wires were partially removed from Main and High streets to Washington and Bridge streets.

In 1877, a line was built to Burnham, following the railroad track. In 1891, the Islesboro, Northport and Belfast Telegraph Company, with a capital of $50,000, was incorporated and organized, W. S. Pendleton, President.

Late in 1881, the Mutual Union Telegraph Company, with a line between Portland and Bangor, was established. The Belfast office was in the Masonic Temple, in the room now occupied by the People's National Bank, Mrs Horace Eugene McDonald being the operator. Five years after, the line was leased to the Western Union Company, and the office closed. The wires ran to Portland by the way of Liberty.

On the 20th of November, 1881, an independent line to Liberty was opened by the Liberty and Belfast Telegraph Company. The office was in that of the Western Union Company.

TELEPHONES

The first known telephone line in America connected Boston and Somerville in 1877. During that year a telephone exchange was established in Boston.

The earliest telephone in Belfast was an acoustic one, constructed in the fall of 1878 by Fred Titcomb Chase and Hartwell Leon Woodcock, the wire running between the stores on Main Street in which they were clerks. In the summer of 1883, public communication with Rockland, Bangor, and other places in Maine was established by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. The Belfast office was first in Horace Eugene MacDonald's store, in Masonic Temple, and since on Main, opposite Washington Street. Miss Ida M. Burgess became superintendent in June, 1884, and continues as such at present (1900). During that year, a local exchange was established, and several business houses and hotels connected. Some local wires had already been maintained. A wire was also run to Northport Camp-Ground. A new line to Augusta was completed May 7, 1885. In January, 1887, a cable of this line made connection with White Head. In 1894, the long-distance circuit was inaugurated. On the 23d of April, 1898, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company laid a cable measuring nine thousand feet, or a little less than a mile and three fourths, from Sandy Point, Saturday Cove, Northport, to Islesboro.

In 1900, improved facilities were furnished, including Sunday and night service. The force of the office was increased, and consisted of Miss Ida M. Burgess, manager; Ralph B. Stickney and Miss Martha M. Pendleton, assistants.

EXPRESSES

At the commencement of 1875, the Eastern Express was the principal express company operating in Belfast, employing messengers on the outside steamers and on the railroad trains. Its consolidation with the American Express Company took place in October, 1879. Frank A. Gilkey continued as local agent for both companies from 1875 to his death in January, 1900. His successor was George A. Dunning, of Bangor, the present incumbent. Up to October, 1898, the office was in Williamson's Block, High Street; want of room then compelled its removal to its present quarters on Main Street. Captain Ephraim E. Pendleton acted as railroad messenger from 1872 to 1898, when he resigned for a less arduous position. During his long service, not a dollar in money, or a piece of express matter entrusted to him was lost. L. D. Candage, of Rockland, took his place.

The Boston and Bangor Express Company ran on the large steamers in 1882, Elmer Irving Rankin being its first Belfast agent. In April, 1883, it united with the International Express Company, which was represented in Belfast by Charles M. Carter; Mr. Rankin going as messenger on the steamer Penobscot.

BICYCLES

"The first genuine bicycles ever seen in this city," says the Belfast "Republican Journal" of November 7, 1879, "were procured by Robert Franklin Peirce, who is about to open a riding school in Peirce's Hall. The bicycle in its developed form is, as every one knows, far superior to the velocipede of eight or ten years ago. The main wheel is very large, but is exceedingly light, the spokes being made of steel wire; the tire of solid rubber, so that the inequalities of the road shall not be too sensibly felt by the rider; the smaller wheel is diminutive and looks quite out of proportion to the other; the seat is perched almost directly over the large wheel. It is possible that the bicycle may make a revolution in methods of individual locomotion, as it can be used even on rough country roads, and a good rate of speed maintained. Under fair conditions a bicycle rider can easily outstrip a horse."

In 1881, the Bicycle Club was formed in Belfast, with twenty-six members; George Tilden Read was President. Six years later, the "Republican Journal" remarked, "We have now eleven cyclers in the city. They had their wheels out last week exercising on the bridge."

AUTOMOBILES

The first automobile to be seen in Belfast appeared July 25, 1900. The owner, C. W. Hussey, came from Waterville, forty miles, in less than two hours. After riding about the streets, he went to the Northport Camp-Ground, the distance of four miles being made in fifteen minutes.

The first automobile to be owned in Belfast was a Grout steamer, made in Orange, Massachusetts, expressly for William Henry Quimby, Esq. It was shipped to Portland, in the fall of 1900. Mr. Quimby met it there, and in company with an experienced man from the factory, started to drive it over the roads to Belfast. This trip, now often made by automobiles in a few hours, occupied two days, and Mr. Quimby's descriptions of its vicissitudes and hairbreadth escapes would furnish an amusing and instructive chapter for a work on the development of the automobile and the history of this means of locomotion. The Grout, proving unsatisfactory, remained in town only long enough to be put on the train and shipped back to its manufacturers. The next season Mr. Quimby purchased a Stanley steam automobile, and drove it about the Belfast streets in the spring of 1901. Its appearance was awaited with much comment and apprehension on the part of many of the citizens, and lovers of the horse predicted that it would soon be unsafe to drive behind that animal on the streets or country roads. As a matter of fact, it was during the first seasons a common practice for the drivers of automobiles, when approaching horses, to run the car to one side, stop the motor, get out, and render all possible assistance in leading the frightened animals past these "terrifying," self-propelled vehicles.

BELFAST NATIONAL BANK

THE death of Hon. James Patterson White, March 29, 1879, left a vacancy in the office of the president of the Belfast National Bank, which the directors filled by the choice of Daniel Haraden, the oldest member of the board. Mr. Haraden declined, and Dr. John George Brooks was elected.

In June, 1879, the rooms in the Johnson Block, which had been occupied by the Bank since 1857, were exchanged for more commodious quarters in the present banking house. This building, then about half the present size, was erected in 1878-79. Its form was that of an irregular triangle, measuring twenty-nine feet on Main Street, thirty-eight feet on Beaver Street, and nine feet fronting Custom-House Square. The architect was George M. Harding, of Boston, and the master-builder was Israel Wood Parker, of Belfast.

In 1885, the bank having complied with all the provisions of law enabling the national banking associations to extend their corporate existence, its succession until February 20, 1905, was authorized.

In 1891, larger accommodations for the increasing business of the bank being required, the adjoining estate on Main Street was purchased, and the banking house extended to its present proportions.

On the 1st of July, 1893, Mr. Albion H. Bradbury, who had been cashier since 1859, resigned. His faithfulness to every trust reposed in him and his strict integrity during his service of over thirty-three years command the highest respect in the community where his whole life has been passed. The successor of Mr. Bradbury was Clement Wescott Wescott, of Knox, who had been for some time employed in the bank. Herbert Tobey Field was appointed assistant cashier, and Wilmer Judson Dorman, bookkeeper.

In 1896-97, a vault of the latest design, weighing about fifty tons, was placed in the bank building, and a general renovation of the banking rooms took place.

An official report of the condition of the bank at the close of 1900 contained the following figures: Loans and discounts, $325,057; value of banking house and fixtures, $29,000; money reserve, $23,947; surplus, $33,000; undivided profits, $30,000; deposits, $228,406.

BELFAST SAVINGS BANK

This institution, established in 1868, commenced occupying its present location, four years afterwards. In 1886, the rooms were much improved and neatly furnished. In August, 1888, Asa Faunce, who had been president since the act of incorporation, resigned on account of ill health, and Hon. Nathan Foster Houston was chosen his successor.

During the winter of 1896-97, a series of improvements in the building occupied by the bank were made. They included its exterior and interior. The entrance on Main Street was changed to one on the corner of Church Street, new windows and doors were added, and the vault remodelled and strengthened.

In January, 1900, after the death of John Haraden Quimby, who had been treasurer since the bank was established, his son, William Henry Quimby, was elected in his place, and Wilmer Judson Dorman as clerk.

The bank has never failed to make a semi-annual dividend; for several years it has paid three per cent.

The last statement of the Bank Examiner, in July, 1900, shows: Deposits, $1,202,769; reserve fund, $54,500; undivided profits, $5674.57; estimated market value of resources above liabilities, $170,839; annual expenses, $4000.

The trustees of the bank, in 1900, were Nathan Foster Houston, president; John George Brooks, Charles Bellows Hazeltine, William McGray Woods, Edward Johnson, and James Howard Howes.

THE PEOPLE'S NATIONAL BANK

This association was organized in Belfast, September 4, 1892, with a capital stock of $50,000. The corner store in Masonic Temple was fitted for banking rooms, and the bank commenced business there, February 15, 1893. The first directors were Lewis Allen Knowlton, Edgar Filmore Hanson, Robert Franklin Dunton, and James Pattee. Mr. Knowlton was the first president, and Frank Rudolph Wiggin, cashier.

An interest department was established, February 1, 1894.

Upon the death of Mr. Knowlton, in March, 1898, Hon. Robert Franklin Dunton was chosen president.

At the close of 1900, the loans and discounts were $110,385; value of banking rooms and fixtures, $2000; money reserve, $24,767; surplus fund, $10,000; deposits, $198,626. The officers were Robert Franklin Dunton, Charles Prescott Hazeltine, Charles Edward Knowlton, James Pattee, directors; Robert Franklin Dunton, president; Frank Rudolph Wiggin, cashier; and Joseph Emery Thombs, bookkeeper.

THE BELFAST LOAN AND BUILDING ASSOCIATION

This association was organized January 21, 1891, with the following officers: A. Cutter Sibley, John George Brooks, George Brooks Ferguson, William Bachelder Swan, John Murray Fletcher, Sanford Hills Mathews, Albert Cargill Burgess, Albert Gammans, Robert Franklin Dunton, directors; John George Brooks, president; Joseph Williamson, Jr., secretary; William Henry Quimby, treasurer. It commenced business with four hundred shares at a matured value of $200 per share.

The financial condition of the association in 1900 was as follows: Liabilities: accumulated capital, $32,125.18; guaranty fund, $596.93; interest, $194.88; premiums, $29.80; fines and transfer fees, $2.57; profits, $125.54. Resources: loans on mortgage of real estate, $31,834; on shares, $96; temporary expense, $7.25; cash, $1137.65.

The officers are the same as above, except that Clement Wescott Wescott is secretary and treasurer, and Arthur Irving Brown, Charles Franklin Ginn, and William Henry Quimby are directors, in the place of George Brooks Ferguson, John Murray Fletcher, and Sanford Hills Mathews, deceased. (1900.)

INDUSTRIAL HISTORY

Axe Factories — Clothing — Cigars — Creameries — Foundries — Granite Quarries — Grist Mills — Hay — Ice — Leather-Board — Machinery — Marble — Marine Railways — Shoe Factories — Sash and Blind Factories — Sawmills — Ship-Building — Condon Company — Block Company — Patents and Inventions — Dana Sarsaparilla Company — Other Patent Medicines.

THE following comprise the principal industries of Belfast, during the past quarter of a century, both extinct and in existence.

Axe factories. Benjamin Kelley continued in the same location on Goose River where his father commenced the business in 1822. Walter Basdwin Rankin was associated with him from 1874 until the death of the latter in 1895. An extension to his factory, giving a building one hundred and forty feet in length, was completed in 1882, and gave a capacity for making twelve dozen axes daily. Above the Kelley establishment Hardy & Sherman manufactured axes on a limited scale in 1875. The business ceased at the death of Mr. Hardy, in 1884. Thompson & Sherman erected a factory in 1881, farther down the stream, adjoining the old paper mill, and operated for several years.

Clothing. In 1875, Hersey & Woodward manufactured pantaloons in the Washington Hall Building on High Street. John Llewellyn Sleeper and Pote & Quimby carried on a vest-making business the following year, which was continued by the latter in Hayford Block until 1897.

In 1886, William M. Priest, Pendleton & Co., Mark Andrews, Sidney Kalish, and William Andrew Clark manufactured goods for wholesale dealers abroad.

In 1889, C. S. Marston & Co. entered upon the business of manufacturing clothing in the Coliseum Building, employing seventy-five persons. They suspended the following year. Selwyn Thompson, Lawrence & Cates, and Henry Oscar Dodge were also engaged in this business.

In 1900, the clothing establishments were those of William B. Lawrence and William W. Cates in the Coliseum Building, who employed one hundred hands; Thompson & Foster, in the Dana Building on Front Street, with over a hundred employees; and Henry Oscar Dodge Clothing Company, on North High Street.

Cigars. Irving Lawrence Perry commenced the manufacture of cigars in Herbert E. Bradman's store on the East Side, in 1895. He now occupies a large house on the Searsport Shore Road. Bailey & Havener have a factory at Citypoint, under the name of the Standard Cigar Company. Paul Carnes has a factory on the East Side of the river. (1900.)

Creameries. The Belfast Creamery, in 1889, manufactured a high grade of butter. It was succeeded, in 1897, by the Belfast Jersey Creamery. F. C. Baker & Co., of Boston, under the name of the Belfast Farmer's Creamery, did business, first, in the Frederick Austin Knowlton store at the foot of Main Street, and later in the Rudolf Building near the railroad station. The concern failed the next summer, owing the farmers of the vicinity of Belfast large sums for cream. Its place was supplied by the Emerson Creamery, of Bucksport, and F. J. Gerry & Co., which were soon combined. The latter continued business in the basement of the Dana Sarsaparilla Building. A corporation, to be known as The Belfast Creamery Company, was organized in March, 1900, with Edward Sibley as president, and Ben Davis Field, clerk and treasurer. The capital stock was fixed at $10,000.

Foundries. After the destruction of the Belfast Foundry Company's buildings by the great fire of 1873, its business was carried on in the old Wilder establishment at the Head of the Tide. With increased capital and under the management of William W. Castle, new buildings were erected on the old site, in 1876. They had a frontage of one hundred and eighty feet on Front Street, and extended one hundred and twenty feet in the rear. After a short experience, business was suspended, and the works remained idle until 1881, when Cyrus James Hall placed them again in operation. Two years later they were conducted by a new corporation under the name of The Belfast Machine Works, which continued until the sale of the premises to the Dana Sarsaparilla Company.

The Belfast Machine and Foundry Company, organized in 1891, succeeded to the work and machinery of the last-named corporation. It first occupied the Mansfield store at the foot of Main Street, but soon erected the present building at the corner of Front and Federal streets, where it was in 1900. In 1897, power was changed from steam to electricity.

Granite. The first important development of this industry in Belfast was in the early seventies, by the Oak Hill Granite Company, composed of Samuel Otis, George Brooks Ferguson, Eben Newell, Ebenezer Littlefield, and Albert Gammans, who purchased three hundred acres of land at Oak Hill, in Swanville, three miles from Belfast, formerly owned by Rufus Bradford Allyn. The stone was shipped at Citypoint, where buildings for dressing it were erected. In 1883, the New England Granite Company, of Hartford, Connecticut, had an extensive manufactory at City Point; procuring the material from Oak Hill. In 1886, the original proprietors were incorporated, with a capital of $50,000, under the same name. William H. Mitchell, of Quincy, Massachusetts, became a stockholder and manager. Operations were conducted by it and by other parties under permits, until 1890, when the quarries were leased to the Sargent Granite Company, which employed one hundred and fifty men. During the first year they exported twenty-five cargoes of paving-blocks. Legal complications suspended its operations in 1893. Hartwell Leon Woodcock succeeded to its rights, and the next year, under his influence, the Maine Central Railroad Company built a spur track from near Waldo Station to the base of Oak Hill, enabling stock to be brought directly to tide waters. Owing to labor strikes and other causes, the business did not prove successful. In 1890, the rails were removed, since which time the quarries have been substantially deserted.

In 1882, Cyrus James Hall opened a stone yard, in connection with the iron foundry and commenced dressing and polishing granite from his quarries at Somes's Sound. This was continued on a large scale until 1890, furnishing granite for the Congressional Library at Washington, the State Capital of Illinois, and for many other buildings throughout the country; giving employment to over two hundred men. Labor difficulties, induced by trade unions and other organizations, prevented him from entering upon new contracts with any security, and compelled the abandonment of one of Belfast's most prosperous industries.

In 1883, the Adams Oak Hill Granite Company operated a quarry on the eastern slope of the mountain. Fernald Brothers worked stone brought from Lincolnville and Northport. The Bay View Granite Company had sheds near the Lower Bridge, and near them was the shed of George Mayo. The Hutchins Brothers and Gilbertson & Woods were granite firms in Belfast in 1890. Since then, some minor operations, principally in cemetery work, have existed, but as a wholesale business, the manufacture and shipment of granite is at an end.

Grist Mills. There were two grist mills in Belfast in 1875; one at Hiram Dale Falls, on Goose River, owned by Hiram Emery Peirce, and one between the Head of the Tide and Citypoint, run by Samuel G. Ellis. Both are now abandoned. Richard Anthony Gurney built a mill above the Head of the Tide in 1886, which still continues.

The Electric Light Company started a grist mill in Peirce's Block in 1889. It was removed the following year to Lewis's Wharf, but was discontinued in 1895.

In 1898, the Swan & Sibley Company placed on its wharf a mill driven by electricity, which with that of the late Richard Anthony Gurney, that of Frederick S. Johnson, at Poor's Mills, and one at the manufactory of Mathews Bros., on Cross Street, comprise all that now (1900) exist in Belfast.

Hay. For several years previous to 1890, Belfast had an extensive business in shipping hay to Jacksonville, Florida, and many three-masted schooners were built for that traffic. The West now supplies the Southern market at cheaper rates than can be afforded from Maine. The Belfast Fuel and Hay Company, Albert Martin Carter, and L. T. Shales & Co., are now (1900) the principal dealers.

Ice. In 1875, Benjamin Francis Bickford and Charles Prescott Hazeltine erected houses at the east end of the Lower Bridge, and for several years shipped ice harvested in Goose River.

In 1880, the total failure of the ice crop on the Hudson turned New York dealers to Maine for a supply, and during March prices advanced to three dollars per ton. The New York Ice Company brought 20,000 tons by rail from Unity Pond, and loaded it upon vessels at Belfast. Charles Prescott Hazeltine cut 10,000 tons on Goose River, and Sibley & Townsend nearly as much from Little River, where they erected a wharf. A large quantity was also cut in the paper-mill pond.

In 1882, the first cargo of ice ever sent from Maine to England went from Belfast in the ship Louis Walsh.

From 1884 until his death, December 30, 1892, Hiram Emery Peirce, who had resumed the privileges leased to Hazeltine & Bickford, harvested about 15,000 tons of ice each year from Goose River.

The mild season of 1889-90 was favorable for Maine ice, and in some instances four dollars per ton was offered. Besides Hiram Emery Peirce, Conant & Marshall cut on Goose River, and the Crystal Ice Company on the pond of the Water Company. About 20,000 tons came by rail from Unity, and 60,000 tons were shipped from Belfast, employing nearly one hundred vessels, more than ever before came to Belfast in a single season.

In 1896, a corporation called the Belfast Ice Company cut ice on Goose River. Subsequently their business was transferred to the Belfast Light and Power Company which had purchased the Peirce property. It cuts about 10,000 tons annually, and is now (1900) the only wholesale dealer in Belfast.

Leather-board. In 1879, Isaac Holbrook Sherman and Horatio P. Thompson began the manufacture of this article in the Lower Paper Mill. The process is almost identical with that of paper-making, the material used being hemp rope scraps, hard paper, and leather remnants. Subsequently Elmer Alfred Sherman succeeded Mr. Thompson, under the name of Sherman & Co. In 1887, they purchased all the interests of William Augustus Russell on Goose River, and the following year, having demolished the old White Paper Mill, erected a new establishment on its site. In 1893, they tore down the Upper Paper Mill, so called, and two years later built an additional mill at Mason's Mills. They have continued since and now are running three mills; and a dam at the upper one, built in 1890, gives the control of the water from Swan Lake.

Machinery. Franklin Augustus Howard, the manufacturer of several patented articles, — screw-drivers, mitering-machines, proof-presses, etc., — became established in Belfast, in 1876, in a new brick building at the western end of the shoe factory, which he exchanged nine years later for the present quarters on Washington Street. His son, William Russell Howard, became a partner in 1895, and continues (1900) making among other specialties, New Method Rolls for the Condon Manufacturing Company.

Marble and cemetery work. Clark & Fernald had the principal Belfast establishment in 1875. Subsequently Hutchins Brothers, William T. Howard, Harrison Wood & Co., and Mark Wood & Son, commenced business which they continue to the present time.

Marine railways. The Merchants' Marine Railway, organized February 7, 1884, with a capital of $10,000 with William Bachelder Swan as president and Carter & Co. as managers, commenced operations in Belfast the following September. The location was at the corner of Miller and Front streets, and the power was derived from horses. During the first two years forty-nine vessels were repaired. In 1900, George Alden Gilchrist bought the establishment, and substituted steam for horse power.

Paper mills. In February, 1878, business depression caused the abandonment of the three paper mills of Belfast, which for several years had been managed by W. A. Russell & Co., of Lawrence, Massachusetts. The property was subsequently purchased by Sherman & Co., manufacturers of leather-board.

Shoe factories. From 1875 to 1897 the factory of the Critchett, Sibley Company, was operated by Oliver Gordon Critchett, successor of Richardson & Critchett, under a lease from the Belfast Manufacturing Company and made shoes for Jenkins, Lane & Sons of Boston. Mr. Critchett, with Adin V. Chipman, of Boston, then conducted the business on their own account until the summer of 1880, when it was terminated, and the factory remained idle for two months.

In October of that year, Ami Cutter Sibley became interested, and formed a partnership with Mr. Critchett. In 1884, Horatio Palmer Thompson was admitted as a member of the firm, which adopted the name of Critchett, Sibley & Co. Three years later, Mr. Sibley purchased the property of the Belfast Manufacturing Company for $7245, and increased the size of the building. The next year further enlargements took place, including a detached power-house on the opposite side of the street, and a tower. Another addition was made in 1893. After the death of Mr. Critchett, in September, 1900, the manufacturing business of the late firm passed to a new corporation, called the Critchett, Sibley Company, and its real estate to the Manufacturing Real Estate Company, Mr. Sibley being president of both.

Since 1880, the factory has run steadily more days than any other establishment in New England. Its specialty is now boys' and youths' medium-priced shoes; the capacity being two thousand pairs a day. It is fully equipped with the most approved machinery, and the employees are nearly all permanent citizens.

In September, 1896, to promote the general prosperity of the city, a number of citizens formed a corporation called The Belfast Industrial and Real Estate Company, and purchased the Dana Sarsaparilla Building for $10,500. This they rented to the Legro & Spalding Shoe Company, a corporation established for the manufacture of shoes. A portion of the stock in the latter was taken here. After being in operation for a year, the Shoe Company failed. The creditors received about fifty per cent and the stockholders lost all their investment. Those who embarked in the Real Estate Company have received no dividends, and are left with the unproductive building on their hands. The affair was disastrous to all concerned.

Sash, blind, and door factories. The oldest of these in Belfast is that of Mathews Bros. established in 1854, in the old foundry building, by Spencer Walcott Mathews. His brothers, Noah Merrill and Sanford Hills Mathews, were afterwards associated with him. Their business was suspended by the great fire of 1873, but in seventy days the present building on Cross Street was ready for work. Subsequent additions have since greatly enlarged its capacity. All the brothers are deceased. A stock company was formed in 1890. The business was carried on by Frank Bowdoin, son of Sanford Hills Mathews, after the death of the latter in 1896, until his own death in 1898. The management then devolved upon the women of the family, who determined to continue it. Thus, in 1899, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Clara Starrett Mathews, president; Mrs. Addie Richmond Mathews, vice-president; Miss Maud Eliza Mathews, treasurer; Maud Eliza Mathews, Addie Richmond Mathews, and Orlando Ephraim Frost, board of directors. Mr. Frost, the superintendent, came to Belfast in 1898, and gradually assumed control of the business. He has enlarged the plant and increased its output.

Franklin Houston Durham and Cyrus Brainard Hall opened a factory in 1876 on Pleasant Street, receiving power from the Shoe Factory. Mr. Durham died in March, 1893, and the next year his son, James Clinton Durham, succeeded to the business, which he continues to conduct.

Sawmills. In 1890, Brown & Tozier of Monroe, converted the old Hardy Axe Factory, above the Kelley Factory on Goose River, into a sawmill. It is now run by Elmer Irving Rankin. Richard Anthony Gurney continues to saw lumber at his privilege above the Head of the Tide. These are the only sawmills here.

Ship-building. An account of this branch of industry forms part of another chapter.

Among other corporations may be mentioned the Condon Manufacturing Company, organized in 1896, which manufactures the New Method Roll. It has (1900) an establishment on High Street fitted up with electric power and machinery.

In 1882, the Belfast Block Company, with a capital stock of $5000, was organized for the manufacture of vessel blocks. It is now extinct.

PATENTS AND INVENTIONS

Since 1894, patents have been granted to citizens of Belfast, as follows:—

1875. William Williams Castle, hammer for dressing stone.

Lucius Franklin McDonald, garter.

1876. George Washington Burgess, proof-press.

At the Centennial celebration at Philadelphia, Lemuel Rich Palmer exhibited a specimen of his patented stave jointer; William Williams Castle, a granite polisher. The Howard Manufacturing Company displayed an assortment of machinery under charge of Hollis A. M. Poor.

1881. William Frank Wellman and William C. Thompson, leaf supporter.

Horatio Johnson Locke, leaf supporter.

Oliver Gordon Critchett, heel burnishing machine.

1882. Cyrus James Hall, machine for dressing and polishing stone.

Frank West Limeburner, match cleat for vessels' booms.

1883. Robert Hudson Coombs, roller skates.

Charles W. Bradford, three patents on bag fasteners.

William Frank Wellman, head-rest for chairs.

E. A. Wellman, presser foot and gauge for sewing-machine.

Oliver Gordon Critchett, toe-swedging machine for boots and shoes.

1884. William Frank Wellman, bushing for sheaves.

1885. Henry Wadsworth Marriner, washing-machine.

1885. Edward L. Whittier, implement for cutting ice.

1890. Franklin Augustus Howard, improvement to Allard spiral screw-driver, invented by Isaac Allard, Jr.

John F. Rogers, vamp-making machine.

1894. Captain Ernest O. Patterson, drag for deep-sea dredging.
1896. John F. Rogers, vamp-making machine.
Martin Luther Mitchell, flush-tank for water-closets.
1899. James and John N. Stewart, apparatus for raising sunken vessels.

PATENT MEDICINES

Dana Sarsaparilla Company. In 1888, the success which had attended a sarsaparilla compound, formulated and patented by Dr. Gustavus Clark Kilgore, resulted in establishing a laboratory on Bridge Street, Belfast, where the next year, with Edgar Filmore Hanson as promoter, the manufacture of the article upon a larger scale was undertaken, followed by the organization of a stock company with the above title, having a capital of $25,000. By judicious advertising and enterprise, the business increased beyond the most sanguine expectations of its originators, and two dividends, one of twenty and one of a hundred per cent, were declared. In 1891, 300,000 bottles of the medicine having been sold, more extensive accommodations were required, and the foundry building on Front Street was purchased and enlarged. During the first six months after removal the sales reached half a million bottles. Such good fortune soon attracted outside parties, and in July, 1892, the controlling part of the stock was disposed of to a Boston syndicate for $300,000 cash. The holders thus received twelve hundred per cent on their original investment, besides the previous dividends of one hundred and twenty per cent. Nearly all of this remained in Belfast. Arrangements for placing immense quantities of the article were at once entered upon. The importation of ingredients by the ton, the establishment of a printing-press costing $30,000, and the circulation of millions of advertising sheets which doubled the revenue of the Post-Office, constituted some of the new features. The concern flourished during 1893, but the next year, owing to the transfer of its headquarters to Boston, resulting from a change of management, and dissensions among the stockholders, it began to decline, and the following year became a thing of the past. In June, 1896, its whole property was sold at auction by the sheriffs to satisfy the claim of a New York creditor. Such was the rise and fall of a corporation whose career is remarkable in the history of patent medicines.

DANA'S SARSAPARILLA BUILDING. LATER USED BY ROLLER BUSHING COMPANY

Other similar enterprises were induced by the remunerative experiment of the Dana Company, of which the following may be named as the most prominent: —

The Skoda Discovery Company, organized in 1891 with a capital stock of $50,000. It purchased the building of the Dana Company on Bridge Street, for a laboratory. A branch was established in Nova Scotia.

Compound Rheumatic Oil Company, organized in 1891, capital, $10,000, nearly one half of which was sold. The manufactory was on Phoenix Row. Dr. H. M. Jewett furnished the formula.

The Dalton Sarsaparilla Company, originated by Dr. Elmer Small, commenced manufacturing medicine in March, 1893, in the brick store of Frederick Austin Knowlton, on Main Street. It flourished until 1896. Three years later, it was revived by Franklin Atwood Greer and others, who had purchased the plant.

The Leon Sarsaparilla Company began operations in Peirce's Parlor Theatre, which had been leased for its use, in the spring of 1893. Captain Charles Baker was president, and for a short time did a successful business.

The Rodolf Medicine Company, with Dr. Samuel Worth Johnson as president, and a capital stock of $50,000, was started at Brooks in 1892, but soon removed to Belfast, occupying a building near the railroad station.

The Nutriola Company, for carrying a variety of medical preparations for nearly all the ills that flesh is heir to, was formed in July, 1894. William Andrew Clark was president and its capital stock was named at $150,000. Some of the remedies are still sold.

Among other medicines manufactured in Belfast between 1891 and 1893, were King Solomon's Bitters, Fletcher's German Medicine Compound, and Russ's Catarrh Snuff.

COMMERCIAL HISTORY AND MERCHANT MARINE

Decline of the Coaster — Sailing Vessels superseded by Steamboats and Railroads — Commercial Statistics for 1887 — Wharves — Vessels owned in Belfast — Vessels built in Belfast from 1874 to 1901 — Yachts and Boats — Two Small Old-Time Coasting-Vessels, The Maine and The Polly.

IN common with other seaports in Maine, the commerce of Belfast, as carried on in sailing vessels, has been much diminished during the past quarter of a century by the constantly increasing facilities afforded by steamers and railroads. Coasters, which formerly ran to and from Boston and New York, now belong to the past; hay and other products being exported principally by rail. Save the heavy article of coal, but few cargoes of any description reach Belfast by water. It was formerly not uncommon to see forty or more schooners in port; now, their arrivals are few and far between.

No commercial statistics of Belfast for 1875 exist. The earliest since that date were made twelve years later, for the United States Engineer Department, as follows. Imports and exports by water communication only during 1887: —

Imports: 370,000 bushels of grain; 14,500 barrels of flour; 14,000 tons of coal; 16,000 casks of lime; 10,000 barrels of plaster; 6000 tons of granite; 5000 tons of iron; 15,000 tons of nails and hardware; 170,000 tons of merchandise; 4,000,000 feet of lumber; 1,800,000 shingles; 1,000,000 laths; 500 tons of dry fish; 200 tons of fresh fish; 2000 barrels of pickled fish; 6000 tons of hides and leather; 3000 tons of sheepskins; 2500 tons of machinery; 11,000 tons of iron water-pipe; 300 tons of drain-pipe; 200 tons of paper stock for leather-board; 20,000 bushels of salt; 500 tons of phosphate; 15 tons of grindstones.

Exports: 11,000 tons of hay; 14,000 tons of granite, rough and polished; 200,000 brick; 15,000 tons of ice; 48,000 bushels of potatoes; 11,000 barrels of apples; 25,000 tons of merchandise; 15,000 cases of shoes; 200 tons of manufactured clothing; 400 tons of sheepskins and leather; 175 tons of leather-board and paper; 800,000 dozens of eggs; 1,200,000 feet of doors, sash, and blinds. The meat and poultry are not estimated.

It was found that 1250 vessels arrived and departed during the year (1887).

WHARVES

In 1875 there were the following wharves in Belfast: Carter & Co.'s, between Main and Pearl streets; Condon's at foot of Salmond's Lane; Cooper's, at foot of Miller Street; Foundry, at foot of Main Street; Frederick's at foot of Main Street; Ferguson's, at Citypoint; Gammans's, at Citypoint; Gilson's, near the East Bridge; Haraden's, at foot of Main Street; Hall's, near the East Bridge; Kaler's at Board Landing; Lane's at foot of Main Street; Lower Steamboat, at foot of Commercial Street; Miller's at foot of Commercial Street; Nickerson's, at the Upper Bridge; Otis's, at Citypoint; Pattershall's, at the Upper Bridge; Peirce's, at the west end of the East Bridge; Pitcher & Son's, at foot of Main and Spring streets; Russell's (Rag), on the East Side; Russ's, at Citypoint; Sibley's at foot of Main Street; Upper Steamboat, or Simpson's, at foot of Main Street; and White & McGilvery's, at foot of Allyn Street. A number of these are decayed or unused. The Upper Steamboat, Rag, and White & McGilvery's wharves have been removed. The valuation of the wharf property owned in Belfast in 1900 was $22,700.

In 1900, a corporation composed of the owners of Lewis Wharf and others, called The Lewis Wharf Company, was organized, with a paid-up capital stock of $9000. Charles Edward Knowlton was president, and Calvin Hartson Pitcher was treasurer.

On the wharf of the Swan & Sibley Company, a grain elevator operated by electricity, in connection with the grist mill, was built in 1890.

“In addition to the above,” remarked the “Republican Journal,” “portions of many other vessels are owned here, but are taxed abroad. The largest vessel is the ship Ivanhoe, 1610 tons; the oldest is the schooner Henry, built in 1832.”

The number of tons of vessel property owned in Belfast in 1900 had diminished to 1364. Transportation by steam, the introduction of barges, and the diversion of our carrying trade into foreign bottoms has almost destroyed the business of ship-building, which formerly gave employment to a large number of citizens of Belfast. The following list of vessels built in Belfast since 1874 shows the gradual decline of this important interest.

The following is a partial list of yachts and boats owned in Belfast. The name of the boat is given first, and after it, in order, her length or tonnage or both, place and date of build, name of owner, and last, when known, the date of Belfast ownership: Schooners: Everett, 17.12 tons, 42 feet, Essex, Mass., 1842, Nathan Foster Houston, 1890. Clara, 30.8 feet, Belfast, 1891. Frank H. Hoag, 1891+. Louise, a metallic lifeboat from steamer Portland, 18 feet, Alfred Johnson, 1885-88. Breeze, 18.65 tons, 40 feet, Boston, Mass., 1877, chartered by Alfred and Ralph Miller Johnson, 1893. Sloops: Fiona, 25.3 feet, 5 tons, Quincy, Mass., 1871, Thomas Barr, 1902-13. Nellie Burkett, 6.97 tons, Belfast, 1878, J. F. Burkett. Edna, 30 feet, Belfast, 1881, Albert R. Roix, 1881+. Nettie, 29.4 feet, 6.52 tons, Belfast, 1884, Samuel B. Holt, 1884+. Jennette, 36 feet, Belfast, 1887, William A. Kimball, 1887+. Mallard, 37.4 feet, 11 tons, Chicago, Ill., 1888, Charles R. Coombs, 1901+. F. C. B., 30 feet, about 1890, William A. Kimball, 1890+. Alice B., 24 feet, about 1890, Decrow Brothers. Marjorie, 24 feet, Belfast, 1891, Charles Albert Pilsbury. Mariette, 62 feet, 24 tons, Gloucester, Mass., 1901, Alfred Johnson, 1906-12 (sold for a Bermuda pilot boat).

TWO SMALL, OLD-TIME COASTING VESSELS, THE MAINE AND THE POLLY

The Maine. As an excellent example of the "pinkie," a type of small vessel once in general use along our coast both for freight-ing and fishing, but now almost entirely extinct, a picture of the Maine is given in this volume. It shows her at the present time anchored in Belfast Harbor. She is 24 tons burden, net; was built in Essex, Massachusetts, in 1845, but is now practically a new vessel, having been thoroughly rebuilt. Her lines, rig, and appearance, however, are those of the original "pinky."

The Polly. A detailed account of the famous old schooner Polly, with a large picture of her under sail, appeared in the "Republican Journal" for March 3, 1904.¹ She was, at the time, lying in winter quarters at the Swan & Sibley Company's dock, after a busy season spent partly in bay-coasting, and partly as a Boston packet, under command of Captain George Flowers Ryan, of Belfast. The oldest vessel of the American merchant marine now in commission, she has had a life of usefulness and adventure, such as few craft experience. Her history to date is an interesting one, and in view of her great age, which exceeds by several times the span of life usually allotted to ships, and because of her having been identified with Belfast, it is given here in part, as follows:—

The Polly was launched in Amesbury, Massachusetts, in 1805, being constructed of the best white oak, "firm and stout," in the shipyard of Richard Currier. She is 48 tons burden, gross; 61 feet water-line length; 19 feet, 6 inches, extreme beam, and draws 5 feet forward and 7 feet aft, unloaded. In the early years of the last century she ran as a packet from Boston and Portland to points on Penobscot Bay and River, being owned in what is now Prospect. She carried wood and passengers to Boston, returning with passengers and a general cargo, consisting largely of supplies for the inhabitants of the lower Penobscot Valley. There is reason for believing that, from 1809 to 1812, she was owned by Captain Robert Patterson, of Saco, a cousin of the Robert Patterson, who, with his brothers, was among the first settlers of Belfast. Originally a sloop, as attested by the records, by witnesses who knew her at the time, and by the step of the mast, discovered some years ago, in her keelson, the Polly was changed to a schooner, some time between 1847 and 1851, probably in 1850, when she was extensively repaired and rebuilt by Jonathan Tinker in his shipyard on Tinker's Island, west of Mount Desert. She was again repaired about

¹ Her owners at the time were: Captain George Flowers Ryan, 15-32; Belfast Fuel & Hay Co., 8-32; A. A. Howes, 4-32; Robert Burgess, 2-32; Swan & Sibley Co., 2-32; N. S. Lord, 1-32, all of Belfast. These purchased her 18 February, 1903, of H. B. and L. H. Webber, owning 3-4, and Flora E. Hahn, owning 1-4, all of Rockland, Me. Other owners of record were: In 1826, William, John, and Robert Hooper, and William Reed, all of Marblehead, Mass.; in 1838, Ephraim Brown, Marblehead, Mass.; in 1842, Ephraim Brown, Ezekiel Scovil, both of Marblehead, Mass.; in 1844, John Davis, Boston, Mass.; in 1850, Jonathan Tinker, Seaville, Me.; in 1861, Nahum Berry, Trenton, Me.; Davison Smith, Sedgewick, Me.; Sally and Phoebe Tinker, New Sharon, Me.; in 1865, Rebecca P. Pray, Mount Desert, Me., Phoebe M. Tinker, New Sharon, Me.; in 1874, Chandler Fair, Lewis Henry, both of Thomaston, Me.; and from 1874, until about 1893, Capt. Lewis Arey, who changed the original under-deck cabin to the present trunk cabin of the conventional coaster type in 1885. He states that her old floor timbers were still in her, then, and were sound and very hard. In 1889, Capt. L. A. Snow of Rockland nearly lost her and his life as well by running ashore at Kittery. Captain J. H. Weldon, of Dighton, Mass., owned her 1910-13, and sold her in 1913, to Mr. Alfred Johnson, of Belfast and Boston.

1867, by Captain Ephraim Pray, at Mount Desert. On April 26, 1874, she went ashore in a heavy gale of wind and snow at Owl's Head, Maine, and was bought as she lay on the beach by Captain Lewis A. Arey, who used her in the lumber-carrying trade until 1885, when she was once more thoroughly repaired, being given a new top and ceiling and partially replanked, and became a lime-freighter.

The Polly's rig to-day is that of a typical fore-and-aft coasting schooner, with the addition of a short flag fore-topmast. Though she has a heavy, square, old-fashioned, Dutch stern, still containing the ports through which her two stern-chasers may have been run out, and full, bluff, rounding bows on deck, with a bowsprit raking well in air, and a retroussé flying jib-boom, yet the lines of the old craft under water are not at all bad, and, as the British discovered, she was, when compared with the vessels of her time, a fast sailer. In fact, nothing of her class was fleetier than she on a wind, until the modern Gloucester fishing vessels were evolved. The Mariette, a sloop yacht built on the lines of the latter, and of about the same length as the Polly, had trouble in sailing away from her recently, in a fresh southwest breeze on a run from Camden to Belfast. She has always had the best of care, with plenty of paint and liberal repairs, which, together with the preservative quality of the salt she probably carried in her youth, when we may infer she was used more or less for fishing, and which acts as a veritable elixir of life to ships, accounts for her good condition to-day. Below decks she has the same frames, timbers, and many of the planks that were put in on the Amesbury shipyard well over a hundred years ago. One of her original anchors is still suspended from her cat-head, and various articles of her old-time outfit and furniture may be seen aboard her. It would be hard to find a better inanimate example of "the survival of the fittest." So well did she fulfill the purposes for which she was designed and built that each successive owner has been willing to replace every worn or decaying piece of wood, and it is in this way that her whole top-sides, and possibly much of her bottom, have gradually been rebuilt. As to her weatherly qualities we have the following from Captain McFarland, one of her many owners. "In the fall of 1897, she was caught out in the Bay, in the great southwester that caused such havoc to our shipping, many of the big three- and four-masters getting terribly handled. The Polly was loaded with three hundred hogsheads of salt, a heavy and dead cargo, but she came right through the worst of it, and never parted a rope yarn."¹

In 1904, exactly one hundred years after the laying of her keel, the Polly figured in an Old Home Week celebration, held at Amesbury, Massachusetts, in which town on the Powow River, at its junction with the beautiful and historic Merrimac, just above the bold, wooded bluff at Salisbury Point, she was built.²

The National Society of the United States Daughters of 1812 has been active in collecting material relative to its contemporary, the Polly, and is always ready to do her honor, and of late years she has attained much notoriety, and has been often in the public eye through the columns of the daily press. She bears on the outside forward end of her cabin-house, a handsome bronze tablet, inscribed as follows:¹—matter of a descriptive and historical nature, two original poems of ten stanzas each, the first by Samuel Hoyt, a local historian, and called, "To POLLY"; the second written for the Amesbury "Daily News," by J. T. Clarkson, and bearing the heading, "POLLY OF THE Po." The following is a copy of a letter, written after the celebration, by Horace G. Leslie, M.D., president of the Amesbury Old Home Association, to Mr. Fred G. White, of the Belfast Hay and Fuel Company, then part owners of the schooner: "The 'Polly' has come and gone. The old Home Week festivities are ended, and I write to thank you for the interest taken in the event. The coming of this venerable craft was the crowning glory of the week, and awakened poetic as well as historic associations. Every one who visited her will unite with me in saying that Captain Ryan is just the right man in the right place. Gentle and forbearing under very trying circumstances, he made many friends in Amesbury. Did I believe in the transmigration of souls, I could well fancy that beneath his bronzed and weather-beaten exterior was the spirit of Nichols, Paul Jones, and Decatur. Certainly, he is the reproduction of the ideal privateersman. The links of that chain which unites your eastern city with the banks of the Merrimac, will we trust only grow stronger with time."

¹ The following invitation is self-explanatory: "The National Society | of | United States Daughters of 1812 | State of New York | cordially invites you and your friends to be | guests at the Unveiling of a Tablet | aboard the Schooner 'Polly,' a Privateer in | War of 1812 | at foot of 50th Street and North River | Wednesday, November Second | 3.30 to 5.30 P.M."

On this occasion the United States Navy was represented by officers and a band from the Brooklyn Navy Yard; and a granddaughter of one of the Polly's supposed commanders during the War of 1812, as indicated by an old log-book still in her possession, acted as sponsor, by unveiling the tablet.

Several oil paintings of the Polly are in existence, notably one by F. W. Dillingham, painter of historic houses and places; and one by Walter L. Dean, painter of the White Squadron, which hangs in the Capitol at Washington; one owned by the Maine Historical Society; and the one by Jacobsen reproduced in this volume.

Much of historic and much of romantic interest has been written about this ancient craft. In addition to various accounts of her service in the War of 1812, which the writer has not yet had the opportunity to investigate, it has been stated that she was among the first vessels to fly the American flag in the Mediterranean; that she went around the Horn with a party of gold-hunters in 1849; that she has twice circled the globe; and that she was in the habit of making occasional voyages on dark missions to the slave coast of Africa; while the Custom-House records still attest that she was more than once engaged in smuggling. Her present owner, who has received many letters and documents relating to her, is anxious to separate the truth from the fiction, and hopes in time to write her history in full. Admiral Peary, several patriotic societies, and some of the residents of the town of Amesbury have at different times considered purchasing her, but it is the intention of her owner to keep her, restore her as nearly as possible to her condition in 1812, and to preserve her as an historic relic, and a memorial to the men who built and fought so well in the early days of our Republic, and as the sole survivor of her time and type.

FIRES AND FIRE DEPARTMENT

Muck Hole purchased — Report of the Committee of the Fire Fund raised in 1875 — Conviction of Incendiaries — American House destroyed — Loss of Life — Plan of Burned District — Phoenix Row burned — Steam Fire Engine — Reorganization of Fire Department — The Hook and Ladder Company — Washington Engine, No. 5, sold — Its History and Company Foremen — Electric Alarm-Box System — Seaside Hose Company formed — Destruction of the Crosby Inn — Peirce's Block burned — Chemical Extinguishers.

IN the following account of fires which have occurred in Belfast between the years 1875 and 1900, with a few exceptions, only fires where the loss reached $300 are included. Unless otherwise stated, the buildings were entirely destroyed.

1875. Although in April, the Mayor was authorized to offer a reward of $500 for the detection of incendiaries, five fires, commencing May 5 and ending May 7, a period of fifty-one hours, occurred, which caused great alarm. They were all incendiary but one, as given below: May 5. New England House fired in basement; extinguished without damage. May 6. The hay barn of Woods, Mathews & Baker, in the rear of Main Street, fired; extinguished without loss. May 7, A.M. House of Patrick Haney, on Allyn Street, partially destroyed; accidental. May 7, P.M. The stable of the New England House with its contents; loss, $6000; partially insured. May 7, midnight. The old blacksmith shop of John Peirce, near the Lower Bridge, with $200 worth of casks.

1875, May 24. Masonic Hall, over the High School room; inside fixtures burned; accidental.

1875, June 3. Blacksmith shop of Thomas Gannon on Washington Street, partially destroyed; a large quantity of kerosene oil was stored beneath; cause of fire unknown.

1875, August 18. House and barn owned by Mrs. Nahum Parker Monroe, near the Muck, with a quantity of hay; incendiary.

1875, August 19. A storehouse on Lewis Wharf, occupied by Pitcher & Gorham, with 125 tons of hay; loss, over $5000; incendiary.

1875, August 27. House and barn on Belmont Avenue, owned and occupied by James Greer; cause not known.

1875, September 8. Old aqueduct house in the dock, owned by Franklin W. Berry; incendiary.

1875, November 5. House and two barns of Edward L. Whittier on the East Side of the river; loss, $3500; insured for $250; accidental.

On July 4, Washington Engine No. 5, with a company of one hundred men, went to Ellsworth on the steamer Pioneer, and took the first prize of sixty dollars. The play of water from the engine was one hundred and sixty-six feet and two inches.

During the summer of 1875, the subject of a water-supply for fire purposes was discussed, and resulted in the purchase by the city of the Muck Hole, so called, of two acres, on Lincolnville Avenue, for $500.

1876, March 1. Unoccupied house on Northport Avenue, built in 1800, owned by the heirs of Thomas Pickard. It was the former homestead of Jonathan White; incendiary.

1876, March 3. Tenement block of James Young McClintock, on Spring Street, was damaged $1500, by fire communicating from a shed in the rear; no insurance.

1876, March 6. House, ell, and barn of Mrs. Martin Fahy, on Waldo Avenue; loss, $1000; insurance, $650.

1876, March. Two small houses on North High Street, of Fred Crosby and Mrs. Hall.

1876, April. House of Atwood W. Gilmore, near Searsport town line.

1876, June 15. House on Northport Avenue, owned and occupied by Frank A. Cottrell; supposed cause, a defective chimney; loss, $2500; insured for $2000.

1876, August 29. House on South Miller Street, owned by

Dr. John George Brooks, and occupied by Captain John Foss; origin unknown; insured for $900.

1876, September 9. The stable and ell attached to the house of Captain Charles H. Wording, on Congress Street; loss, $1000, partially covered by insurance; origin, probably incendiary.

1876, November 2. Buildings covering the brick-kiln of William E. Bickford, East Side of the river; loss, $350.

1876, November 7. House and barn of Joseph H. Cross, on the old John West place, near Poor's Mills; loss, $1300; insured for $800.

1876, November 30. House of Mrs. Wilkinson Peirce, on Congress Street, partially burned, owing to a defective chimney; fully insured.

1876, December 28. Engine-house of Samuel G. Ellis was set on fire. The National Underwriters offered a reward of $200 for the conviction of the incendiary.

In January, 1877, the committee appointed by the city government, in August, 1873, to solicit and distribute contributions for the relief of the sufferers by the great fire of that month, made the following report: —

The total amount received to date in cash from contributions, subscriptions and interest, is $23,424.78; the amount paid out to date is $23,424.78; the amount of subscriptions obtained in Belfast was $5196; the amount of subscriptions unpaid is $396.

The controlling aim of the committee has been to help those who would help themselves. Especially have they tried to encourage and promote the building of houses, thereby providing permanent homes for the sufferers and materially benefiting the city. Accordingly they have paid out the sum of $17,185 for building purposes, and have thus contributed to the erection of fifty new houses. In addition to these payments in money they also divided among the sufferers all contributions which had been received of lumber and other materials, which contributions were numerous and valuable. The increase of taxable property thus brought about is at least $85,000.

The amount paid out in money for all other purposes, such as household stores and goods, wearing apparel, fuel, taxes, etc., is $6239.78. The committee also distributed among the sufferers whatever contributions were received of household goods, clothing, food, etc., the value of which they have not estimated.

The fund has been paid out to the relief of 144 families. The number of persons thereby assisted, the committee have no means of estimating.

The books showing the several sums paid out, the articles distributed, and the persons receiving them, are in the office of Daniel Faunce, and open to inspection.

BELFAST, January 8, 1877.

1877, February 13. Ice-houses of William E. Bickford, at north end of the East Bridge, with three hundred tons of ice; insured for $2450; probable cause, incendiary.

1877, February 20. House on Washington Street, owned by B. B. Whittaker.

1877, March 4. House of Allen Henderson, Bridge Street; cause, defective chimney; partially insured.

1877, April 30. Stable on Congress Street, owned by Albion H. Bradbury.

1877, June 22. Unoccupied storehouse in McGilvery's ship-yard, containing models of all ships built by White and Conner.

1877, September 5. Barn of William Pottle, Northport Avenue.

1877, November 1. Boarding-house of Jesse Robbins, Bridge Street, formerly the residence of Captain Benjamin Brown, with most of contents. The occupants narrowly escaped; loss, $5000; insured for $3800.

1877. Hydrant Engine No. 2, took a prize at Biddeford on the 4th of July. At a trial with Washington No. 5, in September, for a purse of $100, the latter won, throwing water two hundred four feet and five inches, the score of the former being one hundred seventy-nine feet and six inches. In December, Washington Engine No. 5 was offered for sale, and two hose companies were authorized by the city. The following names were suggested by the Chief Engineer as members: Peter Francis Welch, Edward Sibley, Horatio Palmer Thompson, Frank Riggs, Andrew Fahy, Francis Hiram Welch, William Matthew Welch, Sherman G. Swift, Austin Wilder Keating, Henry Staples, James Haney, James Clinton Durham.

1878, April 6. The Cottrell store, corner of Main and Pleasant streets; cause, incendiary.

1878, May 10. House of Albion King Paris Moore, Bridge Street; damaged $600, through a defective chimney.

1878, May 12. Unoccupied steam mill in McGilvery's shipyard, with its machinery; loss, $6000; no insurance; cause, incendiary.

1878, June. House of Horace Park, on the Augusta road. Two barns were saved with difficulty. Loss, $2500; insurance, $1800; cause, a defective chimney.

1878, June 28. House of Captain Ephraim D. Ryder, on the East Side of the river, near the Upper Bridge; loss, over $2000; insured for $1900; supposed to have been set by tramps.

1878, June 30. Small unoccupied house on Lincolnville Avenue, owned by the heirs of Willard Pope Harriman.

1878, August 29. Stave and grist mill of Robert Patterson at Poor's Mills, struck by lightning and destroyed; loss, $2000; insured.

1878, September 3. House, ell, and two barns, on the Jesse Robbins place, South Belfast, owned by Frank W. Berry; insured for $5000.

1878, November 6. House near Poor's Mills, owned by N. L. Woodbury; loss, $700; insured.

1878, November 9. House of Samuel Smith, on the East Side of the river, near the paper mills; loss, $800; partially insured.

1878, November 13. Unoccupied house on Belmont Avenue, formerly the homestead of Benjamin Banks, and owned by John O. Johnson, of Liberty, value, small; insured.

1878, November 25. Storehouse on Haraden's Wharf, occupied by Calvin Hartson Pitcher, with its contents; loss, $6000; partially insured. Charles Bellows Hazeltine, who owned hay destroyed, offered a reward of $500 for the detection of the incendiary.

1878. Hydrant No. 2, with 60 members, celebrated the 4th of July in Lewiston, and in September, Washington No. 5, with 80 men, attended a firemen's muster in Rockland.

1879. February 13. House of Sylvanus G. Cottrell, Cedar Street; cause, unknown; loss, $1500; insured.

1879, April 4. Two houses on North Street, near the Lower Bridge, owned by Moses Warren Frost; insured.

1879, June 7. Old Wells' house, on Bridge Street, owned by Albion King Paris Moore.

1879, June 25. Large storehouse on Lewis's Wharf, occupied by Calvin Hartson Pitcher and Hazeltine & Co., was fired by incendiaries, and, with most of its contents of hay and grain, was destroyed; loss, $6000; partially covered by insurance. Two young men, William T. Abbott and James Whalen, were arrested as having caused the fire.

1879, June 16. House and other buildings of Isaac Jackson, on Lincolnville Avenue; loss, $1500; insured.

1879. In July, a new company for old Hydrant Engine No. 2 was formed, mostly of boys.

1879, July 4. House of Mrs. Caroline Patterson, on the East Side of the river; insured.

1879, July 7. The Telegraph Block owned by Howes & Co., at the corner of Main and High streets, partially consumed. It was soon rebuilt. The cause was a lighted match thrown into a cuspidor.

1879, October 18. Steamer Planet, while being repaired, partially destroyed. There was no insurance.

1879, October 31. House and barn of E. L. Segar, on Upper High Street; loss, $2000; insured.

1879. November 27. The Peachy house, owned by Captain James A. Curtis, near the Upper Bridge; loss, $1000; insured.

1880, April 28. Unoccupied house on Belmont Avenue, owned by Milton F. Carter; cause, incendiary; loss, $700; insured.

1880, June 12. House of Alfred Patterson, East Side of the river; cause, a defective chimney; loss, $1500; partially insured.

1880, July 7. Storehouse built by John Stevens, on the East Side of the river, with outbuildings and ice-house; cause, unknown; insured for $1200.

1880, October 29. House of Captain Robert F. Patterson, on the East Side of the river; cause, a defective flue; insured.

1880, November 9. Stable of Cyrus Patterson, on Main Street, and the old gun-house in the rear; cause, unknown. The gun-house was built by the town in 1836, and was formerly used by the Artillery Company.

1881, February 12. House and barn of Mrs. Abbie Mathews, on Northport Avenue; origin, unknown; insured for $2450.

1881. In April, Joseph T. and George S. Patterson were arrested for setting fire to the houses of John Campbell and Daniel C. Toothaker. Joseph was sentenced to imprisonment for life, and George to the reform school during minority. They confessed the crime.

1881, April 25. House of Samuel Whitmore, in the southern part of the city; loss, $2000; insured.

1881, October 1. Brick house and other buildings of Mrs. E. B. Whittaker, on North High Street; insured.

1881, October 1. Slaughter house of Owen G. White, on Poor's Mills road; loss, $600; no insurance.

1882, January 11. House and barn of John W. Nash, on Vine Street; cause, a defective chimney; loss, $1200; partially insured.

1882, March 30. House of Harvey H. Smalley, on Bridge Street, near the Lower Bridge; insured.

1882, June 22. Small house on the East Side of the river, owned by Franklin Prince Eames; loss partially covered by insurance.

1882, June 22. City block, corner of Main and High streets, took fire in the office of the "Progressive Age," and was damaged $500. The occupants were injured by smoke.

1882, July 12. Farm buildings in South Belfast, owned by W. H. Hall, and occupied by Josiah L. Woods; cause, unknown; loss, $1500; insured for $1000.

1882, September 18. Storehouse of W. M. Woods & Co., on the wharf, with contents of sixty tons of hay; loss, $4000; covered by insurance.

1883, January 5. Blacksmith shop of George E. Wight, in Carter & Co.'s shipyard; loss, $1000; no insurance. The building was once the Belmont town house, being moved to Belfast after the great fire of 1873.

1883, June 7. Storehouse of Albert Martin Carter, on Lewis's Wharf, containing 175 tons of hay. The adjoining hay barn of Ben Hazeltine, with contents of 400 tons, was damaged by water and smoke. Loss, $5300; insured; supposed cause, incendiary.

1883, September 20. Seventy-five acres of land near Mason's Mills, East Side of the river, burned over by a forest fire, which endangered houses of Albert Stevenson and Pembroke M. Staples.

1883, October 19. House, furniture, and barn of Augustus

Kimball Wood, on lower Congress Street; loss $800; no insurance; caused by children playing with matches.

1883, December 28. Barn of Otis W. McKenney, on Belmont Avenue, with contents; insured for $900; cause, incendiary.

1884, February 12. Furniture store of Edward Henry Colby, on High Street, owned by Arnold Harris, damaged; fully insured. A sheriff's jury reported that the fire was an incendiary one.

1884, June 15. House, ell, and barn at Citypoint, owned by Wallace Cunningham and occupied by Ebenezer Littlefield, with greater part of contents; partially insured.

1884. In July, the city appropriated $300 for laying a surface pipe 4000 feet in length from the Muck Pond to Cross Street, to test the practicability of making the service permanent.

1884, August 2. The burning of a hotel on Green Mountain, Mount Desert, in the evening, was plainly seen from Belfast, at a distance of fifty miles.

1884, October 5. House and stable of George G. Patterson at Poor's Mills; insured.

1884, October 8. House and farm buildings of Daniel Lewis Pitcher, on Lincolnville road; insured. The premises were occupied by Charles A. Piper. The fire was supposed to have been caused by children playing in the barn.

1884, November 4. House on High Street, on the premises of the late Martin P. White. It was occupied by David P. Gilmore, whose family narrowly escaped through a window. The building was one of the oldest in Belfast, having been built for a hat-shop by Josiah Bean, who came to Belfast from York, in 1806. It was converted into a dwelling house in 1825.

1885, March 14. The jailer's residence and other buildings on Congress Street, owned by the County, and occupied by Ansel Wadsworth. The jail was uninjured, but the prisoners, numbering seventeen, were removed for safety. The stock and most of the furniture were saved. No insurance; probable cause, ashes in a wooden vessel.

1885, June 20. House and stable of W. D. Downes, on Waldo Avenue, formerly owned by Mrs. Laura A. Russ, with portion of contents; supposed cause, defective chimney; insured.

1885, July 12. The most disastrous fire since the great one of 1873, occurred, resulting in the death of two men, twenty-one horses, and destroying sixteen buildings. It originated at about one o'clock, A.M., in the northerly end of the livery company's stable on High Street, and rapidly communicated to adjoining buildings in all directions, except those across the street. In a few minutes the Telegraph Building, the American House and stables, and a wooden store on Beaver Street were in flames. Thence the fire spread to the brick store of Joseph Bean, adjoining the hotel, to the carriage manufactory of Newell Mansfield, and several minor buildings, on Beaver Street, all of which were burned. The plate glass in Masonic Temple was shattered by heat, and the stores on the western side of Main Street were only saved by the protection of wet canvas. The fire is supposed to have originated from pipes or cigars brought into the stable by two young men, Elmer Wesley Twombly and John Casey, employees of the livery company, who went to sleep in the hayloft, and who perished in the flames. James McCabe, another occupant of the loft, escaped with severe injuries.

The buildings destroyed were occupied as follows: —

Harris shed: Field & Carter, storage.

American House stable: the Belfast Livery Company and Humphrey Nicholas Lancaster.

Telegraph Building: basement, Field & Carter, fish; Charles M. Carter, market; International Express Company. First floor, William M. Priest, clothing manufacturer; Fred H. Francis, boots and shoes; Lorenzo D. Fogg, confectionery. Second floor, Fred A. Carle, tax collector; Moses Walter Rich, shoemaker, Nathaniel Delano, barber; William C. Tuttle, organs. Third floor, William C. Tuttle, photographer.

American House: William Weeks, landlord.

Furber & Bean, store: Furber & Bean, hatters, and Franklin Atwood Greer, lawyer.

Lancaster's carriage shop: Humphrey Nicholas Lancaster, storage; Hiram W. Trundy, wheelwright.

Mansfield's carriage shop: J. R. Simmons, blacksmith, and Henry G. Bicknell, painter.

There were also several sheds in the rear of the Furber & Bean store, used for ice, wood, etc., by Lancaster, Weeks, Bean, and others.

The whole loss to property was about $50,000, with insurance of about $21,000.

The following diagram represents the burned section, and the buildings most endangered.

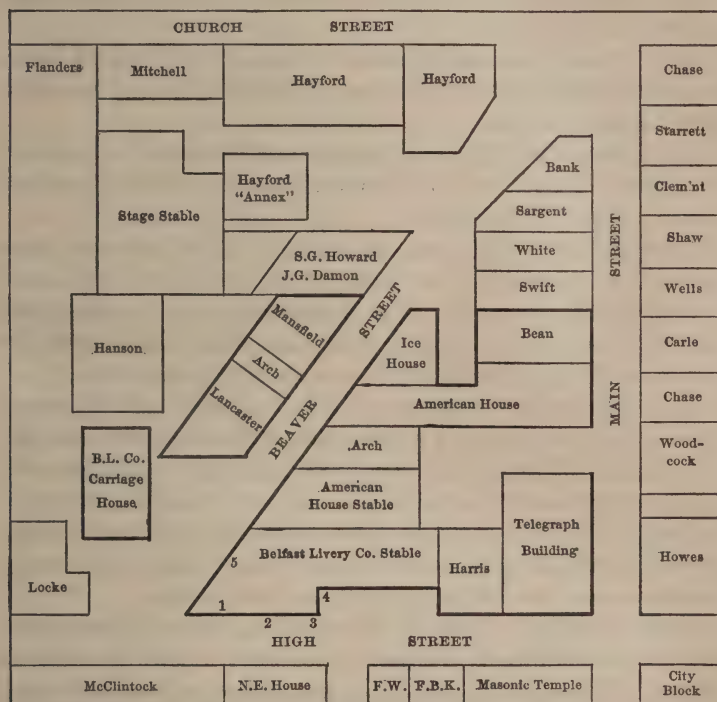

DIAGRAM OF BURNED DISTRICT IN FIRE OF JULY 12, 1885

1885, December 4. Oakum shop, at the marine railway of David Whitten Dyer, containing sails and rigging of schooner Lyra, which was being repaired; loss, $1500; insurance, $1100.

1885, December 8. Wooden building of George G. Wells, adjoining Phoenix Row, and occupied by saloons; seriously damaged; fully insured.

The losses by fire in 1885 induced higher rates of insurance, and much discussion about a water-supply. In October, a committee appointed by the City Government took the matter into consideration, and made a survey of several neighboring ponds.

1886, February 1. House at corner of Church and Elm streets, owned by heirs of the late Liberty B. Wetherbee, and occupied by Dr. Horatio Huntington Johnson. Most of the contents were destroyed. The ell and stable were saved. Insurance, $1400 on house; $1000 on furniture; supposed cause, an overheated furnace.

1886, March 2. House of heirs of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Brier, on Head of the Tide road, with nearly all its contents; insured for $800; cause, unknown.

1886, March 23. House, ell, and barn of Hartson Clark, corner of Waldo Avenue and Vine Street; insurance, $450; supposed cause, a defective chimney.

1886, April 24. Storehouse of Baker & Shales, in rear of their store on Main Street, just below the Granite Block, with contents; partially insured; origin, incendiary. Many neighboring buildings were saved by great exertion. The building was the third one destroyed within a few years on the same site.

1886, December 16. Store of Jacob Young Cottrell & Son, on Main Street, destroyed with contents. The Coliseum, and the store of J. C. Thompson & Son, both adjoining, were damaged. Loss, $10,000; nearly covered by insurance; origin, unknown.

On the 15th of November, 1887, a contract was made by the city with Messrs. Parks & Wheeler, for constructing waterworks, a full account of which is given in another chapter.

1887, March 25. Early in the morning, during a rainstorm, the interior of Cates & Stickney's shoe store, in the "Republican Journal" Block on Church Street, was almost entirely destroyed, with its contents, and the clothing stock of Charles Wesley Haney, in the adjoining store, damaged by smoke, as was the "Republican Journal" office above. The loss, over $3000, was covered by insurance; supposed cause, a cigar stub.

1887, March 30. House on Court Street, owned by Captain Robert T. Emery, and occupied by Fred Killman; fire supposed to have originated from a chimney; loss, $850; insured.

1887, April 14. House and outbuildings of Collins McCarty, on the East Side of the river, near the Upper Bridge; cause, unknown; loss, $800; insured, $500.

1887, June 12. Phoenix Row, a three-story block of six stores on High Street. The fire was discovered about midnight in a rear room over the saloon of Thomas Haugh and Fred L. Carter in store No. 9, and although brick walls, from the basement to the roof, divided each tenement, the fire soon extended along the wooden gutters by the eaves, and the whole block was in flames. Store No. 1 was owned by the heirs of the late James Young McClintock, and the occupants were Charles N. Black, stove dealer; Carter & Co. office, and the Knights of Pythias. No. 3 was occupied by William M. Priest, clothing dealer, and Abner G. Gilmore as a saloon. In No. 5 were Adoniram J. F. Ingraham, sewing-machine agent, and the International Express office; in the second story, Mrs. John Sleeper and Miss Thompson, dressmakers; in the third story was old Phoenix Hall, occupied by Thomas H. Marshall Post, G.A.R. Both tenements were owned by Ralph Cross Johnson. D. H. Peavey, clothing dealer, owned and occupied No. 7. No. 9 was the property of the heirs of Prescott Hazeltine. Mark Andrews was the owner and occupant of No. 11. Most of the stock of goods was saved. Each store was valued at $2500, and all the owners, except those of No. 1, were insured. The block was among the oldest buildings in Belfast, having been erected in 1824.

After the destruction of Phoenix Row, the Boston Insurance Exchange gave notice that, unless a steam fire engine were provided until the completion of the waterworks, the rates of insurance would be doubled or the policies here cancelled. Accordingly, in July, a steam fire engine was hired at fifty dollars per month, and placed in the room of Engine No. 5. It was maintained until December, but its services were never required. In September, Engine No. 2, with forty members, attended a firemen's muster in Brunswick.

To some of the older citizens the destruction of Phoenix Hall was not without a feeling of regret, recalling as it did so many fond associations of their youth.

When the thronged room its glittering groups displayed,
Of Nature's loveliness, by Art arrayed;
Of graceful forms that matched the sculptor's art,
And eyes whose glances reached the coldest heart.

1887, November 27. Farm buildings of Edmund Ames, at North Belfast, near Searsport line; valued at $3000; partially insured.

1888. No destructive fire occurred during the year. The only buildings burned were the house and barn of Cornelius I. Whitcomb, near Poor's Mills; cause, sparks igniting the roof; loss, about $4000; insured, $2200.

The system of waterworks led to a reorganization of the Fire Department. The old hand-engine companies were disbanded, a new hose carriage and hose purchased, and Washington Engine No. 5 was ordered to be sold. The insurance companies readjusted their rates.

1889. During the year only three buildings were destroyed; all outside the hydrant limits, as follows:—

1889, March 28. House of John Walton, on Lincolnville Avenue, with portion of its contents; loss, over $1000; partially insured; cause, a defective chimney.

1889, May 9. Slaughter-house of John Berry on the East Side of the river; loss, $500.

1889, December 4. House and stable of Israel Jones, on Vine Street; loss, $1500; insured for $1000; cause, a defective chimney.

1890. There was no fire of any magnitude within the hydrant service limits. The following buildings in the suburbs were burned:—

1890, February 7. Farm buildings, formerly the property of Luther A. Pitcher, on road from Wales Lewis Miller's to Belmont Avenue; occupied by Frank Towle; loss, about $2500; cause, the overturn of a lighted lantern in the stable.

1890, June 30. House and barn of Charles Russ, on Poor's Mills road; insured for $1000; cause, defective chimney in the ell.

1890, July 14. House and two barns of Warren H. Paul, on cross-road leading from Lincolnville Avenue, near Belmont line; loss, about $2000; partially insured; caused by a defective chimney.

1890, August 5. Dwelling house of Frank Smith, on cross-road near Gurney's Mills; partial insurance; cause, unknown.

1890, September 8. Large two-story house, ell, and stable of Andrew J. Stevens, formerly of John R. Whiting, near junction with back road to Searsport. The furniture was saved. Loss, $1800; insured, $1000; cause of fire unknown.

1890, October 7. House and barn of Frank L. French, at the Head of the Tide. The family were absent at the time, and the fire was caused by an incendiary. Loss, $800; insurance, $550.

1890. A hook and ladder equipment, costing $550, was secured from Bangor, and manned by a company of twenty-five stalwart young men, with Levi Clay as captain.

A sale of the engine house on Spring Street, of one of the hand engines, and of the fire apparatus not needed was authorized by the City Government. Through the influence of Horatio Johnson Locke, a veteran fireman, Hydrant Engine No. 2, purchased in 1844, was retained, and it is hoped will be long preserved as a memorial of old times. (See also illustration opposite.)

1891. But three buildings were burned this year; two of which were beyond the hydrant limits.

1891, May 15. The interior of F. L. Mitchell's saloon in Williamson's Block, High Street, was destroyed; origin unknown.

1891, July 7. House of Captain Fred A. White, at the Upper Bridge. The furniture was partly saved. Insured for $1100. A defective chimney is supposed to have been the cause.

1891, August 18. Unoccupied house of Robert Steele, on the Searsport road. It was built in 1833.

In December, 1891, Washington Engine No. 5 was sold to a fire company at Peabody, Massachusetts, for \$350. It was purchased from Charlestown, Massachusetts, in 1865, and had a good record. Years ago it took the first prize for long distance water throwing, at a contest in Bucksport. The new owners named it the Union. It took first prize at Nashua in 1893, with 199 feet, $5\frac{1}{4}$ inches; at Essex, July 18, 1894, 186 feet, $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches; first at Essex, Labor Day, 1895, with 191 feet, $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches. And again on October 17, 1895, it took the first prize of \$350 in the Boston firemen's muster of 1895. Among the prominent business men of Belfast who were firemen of the Washington Company, are the following: Captain Charles Baker, who was the first foreman, serving four years; L. D. Woodward, Samuel S. Hersey, William Williams Castle, Charles Henry Mitchell, George F. Murch, William C. Thompson, Forest Elmer Cottrell, Horatio Johnson Locke. Mr. Locke was the last foreman, serving from four to six years, and being on the force when the company disbanded.

1892, February 22. House and store of Stanley O. Gurney, at Gurney's Mills; loss, about $1800; partially insured. An overheated stove in the store was the cause.

1892, April 8. House and barn of Mrs. George W. Buckmore, on Northport Avenue, with portion of contents; fully insured; origin of fire unknown.

1893. There were no fires of any extent this year. February 22, the contents of the market of Walter L. Walker, in Williamson's Block, High Street, were spoiled by fire, smoke, and water, but the building was not greatly injured. A sheriff's inquest was held, but the cause was not learned.

In April, 1893, a beginning towards an electric fire-alarm system was made by placing a box at the corner of Main and High streets, connected with a gong at Mathews Brothers mill. The fire department was increased during the year by the formation of a new hose company, Seaside No. 2, with headquarters at Perkins' Store, North High Street.

1894. Buildings of Chester E. Perkins, on cross-road from Northport Avenue to Congress Street, with most of the furniture; loss, over $3000; insured for $2000; cause, breaking of a lamp.

1894, May 3. Dwelling house on East Side of the river, occupied by Frank F. Jellison, and owned by Frank Billings Knowlton; loss, $1400; insurance, $1100. The fire caught around the ell chimney.

1894, August 15. House of Captain Simeon Ryder, on the Head of the Tide road. The barn was saved. Insured for $900; supposed cause, a defective chimney.

1894, August 17. Barn of Charles H. Waterman, on road from Poor's Mills to Belmont Corner, was struck by lightning, and burned with the house and several cows and horses; insured for $700.

1894, September 15. Residence of Captain Evander L. French, at the corner of Cedar and Park streets, and its furniture badly damaged; loss covered by insurance; supposed cause, upsetting by a dog of a kerosene lamp left burning on the table.

1894, September 27. A house on Belmont Avenue, just beyond Alto Street, owned by W. F. Triggs. The house was unoccupied at the time. One family had recently moved out and another was ready to move in. The fire was of incendiary origin, without doubt, as there had been no fire in the chimneys, or, so far as known, about the premises in any way for over three days.

1894, September 28. The $9000 clothing stock in the store of Charles O'Connell, on Main Street, was much damaged by smoke and water; cause of fire not discovered.

1894, October 31. Clothing factory of William W. Cates, on Field Street, mostly destroyed; building and machinery insured for $1200; supposed cause, a defective chimney.

1894, December 22. The house and barn of the late Hiram Emery Peirce, on Waldo Avenue, twenty-five hundred feet from the nearest hydrant, with most of the contents. A heavy wind was blowing at the time. The occupant was Frank L. Emmons. Insurance on buildings and property stored, $6900. Personal effects belonging to Mrs. Peirce, which were burned, had no insurance.

1895. During the year the department was called out for active work but once, and that was on January 6, when the egg storehouse of Charles W. Lancaster was somewhat damaged. The fire was a very stubborn one, but was well fought and the building saved.

1896, January 4. Shortly after six o'clock P.M., with the thermometer at zero, and a gale blowing from the west, the Crosby Inn took fire in the attic. The hose belonging to the building was at once brought to bear, but no water followed. Had it flowed, the flames would have been extinguished at once. When the alarm had brought the fire department to the scene, the flames were coming through the roof near the tower. Even then no one thought the building would be destroyed; and it would not have been but for the delay in getting water and lack of pressure to send the streams where they were wanted. The hydrants were opened with great difficulty and the water-pipes appeared to be clogged with mud. One stream when first turned on apparently contained more mud than water and barely reached the second story, while the fire was raging in the roof. In one instance pebbles plugged the nozzle and stopped the stream. The stand-pipe was running over Saturday afternoon, an hour and a half before the fire, and was two thirds full when it had been burning an hour; hence there was no lack of water. Despite the bitter cold, hundreds were attracted to the scene and remained standing in the showers of sparks and cinders that covered everything to leeward. Once the flames enveloped the tower, and then a change of wind, with possibly the aid of a well directed stream, left it standing out clear again, and it began to look as if the fire might, after all, be confined to that end of the building. It was not long, however, before the flames burst forth again fiercer than ever, leaping from point to point of the tower and raining fire on the adjacent buildings. The roof of the Unitarian Church frequently ignited. The fire seemed a long time in reaching the lower stories, where men were busy saving the furniture and fixtures. The lawn and surrounding streets were covered with furniture, crockery-ware, bedding, etc. With five streams playing on the building, the fire worked steadily downward and onward until it was plain that the whole structure was doomed. By great exertions the annex, originally the Governor Crosby mansion, and the kitchen, were saved, and the western wall of the north wing remained standing, although partially burned. The hotel, including furniture, cost $48,000. There was an insurance on the building of $12,000, and on the furniture, owned by the proprietors, Haugh, Edwards & Co., of $6300. The original stock was valueless, and the holders of the bonded indebtedness did not realize the full amount of their claims. A sheriff's inquest rendered a verdict that the fire originated from some unknown cause.

1896, January 6. House of James Bowen, at East Belfast.

1896, March 10. Farm buildings of Clarence Wyman, at East Belfast; insured for $400.

1896, April 8. Oakum shop in McDonald & Brown's shipyard; loss on building and contents, $600; insured.

1896, May 10. Lunch car of William Haugh, on High Street, badly damaged; insured for $350.

1896, September 9. Granite polishing works of Patrick Brogan damaged, and most of its contents ruined.

1896, October 8. Farm buildings occupied by John H. Adams, owned by Calvin Hollis Monroe.

1896, October 11. Old carding-mill at the Head of the Tide, belonging to James F. Noyes.

1896, November 17. Farm buildings of Mrs. Cordelia Brown (formerly the Luther Smith place), on the Augusta road, with most of their contents; loss on house, $2000; insured for $1000.

1896, November 24. House of Mrs. Julia A. Warren, on Northport Avenue, occupied by Mrs. Electa B. Stone, who lost most of her furniture.

1896, November 29. The store of Charles O'Connell, on Main Street, took fire near a rear window, and, although soon extinguished, the stock was much injured by smoke and water.

There were several changes in the Fire Department during the year 1896. The former Washington Hose Company resigned in April and a new company was organized at once. An additional company was afterwards formed with a separate set of officers, but both to be under the command of one captain. Old Hydrant Engine No. 2 was thoroughly repaired.

1897. But a single fire resulting in loss occurred during the year. On the night of April 25, the buildings on the Preston place, on Northport Avenue, were burned. The fire was discovered in a shed between the house and barn and spread rapidly towards both, and all the buildings with the contents were a total loss. The occupants had barely time to escape with their lives. The place was owned by Mrs. Emma J. Marshall, and was occupied by her and her sister, Miss Camilla Elwell. There was $1000 insurance on the buildings, but none on the personal property.

1897. At the election of city officers in March, I. T. Clough succeeded Francis Hiram Welch as chief of the Fire Department. The "Fireman's Standard" of that month contained a portrait of Mr. Welch, with a sketch of his life and of his work as a fireman.

1898, January 26. House of Frank Whitcomb, at the south end of Cedar Street. It was built in 1897, at a cost of $1100, and was insured for $800; cause of fire unknown.

1898, February 27. House and buildings of the late Captain Robert Hudson Coombs, on Northport Avenue, occupied by his son, Charles Robert Coombs, took fire from an unknown cause. The house was saved in a damaged condition.

1898, March 5. Residence of Clarence M. Knowlton, at City-point, built by the late George Brooks Ferguson at a cost of $5000. The contents were mostly saved; insurance, $3200.

1898, August 15. Story and a half house and stable of Mrs. Sarah W. Brown, on Northport Avenue; contents saved; insurance on buildings and contents, $1300; fire originated in the hayloft.

1898, August 26. Four-tenement house on Congress Street, occupied by George W. Frisbee, so badly damaged as not to be worth repairing, and a new building took its place. It was erected by Albert A. Heath, and from its peculiar shape was once called "Heath's Folly."

1898. The forces of the Fire Department this year consisted of seventy-five men, classed as follows: one chief engineer, two assistant engineers, three captains, four foremen, and sixty-five hose and ladder men. The Department responded to six alarms of fire.

1899, February 16. The most destructive fire of the year was that which consumed the John Peirce Block at the corner of Church and Franklin streets. The lower part contained three large stores, occupied, respectively, by Thomas Haugh, restaurant; Albert L. Edwards, billiards; and Andrew L. Knowlton, baker. The second story was occupied by the Belfast Age Publishing Company. None of the occupants resumed business. The building was owned by Mr. Haugh. His loss was estimated at $5500; the Age Publishing Company at $5000; Mr. Edwards, $650; Mr. Knowlton, $500. The property was insured. An irreparable loss was the destruction of the files of the "Age" for the forty-five years it had been published. An investigation as to the cause of the fire by the municipal officers resulted in a report from cause unknown.

During the year sleds for conveying fire apparatus were provided.

The city purchased land on Vine Street, of Calvin Hervey, for the Seaside Hose Company, whose house was removed there, and enlarged.

1900, April 25. The Alexander house, with its furniture, on the corner of High and Commercial streets, was badly damaged by fire and water; insurance on buildings, $1800; on furniture, $700.

1900, May 26. Farm buildings of Edgar L. Smith, on Belmont Avenue, four miles out, with most of the contents; loss, $1000; no insurance.

1900, August 22. Buildings of David Crosby, on the back road to Seaside occupied by two families; uninsured.

1900, August 23. Schoolhouse in the Emery District, South

Belfast, which has recently been sold by the city to James P. Wight; cause, incendiary.

1900, September 19. House, ell, and barn, on cross-road near Equity Grange Hall, owned by Randall W. Ellis, of Embden, and occupied by Llewellyn P. Moore; cause, unknown; loss, $1500; partially insured.

1900, December 11. Buildings of Beverly S. Staples, at City-point, partially destroyed.

1900, December 25. Buildings of J. W. McIntyre farm on Poor's Mills road, near Belmont Avenue, with contents; no insurance; cause, incendiary.

1900. Two large chemical fire extinguishers were introduced this year.

The public-spirited services rendered by Horace Chenery, Esq., to the Fire Department, of which he was elected a member some years ago, deserve mention. Ever since automobiles have been in general use in Belfast, he has placed at the disposal of the Department one of his cars or trucks, with instructions that it be kept constantly in readiness, night or day, to convey the firemen to the scene of danger, the instant the alarm sounds.

MASONIC INSTITUTIONS

Lodges, Council, and Chapter, 1875 — Seventy-fifth Anniversary of Phoenix Lodge — History — Timothy Chase Lodge completes a Quarter of a Century — Commandery of Knights Templar — Masonic Temple — Dedication — History of Corinthian Chapter — History of Phoenix Lodge.

IN 1875, the Masonic institutions in Belfast were the Phoenix Lodge No. 24, chartered in 1817, having 206 members; Timothy Chase Lodge, No. 126, organized in 1865, having 130 members; King Solomon's Council of Royal and Select Masters, No. 1, organized in 1854, having 112 members; Corinthian Royal Arch Chapter, No. 7, organized in 1848, having 104 members. All these met in Masonic Hall, which was in the third story of the High School Building on Church Street.

At a meeting of Phoenix Lodge, October 9, 1882, a remarkable feature was the presence of every living past-master, fourteen in number, the oldest being Daniel Haraden, who presided in 1846. In 1891, a history of the lodge was prepared by Jeremiah D. Parker. A public commemoration of its seventy-fifth anniversary took place at the Opera House, March 8, 1892, at which a history, by Russell Glover Dyer, and a necrology, by George Edwin Johnson, were read. Both papers appeared in the "Republican Journal" of that week.

On May 3, 1890, Timothy Chase Lodge observed its twenty-fifth anniversary by public exercises at the Opera House.

The neighboring lodges met with the Belfast brethren in District Convention, February 10, 1898.

Palestine Commandery, No. 14, Knights Templar, was organized in Belfast June 8, 1882. There were then about a dozen resident Sir Knights. The following September, it entertained Dunlap Commandery of Bath, which again came in June, 1889. In July, 1889, the Lewiston Commandery were guests, as were Claremont Commandery of Rockland, and De Valois Commandery of Vinalhaven, in September, 1891. Their visits were marked by imposing street parades and various festivities.

The Masonic Library Association was organized January 6,

MASONIC TEMPLE. ERECTED 1873

1869, with George Washington Burgess as president, and Robert Emery as librarian.

The partial destruction of Masonic Hall, by an accidental fire on the evening of May 24, 1875, induced a movement for more spacious accommodations, which resulted in the incorporation, by the Legislature of 1876, of the Masonic Temple Association of Belfast, for the purpose of procuring a lot and erecting a Masonic building thereon. Early the next year, sufficient subscriptions warranted the purchase of the lot at the corner of Main and High streets, for \$7500, and in June, ground for the foundation of the present Masonic Temple was broken. The building was completed in 1878. It is $83\frac{1}{2}$ feet long on High Street, and 54 feet wide on Main Street. It is three stories high, surmounted by a mansard roof, and has a tower at the northwest corner. The material is brick, with freestone trimmings. The whole structure is supplied with water, steam, and gas. There are three stores on High Street, first occupied by Charles Henry Mitchell, confectioner; Cyrus R. Davis, groceries, and Carle & Mansfield, dry goods dealers. The adjoining corner store, having entrances on both streets, was taken by Horace Eugene McDonald, jeweler; and that below on Main Street by Ferguson & Rackliff, milliners. The second story was devoted to offices, and the third and fourth to the Masonic Fraternity, whose hall proper, at the south end, is $46\frac{1}{2}$ by $40\frac{1}{2}$ feet, and $21\frac{1}{2}$ feet high. George M. Harding was the architect of the building, and Israel Wood Parker the builder. Charles Henry Bray was master of the brickwork. The cost of the structure, including the land, was about \$35,000. On the 4th of July, 1879, the building was dedicated by the Grand Lodge of Maine, on which occasion ten thousand visitors were in the city. An account of the building and dedication of the Temple may be found in chapter XL, on Celebrations and Observances.

A sixteen-column Masonic supplement, giving a description of the edifice and of the celebration, was published by the "Republican Journal."

In 1880, a "History of Corinthian Chapter," comprising eighty octavo pages, written by Russell Glover Dyer, and from the press of George Washington Burgess, was published. It contains details concerning Masonic Temple and its dedication, with an engraving.

The "History of Phoenix Lodge, from 1817 to 1863," both inclusive, by John L. Locke, published in 1863, was reprinted in 1900. In connection with it was its subsequent history to the last-named year, including a necrology; the whole forming a pamphlet of one hundred and twelve pages.

CHAPTER XXXVII

ODD FELLOWS

Belfast Lodge revived — Odd Fellows' Association — Waldo Lodge formed — Difficulties between the two Lodges — Uniformed Degree Camp — Penobscot Encampment — Canton Pallas — Celebration of Anniversaries — Dedication of Odd Fellows' Hall — Odd Fellows' Block — Memorial Day — Visiting Brethren from abroad — Lodge of Daughters of Rebekah — Decoration of Graves — Roll of Deceased Members.

THE charter of the lodge of Odd Fellows established in Belfast in 1844, having been surrendered thirteen years later, no organization existed in Belfast until August 4, 1875, when Belfast Lodge, No. 41 with six members was formed, and held meetings in the Allyn Block on Main Street. Their numbers soon outgrew the lodge room, and on the 26th of April, 1876, the hall in the fourth story of City Block, which had been elaborately fitted up, was dedicated in the presence of a large delegation of brethren from abroad. A voluntary association, with a capital of $2000, called Odd Fellows' Association, was formed at that time for the purpose of furnishing the hall.

In April, 1878, the membership of the Belfast Lodge having increased to one hundred and fifteen, a second lodge, called the Waldo Lodge, was instituted, occupying the same hall, and starting with sixty members. The ceremony was public.

In 1879, difficulties between the two Lodges caused much public interest and excitement, and the contention over the possession of City Hall, in which the exercises of the order had been previously held, nearly resulted in bloodshed. By reason of the ensuing disagreements, Belfast Lodge, No. 41, the oldest existing lodge between Augusta and Bangor, was disbanded; and Waldo Lodge, No. 12 resumed possession of the hall in July, 1883. Details of this controversy may be found in a volume of three hundred and fifty pages, containing also several newspaper accounts, with wood-cut engraving of the affray; and in the "Proceedings" of the Grand and Sovereign Lodges. Some of the stockholders of the Odd Fellows' Association afterwards commenced proceedings in equity to recover their share of the hall

A uniformed Degree Camp was instituted November 22, 1883.

Penobscot Encampment, No. 25, was instituted August 7, 1877.

Canton Pallas, No. 4, Patriarchs Militant, with twenty-five charter members, was formed April 7, 1886. Its first officers were Frank A. Follett, captain; George A. Hutchins, lieutenant; Aubrey G. Spencer, ensign; William Melvin Thayer, clerk.

The sixty fifth anniversary of the order was observed April 25, 1884, and an address delivered by Russell Glover Dyer, which appeared in the "Progressive Age" of May 8.

1884, September 9. Penobscot Encampment gave a reception and ball to Kearsarge Encampment of Lawrence, Massachusetts.

1888, April 27. Waldo Lodge, No. 12, celebrated its tenth anniversary, in which brethren from abroad participated.

1889, September 3. Waldo Lodge dedicated its hall in Odd Fellows' Block. The Grand Lodge of Maine was present and performed the impressive ceremony. Cantons from Bangor, Rockland, Vinalhaven, and Waterville were present, with lodges from Rockland, Vinalhaven, Camden, Castine, Winterport, Searsport, and Unity. The parade was one of the largest and best ever seen in Belfast, and included five hundred men. There were six bands in the line, including the Patriarch Militant Band of Boston, which gave a concert in the square in front of the Post-Office. A banquet took place in the Coliseum, followed by a concert and ball in the evening at the Opera House.

The Odd Fellows' Block, on Main Street, Belfast, erected in 1888-89 at a cost of $33,000, including the land, covers the site of the old American House. It is the largest block in the city, being sixty feet on the front, one hundred and four feet deep, and four stories high. The material is brick. The lower story contains two stores, occupied since their completion by A. A. Howes & Co., and George William Burkett. On the second story are offices of lawyers and physicians, and all above is occupied by the several organizations of Odd Fellows. Besides the large hall, is a smaller one, used for concerts and dancing. The building contains all modern improvements, water, steam heat, and electricity. The architect was W. E. Mansur, and the builder W. N. Sawyer, both of Bangor. J. H. Howes has succeeded G. W. Burkett (1912).

1894. Sunday, June 17, was observed as a memorial day to the deceased members of the order, by a decoration of the graves in Grove Cemetery, and an address at the Universalist Church by Rev. Myra Kingsbury.

1894, September 1. Grand Canton Nemo, of Albany, New Hampshire, was entertained by Canton Pallas.

1894, October 15-17. Annual meetings of the Grand bodies were held here.

1897. The First Regiment of Massachusetts Patriarchs militant spent an afternoon in Belfast in September, coming from Bangor in the steamer Lewiston.

1899. Russell Glover Dyer was appointed Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, in place of Joshua Davis, deceased. He was elected as such at the annual meeting in October, 1900.

Aurora Lodge, No. 10, Daughters of Rebekah, was instituted April 25, 1876. The following were its first officers: A. J. Meader, N.G.; Sarah Frances Meader,¹ V.G.; Hattie Adela Burkett, Rec. Sec.; Joanna Dyer, Per. Sec.; Evelyne Gilmore, Treas.

1900. Sunday, June 24, was observed by the Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah by services in the Unitarian Church, and at Grove Cemetery. Rev. James Monroe Leighton delivered the sermon. The graves of forty Odd Fellows and sixteen Daughters of Rebekah in the cemetery were decorated by committees detailed for the purpose. The roll of deceased members of Waldo Lodge and Aurora Rebekah Lodge was read by the secretary, John S. Davidson, as follows:—

CHAPTER XXXVIII

TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATIONS, PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY, KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS, KNIGHTS OF MALTA

TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATIONS

IN 1875, the Belfast temperance organizations were, Belfast Division, No. 182, Sons of Temperance; Belfast Lodge, No. 30, and Greenwood Lodge, No. 307 (Head of the Tide), Independent Order of Good Templars; The Woman's Christian Temperance Union; and the Belfast Reform Club.

Sons of Temperance. After a few years, its work was merged in that of the Good Templars.

Good Templars. The State Grand Lodge held its annual session in Belfast October 5, 1875. The following year that body presented a banner to the Belfast Lodge for gain in membership. Its numbers, over eight hundred, rendered it the largest lodge in the world. In October, 1893, the old Masonic Hall, in the High School Building, was dedicated as a home for the lodge. In 1893, Sunlight Juvenile Temple, No. 3, auxiliary of the institution, was organized, and flourished in 1900. Crystal Gem existed in 1890. Greenwood Lodge was reorganized in 1898, under the name of Waldo Lodge. Golden Rule, No. 317, existed in 1884.

In 1900, George Emerson Brackett was restored to the office of Grand Secretary of the State Lodge, which he had held since 1875, with the exception of the last year. Mrs. David P. Alexander was reëlected Superintendent of Juvenile Temple in Maine. She has thoroughly organized that department of temperance work and instituted numerous temples throughout the State.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union was established March 28, 1874. The Maine organization held a session in Belfast in 1880. The following year a society of young ladies, called the Young Woman's Temperance Union, was merged in the Woman's Union. A County Union was then formed. In 1895, badges were given the Anti-Cigarette League, which was composed of school-boys.

On September 27, 1891, a service took place at the Universalist Church in memory of the following deceased members: Mrs. S. G. Howard, Mrs. A. A. Marriner, Mrs. J. A. Wilder, Mrs. Eliza Wilson, Mrs. J. A. Gilchrist, Mrs. Mary Whittier Patterson, Mrs. Martha Gilmore, Mrs. L. R. Crommett, Miss Susan C. Starrett, Mrs. Lemuel R. Palmer, Mrs. J. C. Frye, Mrs. Frances Hardy, Mrs. R. A. Bruce, Mrs. Julia A. Knight, Mrs. Kate H. Emery, Mrs. M. M. Brown, Mrs. Abigail Patterson, Mrs. C. O. McKenney, Mrs. Lucy A. Wight, Mrs. Sarah Hayes, Mrs. Horatio Huntington Johnson.

A commemorative service to Miss Frances Elizabeth Willard was held March 8, 1900.

A Union State Convention assembled in Belfast, September 29 to October 1, 1896, over two hundred members being present.

March 30, 1899. The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Union was observed, by a meeting and supper at the house of Miss Ellen Prentiss Frothingham, on High Street.

The Belfast Reform Club, established May 12, 1875, had 175 members the following year. William H. Sanborn was president. It celebrated its third anniversary in 1878, since which only a few meetings have been held.

On the 20th of August, 1876, a secret organization called a Temple of Honor was established with twenty charter members. A similar one formerly existed in Belfast, in connection with the Sons of Temperance, but expired with that body.

On Christmas evening, 1881, a Citizen's Temperance Society was formed. Its existence was brief.

The Belfast Temperance Alliance was established May 20, 1882, with Walter Basdwin Rankin as president. It first held public meetings every Sunday afternoon in Hayford Hall. An auxiliary, called the Ladies' Aid Association, united with it, the same year.

1890, October 7. A Non-Partisan Woman's Christian Temperance Union was organized, with Mrs. Eliza A. (Dickerson) Burrington as president. In 1893, it conducted a manual training school, of sixty-eight pupils. At the annual meeting in October, an address was delivered before it on "The Greek Diana," by

Rev. George Warren Field, of Bangor. The present officers are, Mrs. Annie M. Griffin, president; vice-presidents, Mrs. Charles Albert Pilsbury, Mrs. Sanford Hills Mathews, Mrs. Albert Gam-mans, Miss Mary Jackson, and Mrs. George F. Ryan; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Mary E. Hubbard. The sewing school continues, under charge of Miss Lilian Ryan. A State Convention of this Union was held in Belfast September 28, 1895.

During 1893, a "Morrell Liquor Cure Institute," indorsed by the temperance societies, graduated twenty-seven patients.

A Civic League was established in 1897, and held a few meetings.

"A decided advance," remarked the "Republican Journal," in its review of the year 1900, "has been made in public sentiment in regard to temperance and reforms. The City Council passed a curfew ordinance at the December meeting, and it is now in operation and working satisfactorily. The slot-machines were ordered out of town, and the order was obeyed; and a more vigorous enforcement of the prohibitory law was inaugurated. The local clergy gave a number of reform services on various occasions, and a mass meeting was held in the Opera House December 16, addressed by Rev. W. F. Berry, Secretary of the Maine Christian Civic League."

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Equity Grange, No. 170, was established in Belfast in 1876. Wales Lewis Miller was the first master. It was reorganized in 1882. It has a hall on Belmont Avenue, one and one half miles out of town, to which an addition was made in 1897. (Burned.)

Seaside Grange, No. 243, was instituted in April, 1882, and first occupied a hall over Frank Billings Knowlton's store, on High Street, Belfast. In 1891, it had a hall on Field Street. Another hall, sixty five by thirty feet, was built on Field Street, in 1895, and dedicated the following June, in connection with the County Grange meeting.

During the third week of December, 1889, the Maine State Grange held the sixteenth annual session at the Belfast Opera House. About six hundred Grangers were present, and the number of visitors was estimated at one thousand. All the hotels were filled and the citizens opened their houses to the patrons and their friends.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Silver Cross Lodge, No. 58, was established in Belfast in 1886, and January 18, 1887, dedicated a hall in No. 2, Phoenix Row. That block was burned the following June, and a portion having been rebuilt, the quarters of the lodge were soon reëstablished near the same spot, over the store of Charles N. Black. An extension of thirty feet was added to the building in 1892. In 1896, forty-seven new members joined. Sir Knight Captain Francis Hiram Welch was presented with a silver writing-set in appreciation of his labors for the order.

Uniform Rank, Belfast Division, was instituted in 1887. August 28 and 29, 1889, the State Regiment held its annual field day here. Among the festivities was a clambake at Fort Point.

1899, January 17, Captain Francis Hiram Welch was presented with a Supreme Lodge jewel from the Maine Battalion, U.R., and on the same evening Belfast Company presented a bass drum to the Belfast Band, which is the Second Regiment Band of the order.

PYTHIAN SISTERHOOD

KNIGHTS OF MALTA

Governor Crosby Commandery, with sixteen members, was instituted December 11, 1900, at Odd Fellows' Hall, by Frank Gray, Supreme Recorder, of Philadelphia, assisted by a degree staff from Boston. The name was suggested by Mathew W. Welch, in honor of the late Hon. William George Crosby. Its officers are: Past commander, Francis Hiram Welch; Sir Knight Commander, Mathew W. Welch; Generalissimo, Nathaniel J. Pottle; Captain General, Fred J. Stephenson; Prelate, Sanford Howard; Recorder, Melville Cox Hill; Assistant Recorder, Joseph A. Montefiore; Senior Warden, Charles Robert Coombs.

THE BELFAST BOARD OF TRADE

THIS association, having for its object the organized efforts of the business men of Belfast for the better promotion of the material interests of the city, was organized in Memorial Hall, December 19, 1889. The first officers were William Colburn Marshall, president; Ami Cutter Sibley, vice-president; William Henry Quimby, secretary; Fred H. Francis, treasurer. During the first year of its existence it was instrumental in obtaining improved train and mail service, cheap excursion rates, and in establishing the Loan and Building Association. Its first anniversary was observed by a banquet in Odd Fellows' Hall. Of late years but little has been accomplished through its means.

On the 14th of September, 1893, the State Board of Trade met in annual session with the local Board in Memorial Hall. About forty delegates from different parts of Maine attended. Papers and discussions occupied the first day. In the evening a banquet at the Crosby Inn took place, prolonged by toasts and speeches to a late hour. During the next forenoon there was an excursion down the bay, making a brief stay at Castine and dining at the Northport Hotel.

BELFAST BAND

The Belfast Military Band was established October 4, 1889. Its first officers were Ami Cutter Sibley, president; George H.

Bemis, vice-president; Charles Haraden Field, secretary; Horatio Palmer Thompson, treasurer; Ami Cutter Sibley, Arthur Irving Brown, Charles Baker, George William Burkett, David Pollard Flanders, Samuel Worth Johnson, and Elbridge Simmons Pitcher, directors. The instruments were six clarionets, five cornets, two orchestral horns, two altos, two tenor slide trombones, two E flat basses, one valve tenor, one bass slide trombone, one baritone, one double B flat, one piccolo, drums and cymbals.

Under the instruction of Mr. Frank J. Rigby, and by indefatigable practice, the band has acquired the reputation of being one of the best musical organizations in Maine, and its services are in demand both at home and abroad. It has a large musical library. An innovation was introduced in 1898, consisting of two drum majors, William H. Sanborn, who weighs 261 pounds, and is the largest man doing military duty in Maine, and Donald Orman Robbins, who weighs 40 pounds, the smallest man in the State. (See illustration, opposite.)

LITERARY, SCIENTIFIC, AND IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATIONS

Belfast Improvement Society. This institution was established by the ladies, July 2, 1900, and was incorporated in 1901, with the following organization: President, Mrs. Albert Gamman; first vice-president, Miss Louise Hazeltine; second vice-president, Mrs. Charles Albert Pilsbury; third vice-president, Mrs. James Monroe Leighton; recording secretary, Mrs. George Emerson Brackett; corresponding secretary, Miss Maude Eliza Mathews; treasurer, Mrs. Bancroft Huzzy Conant. The officers are women: but men become silent members by subscribing one dollar. It has already done much work towards beautifying and improving the city.¹

East Belfast Literary Society was formed in January, 1877, by young people, for mutual benefit and social entertainment. In April, 1880, it gave a dramatic performance at McCrillis's Hall.

¹ The Society is in 1913 a large organization, and accomplishes much for the appearance of the city, and the benefit of the community. The City Park of fifteen acres, on Northport Avenue, was purchased in 1904 through its efforts, and the pavilion, bath-houses, and ovens built there. In addition, shrubs were planted, and the roads laid out and constructed, the latter at a cost of $500. A large number of well-chosen pictures have been hung in the rooms of the public schools, and a general course of public lectures was maintained for three years, through the efforts of the society.

DRUM MAJORS, WILLIAM HENRY SANBORN AND DONALD ORMAN ROBBINS

Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle. This institution was organized in 1878, at Chautauqua, New York, where annual reunions are held. The object is to afford courses of home readings and study in literature, science, and art. A regular course comprises four years' readings, and a daily study of forty minutes. Each year members are expected to answer questions on the branches pursued. For mutual instruction, local circles are formed in communities. The first one in Belfast dates from 1885. The following Circles existed in 1899: Armor Bearer, Myrtle Pendleton, president; Helping Hand, Mrs. William Staples, president; Pine Tree, Mrs. David Alexander, president; Seaside, Mrs. Mary Hubbard, president; Progressive, Mrs. Etta Savory, president.

School of Expressive Art. A summer term of this school, of three weeks' duration, was held in Belfast in August, 1894, the instructors being the Misses Laughton and Professor H. W. Ticknor. The attendance was large, and on several evenings public entertainments took place here and in neighboring towns. Addresses were given by Mrs. Clara Power Edgerly, of the Boston School of Oratory.

Natural Science Association. Two societies for the study of Nature were formed in Belfast in the spring of 1899; the Belfast Nature Club, composed of adults; and the Agassiz Association, whose members are school children.

The Belfast Scientific Association, for the purpose of pursuing scientific studies, was organized April 11, 1887, with Rev. John Arthur Savage as president, and Charles Swan Bickford as secretary. The room was in the attic story of the Savings Bank Building. A collection of specimens was made, and lectures frequently delivered. No meetings were held after 1893. The records are preserved in the Free Library.

BELFAST OLD HOME WEEK ASSOCIATION

This association was organized June 14, 1900, with the following officers: President, Mayor Clarence Osgood Poor; vice-presidents, Ami Cutter Sibley, William Colburn Marshall; secretary, Herbert Tobey Field; treasurer, Charles Prescott Hazeltine. Its objects are to promote the welfare of the city by increasing the interest in it among former residents. All present and former residents are regarded as members without formal action. Under its auspices, a celebration took place August 7-10, 1900, an account of which is given in chapter XL.

OTHER ASSOCIATIONS

American Legion of Honor. Bay View Council, No. 362, existed in 1881.

Ancient Order of United Workmen. Enterprise Lodge, No. 53, was instituted, June 19, 1888, with fifty charter members. Thirty-seven of them received degrees. While the order is social and fraternal in spirit, its principal feature is life insurance, each member carrying a policy of $2000. Charles Wesley Haney was the first in the ranks in Belfast who died. On Sunday, March 11, 1900, services in memory of J. Watson Knowlton and Frank A. Gilkey were held in the Universalist Church, and a sermon preached by Rev. Ashley A. Smith.

Athletics. An association by that name was formed in 1888, with a membership of twenty. It had rooms on Main Street, fitted for athletic exercises.

Belfast Choral Society, for the cultivation of music, was organized in 1879. Rev. Simon Goodenough was its first president.

Belfast Rifle Club, formed in 1885, was composed of local sportsmen. Dr. Samuel Worth Johnson was the first president. The shooting range was on the Charles Read Farm.

Belfast Gun Club. With John Healey as president, this organization started April 24, 1889, with thirteen members, the objects being practice of wing-shooting and enforcement of the game laws. The following year its name was changed to Belfast Rifle, Rod and Gun Club.

The Bijou Club, comprised of fifteen young men, had rooms in Hayford Block, in 1892.

The Central Club, for social purposes, was organized in 1886, and occupied four different locations until March, 1898, when it removed to the rooms of the Club of Thirty in Hayford Block.

Club of Ten, for social purposes, was organized in 1882, at the Den, in City Block, with ten members.

The Club of Thirty, after a continuous existence of more than a third of a century, having lost many of its members by death, and other causes, on January 28, 1898, gave up its rooms in Hayford Block to the Central Club, voting, however, not to disband, but to hold future meetings upon call of the president.

Most of the members united with the Elm City and Central Clubs.

The XII Club, composed of twelve young men, was organized in January, 1882, and first occupied the office of the late Governor Crosby, on Franklin Street. This was exchanged the same year for more commodious quarters in the Hayford Block. In 1891, the number of members was increased to forty, and the club removed to rooms in Masonic Temple. In 1893, it took the name of Elm City Club, with an enlarged membership. In May, 1898, it was reorganized and incorporated as the Waldo Club.

Grand Orient. Delhi Hut, No. 2000, was instituted March 8, 1887. It was a social society for those who belonged to any secret order. Seventeen were initiated.

Independent Order of Foresters. Court Waldo, with twenty-four charter members, was organized March 13, 1896.

Knights of Labor. Belfast Assembly had over one hundred and seventy members in 1885. It disbanded in 1889.

Monarch Banjo and Guitar Club, composed of young men, came into existence in 1891, and gave several concerts.

New England Order of Protection. Belfast Lodge, No. 140, was organized in 1889. It was open to both sexes, and its principal feature was life insurance.

Order of the Kings' Daughters existed in 1894, and met in the parlors of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The Parlor Musical Club, for the promotion of music culture, started in November, 1888, with twenty-five members. It was reorganized in 1898. Its present officers are: Clarence Osgood Poor, president; Rev. James Monroe Leighton, vice-president; Bertha I. Bird, secretary; Elbridge Simmons Pitcher, treasurer; Essie M. Sanborn, librarian. (1900.)

The Personal Liberty Club. Established in 1888, in opposition to the prohibitory liquor law, had two hundred members. But one meeting took place.

Red Men. Improved Order of Red Men, Tarratine Tribe, No. 43, was organized in February, 1889. It held meetings in the rooms of the Knights of Pythias.

Royal Arcanum. Belfast Council, No. 793, was established, September 1, 1883. William Pitt Thompson was Regent.

Spiritual and Liberal Association. On Sunday, April, 5, 1891, the Belfast Society observed the forty-third anniversary of Modern Spiritualism by public exercises. Its semi-centennial was celebrated in March, 1898.

Stone Cutters. In November, 1883, about forty organized under the name of the Belfast Branch Union; the object, mutual protection. John Lowney was president, and the meetings were in Johnson's Hall, High Street.

United Fellowship. Maple Leaf, No. 54, existed in 1888.

For eleven years, commencing in 1888, the anniversary of the sailing of the bark William O. Alden, from Belfast to California, December 8, 1849, with passengers and crew numbering fifty, was observed by the survivors. At the first reunion, eight were present; out of twenty-six then living. This number diminished each year, and at the last meeting, in 1899, but three out of the six known to be living attended: Henry Dunbar, John N. Stewart, and Joseph L. Havener, all of Belfast. The other three were: Henry J. Woods, of Orono; Lorenzo G. Coombs, of Globe, Arizona; and Augustus Burrill, of California.¹

THE COOT CLUB

The Coot Club, an organization of Belfast young men interested in shooting and fishing, has made annual excursions among the islands of Penobscot Bay, during the first week in October, since 1902, to date, 1912. The steamer Castine has usually been chartered for the occasion, and in addition to deep-sea fishing, duck shooting, etc., it has been the custom to hold an old-fashioned country dance, which has always been looked forward to and greatly enjoyed by the residents for miles around the locality visited. The experiences of the Club have been many and varied, and number among them the capture of the steamer and the arrest of the members by over-zealous game wardens. Legal proceedings, however, determined that the wardens were less versed in the law than the sportsmen, and the case was dismissed. A list of members follows: Fred Titcomb Chase, Horace Chenery, Charles E. Crawford,² Edward R. Esterbrooks, Herbert Foster, William Henry Hall, James Howard Howes, Ralph Henry Howes, Alfred Johnson, Dr. William Cunningham Libbey, Samuel Merrill Ray Locke, T. Frank Parker, Clarence Eugene Read, Frank O. Smith,² and William Henry Quimby. Joseph H. Darby has always acted as steward. (See illustration, opposite.)

¹ In 1876, 97 Belfast men were in business in San Francisco. ² Deceased.

CELEBRATIONS AND OBSERVANCES

Fourth of July — Decoration Day — Orators — Arbor Day — Death of President Garfield — Death of General Grant — Death of Vice-President Hendricks — Death of Governor Bodwell — Old Home Week.

FOURTH OF JULY

IN 1877, Equity Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, with invited Granges, held a celebration, at the Head of the Tide. Seth Llewellyn Milliken delivered an oration in Mitchell's Grove. There was a procession, a dinner, and in the evening a dance.

1879. Early in this year, the Belfast Masonic Fraternity having become established in the new Temple, it was determined to dedicate that edifice on the Fourth of July, that being the thirty-first anniversary of the consecration of Corinthian Royal Arch Chapter, and extensive preparations were made. The ceremonies took place under the supervision of the Grand Lodge, and were preceded by the largest procession ever witnessed in Belfast, comprising three thousand Masons from thirty-two different Masonic bodies, and nine bands of music. A dinner for three thousand persons was provided in a tent, 250 feet by 115, pitched in the Allyn Field. At its close an oration was delivered by Grand Master Josiah H. Drummond. An evening reception in the Temple and a dress ball in Hayford Hall closed the festivities. A detailed account of this celebration was published in a Masonic supplement of the "Republican Journal," portions of which appeared in Russell Glover Dyer's "History of Corinthian Chapter."

1890. An elaborate programme was arranged, but rain interfered, and only a few of the exercises took place. A cavalcade of Antiques and Horribles, however, appeared, but with reduced numbers.

1891. The Waldo County Horse-Breeders' Association, and the citizens generally, prepared for a celebration, but rain fell throughout the whole day, and the races, which were to form a prominent feature of the occasion, did not take place.

1892. A celebration by the Horse-Breeders proved successful this year. There was a procession of fantastics, an address on the Common by Hon. Seth Llewellyn Milliken, and an exhibition of the waterworks, followed in the afternoon by races at the trotting park, and by a ball in the evening.

1899. The celebration proved more extensive and successful than any for several years. The weather was perfect, and the streets thronged. The exercises included sunrise salutes, fire department trials, a trades and fantastic procession with three bands, boat contests and other athletic sports, a yacht race, baseball games, closing with a band concert and display of fireworks in the Allyn Field, between Allyn and Condon streets. Notwithstanding the large number of visitors but two arrests for drunkenness took place. A free supply of iced water was furnished at the principal street corners.

DECORATION DAY

In 1874, the thirtieth of May was declared a legal holiday by the Legislature of Maine. It was not fully observed as such in Belfast until 1877, when for the first time there was a procession, decoration of graves, reading the roll of honor, or a list of Belfast soldiers in the Civil War who were killed or had died, and an address. Since then similar exercises have taken place each year, the expenses of the occasion being aided by appropriations from the City Treasury. The orators have been as follows:—

1877. Colonel Joseph W. Spaulding, Richmond.

1878. Seth Llewellyn Milliken, Esq.

1879.

1881. No observance.

1882. Rev. Simon Goodenough,¹ Belfast.

1883. Rev. Thomas B. Gregory, Belfast.

1884. Rev. H. W. Tilden, Augusta.

1885. General Charles Hamlin, Bangor.

1886. Rev. C. L. Haskell, Searsport.

1887. Hon. Seth Llewellyn Milliken, Belfast.

1888. Luther C. Bateman, Searsmont.

1889. Rev. J. H. Shinn.

- 1890. John O. Johnson, Liberty.
- 1891. Colonel William Henry Fogler, Rockland.
- 1892. Jeremiah E. Burke, Waterville.
- 1893. Rev. Myra Kingsbury, Belfast.
- 1894. Rev. S. L. Hanscom, Belfast.
- 1895. Rev. John F. Tilton, Belfast.
- 1896. Rev. Charles Henry Wells, Belfast.
- 1897. Norman Wardwell, Esq., Belfast.
- 1898. Rev. G. G. Winslow, Belfast.
- 1899. Rev. Ashley Auburn Smith, Belfast.
- 1900. Colonel Harry Weissinger.

ARBOR DAY

In 1888, the Legislature passed the following law: "That the Governor shall annually set apart a day in the spring as Arbor Day, and shall issue a proclamation recommending that it be observed by the people of this State in the planting of trees, shrubs, and vines, in the adornment of public and private grounds, places, and ways, and in such other efforts and undertakings as shall be in harmony with the general character of a day so established." The 1st day of May having been so appointed, exercises took place at the High-School room, followed by planting trees upon the school common, one of which, an elm, on Spring Street, was named Louisa May Alcott. Three years afterwards, a Longfellow tree was planted by the school children on the common.

OBSERVANCES

The news of the assassination of President James Abram Garfield, Saturday July 3, 1881, reached Belfast at about eleven o'clock in the forenoon, and created intense excitement. The Boston Sunday newspapers, the next afternoon, gave the first details of the sad event. On the announcement of his death, September 19, the church bells were tolled, flags displayed at half-mast, buildings decorated in mourning, the schools dismissed, and all places of business closed. The part which Belfast took in the national pageantry of mourning on the following Monday, the day of the funeral, was imposing and creditable. Mayor Marlboro Packard Woodcock early issued the following notice:—

In response to the recommendations of President Arthur, and the general desire of the people that their heartfelt sorrow at the death of President Garfield may find fitting public expression, I request that all places of business in this city may be closed on Monday next, from 12 M. to 4 o'clock P.M. A public meeting will be held in Hayford Hall at 2 o'clock P.M., at which there will be singing, prayer, and addresses by the clergy and others.

MARLBORO PACKARD WOODCOCK,
Mayor of Belfast.

Early in the morning the city was draped with elements of mourning. Business was entirely suspended, and in the streets a Sabbath silence prevailed. The memorial services were largely attended, and no more reverent audience ever assembled within the walls of any sacred edifice. The decorations of the hall were elaborate and in good taste. The Mayor presided, and addresses were made by Rev. John Alexander Ross, Mr. Augustus H. Kelley, George Edmund Wallace, Esq., Colonel William Henry Fogler, and Hon. Seth Llewellyn Milliken. On the following Sabbath, sermons upon the late President were delivered in all the churches of the city, which were draped in mourning.

On the occasion of the funeral of General Grant, which took place August 8, 1885, Mayor Fogler issued an order as follows: —

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELFAST: —

It is fitting that we unite with the citizens of the whole country in expressing our sorrow for the death of the first citizen of his country, the ablest soldier of his age, General Ulysses S. Grant, and in paying to him our tribute of respect as his body is being borne to its last resting-place.

I, therefore, request that on Saturday, August 8th, the day of his funeral, all places of business in the city be closed between the hours of two and four o'clock P.M., and that, so far as practicable, the residences and places of business in the city be suitably draped.

The request was generally observed. The bells were tolled, and flags were displayed at half-mast.

On Sunday, December 1, 1885, Mayor Fogler issued a notice concerning the funeral of Vice-President Hendricks, and the suggestions which it made met with due response.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELFAST: —

The funeral of Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks, late Vice-President of the United States, will take place at Indianapolis to-day. As a token of respect to one who at the time of his death filled the second office in the gift of the American people, and as a recognition of the national loss sustained by his sudden and lamented death, I recommend that all places of business in this city be closed to-day from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock P.M.

WILLIAM HENRY FOGLER, Mayor.

BELFAST, December 1, 1885.

Upon the death of Governor Bodwell, in 1887, Mayor Burgess issued the notice given below. Its requests were complied with, the schools closed, and flags from the public buildings were displayed at half-mast.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, BELFAST, December 19, 1887.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELFAST:—

The Governor of this State, Hon. Joseph R. Bodwell, died at his residence in Hallowell, Thursday morning, the 15th inst., and his public funeral takes place Tuesday, the 20th inst. In accordance with the request of Acting Governor Sebastian S. Marble, and as a mark of our respect and honor for the memory of our deceased Governor, I respectfully request that all places of business be closed Tuesday, Dec. 20th, from 11 A.M. to 2 P.M., standard time.

ALBERT CARGILL BURGESS, Mayor.

BELFAST OLD HOME WEEK ASSOCIATION

The hills are dearest which our childish feet
Have climbed the earliest; and the streams most sweet
Are ever those at which our young lips drank,
Stooped to the waters o'er the grassy bank.

Such, and kindred associations, induced the presence of a large number of the sons and daughters of Belfast, resident elsewhere, August 7-10, 1900, to participate in the observance of Old Home Week. A society formed for the purpose, and presided over by Mayor Clarence Osgood Poor, omitted no effort to render the occasion successful.

Supplementary to the official assurance of Governor Llewellyn Powers, that former residents of Maine would be greeted where were once their homes and the scenes of their youth with heartfelt welcome, unfeigned gladness, and open doors, the Belfast Old Home Week Association sent a cordial invitation to nearly a thousand former citizens and their descendants who were scattered through every State in the Union.

The public entertainments were inaugurated August 7, by a baseball game, and a performance of "Pinafore" by a local company at the Opera House. Social gatherings occupied the next day, followed by the arrival of the United States ship Texas, a war steamer of over six thousand tons, which anchored opposite the Western Battery.

Thursday, August 9, had been set apart for the principal festivities, and nearly all the buildings, public and private, presented a gay appearance with their decorations of flags, mottoes, and flowers. A cloudy morning gave way to sunshine, which enabled the programme to be thoroughly carried out. At nine o'clock, a procession, preceded by the Belfast Brass Band and escorted by the Knights of Pythias, formed in line on High Street. Here it was joined by the officers of the Texas in carriages, the city authorities, and by a battalion of marines and blue-jackets, followed by the Brooks Band, and buckboards adorned with flowers containing young ladies in brilliant costumes. During the passage through the streets, a halt was made around the school-house common, where lemonade was served and each person in the ranks supplied with a bouquet. Along the line of march, the naval officers as well as the men under their command received a continuous ovation. In the afternoon, the harbor presented a brilliant spectacle. Favored by a light breeze, and witnessed by thousands of spectators who lined the shores, a fleet of nine yachts from Dark Harbor, all racers in rig and model, and manned by experts, contended for prizes, succeeded by trials of speed from sloop and knockabout classes. Many visiting yachts, among them the famous cup defender Vigilant, and numerous steamers and vessels gave animation to the scene. Other events were visits to the Texas, which was open to public inspection. A baseball game was played, and towards sunset, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, under the command of Captain Francis Hiram Welch, gave an interesting and largely witnessed drill in Custom-House Square.

The evening's entertainment consisted of a concert by the Belfast Band upon the Common, which was illuminated by Japanese lanterns suspended from the trees. Captain Mackenzie of the Texas and nine associate officers attended. While the concert was in progress, the Texas gave an exhibition of her search and signal lights.

On Friday afternoon, a reception, conducted by the Improvement Society, took place in Memorial Hall, and brought together many citizens and old residents. The decorations of the hall were elaborate, and the ladies, who offered refreshments from tables almost obscured by flowers, were particularly attractive. In the evening the naval officers and others were hospitably entertained at the residence of James Sumner Harriman, Esq., Collector of the District of Belfast.

The exercises of the week fittingly closed with services at the Unitarian Church, where an appropriate sermon was preached by its pastor, Rev. James Monroe Leighton. A large audience was present, many from abroad availing themselves of the opportunity to worship once more in the venerable edifice, which for over three fourths of a century has remained almost unchanged.

CHAPTER XLI

BENEFICENT ACTS AND CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS

Bequests of Paul Richard Hazeltine — Alfred Waldo Johnson Poor Fund — Gift of Nathan Foster Houston — Free Soup-Houses — Home for Aged Women — Donation for St. John and Eastport Fire Sufferers — Humane Society — Associate Charities — Girls' Sewing-School — Girls' Home.

IN addition to his bequest for a library, the details of which are given in another chapter, the late Paul Richard Hazeltine, who died in 1878, gave to the Unitarian Society of Belfast the sum of seven thousand dollars, to be safely and permanently invested and held in trust by said society; one half of the income to be paid for the support of Unitarian preaching, and one half of said income to be paid to assist the deserving poor of the town, during the winter and spring months of each year, to prevent their being forced on the town for support; these bequests to be under the control, management and direction of the regular officers or committees of management of said society forever. If the funds should ever be diverted from the specific objects for which they are given, they become forfeited, and revert to the legal heirs.

He also made an additional bequest to the society, as follows:

I give and bequeath to the Unitarian Society of said Belfast at my wife's decease, out of my estate left her during life, Three Thousand Dollars, in addition to the Seven Thousand Dollars heretofore given said Society, for the same purpose, viz.: to be safely and permanently invested and held in trust by said society. One half of the income of which to be paid annually for the support of Unitarian preaching for said society, and the other half to be paid for food, fuel and clothing for the deserving poor of said Belfast, during the winter and spring months of each year forever, to prevent their being forced on the town for support. This bequest to be under the management, control, and direction of the regular officers or committees of said society for the time being.

If this bequest should ever be diverted from the specific objects for which it is given, it shall revert to my estate, and be equally divided between my legal heirs.

The other religious societies were remembered by him in the following bequests: —

I give and bequeath to the Methodist Society, and to the Baptist Society, and to the Congregational or Calvinistic Society, and the Universalist Society, as now organized in said Belfast, One Thousand Dollars each, to be permanently invested and held in trust by each of said societies, the interest of which only shall be annually paid for such preaching as the several societies may desire, forever.

If any of these bequests should ever be diverted from the specific objects for which they are given, they shall become forfeited, and revert to my legal heirs and be divided between them accordingly.

The annual bequest of the late Alfred Waldo Johnson, of five hundred dollars, to be expended perpetually, for the relief of the needy poor of Belfast, who are not paupers, has been faithfully disbursed since his death in 1869. During the winter of 1900, Mr. Edward Johnson, its trustee, paid out $513, as follows: For wood, coal, and flour, $413.88, in 103 different lots; and $100 in cash distributed between five individuals.

In 1877 and 1878, Hon. Nathan Foster Houston gave his salary as Mayor for the benefit of the poor.

A soup-house, established on Beaver Street, in February, 1878, for the benefit of the poor, disbursed fourteen hundred gallons. The "Republican Journal" remarked that it did not attract applicants in numbers sufficient to indicate great destitution. As a matter of fact, all the really pressing cases of want were relieved by local charities, organized previous to this year.

The following winter (1879) a soup-house was maintained for seventy-five days, under the superintendence of Alden Darwin Chase. The average daily charity applicants were ninety-seven. The aggregate number of persons supplied was seventy-two hundred and seventy-five.

A soup-house was also opened during the winter of 1893-94. It was conducted eleven weeks, and dealt out ten thousand free meals.

In 1895, Mrs. Andrew Euell Clark, Mrs. Henrietta Walker, Mrs. H. W. Pitcher, Mrs. William B. Conant, Mrs. Stephen G. Bicknell, Miss Almira Abigail Hicks, and Miss Ellen Prentiss Frothingham were incorporated as The Belfast Home for Aged Women. While its objects have not been perfected, the organization is maintained, and it can receive bequests or contributions for the future. (1900.)¹

¹ In 1913, the corporation of the Belfast Home for Aged Women, organized in October, 1903, own the "Home" situated at 24 Cedar Street, and valued at $4000; and in addition have about $6000 invested, and disburse the income of the

In 1877, five hundred dollars was raised and sent to sufferers by a great fire in St. John, New Brunswick. After the Eastport fire, in October, 1886, $429.50 was contributed by our citizens, one hundred dollars being given by Charles Bellows Hazeltine.

BELFAST HUMANE SOCIETY

This society was formed in June, 1885. In the language of the by-laws, its work has two aims: first, it will prevent cruelty to all animals; second, it will prevent cruelty to children. The prevention of all kinds of cruelty will be sought, first, by the creation of a public humane sentiment; second, by the punishment of offenders to the full extent of the law.

Arthur W. Robinson was the original agent. His successor, John Watson Knowlton, whose faithful discharge of his duties reduced to a minimum the necessity for such work by inculcating a wholesome respect for the law, held the position until his death, when Owen G. White was chosen. The latter died in 1900, and William Harry Clifford took his place.

In 1896, a bequest was made to the society by Mrs. Frances Maria Banks, and five years later, one of like amount under the will of the late William S. Brannagan. At the last annual meeting the treasurer reported two hundred dollars in his hands. The present officers are as follows: President, Nathaniel Emery Keen; vice-presidents, Dr. John George Brooks, Clement Wescott Wescott; treasurer, Horatio Palmer Thompson; secretary, Rev. Lindley M. Burrington. (1900.)

In November, 1897, a society called The Associated Charities of Belfast was formed, but suspended the following year.

A Girls' Sewing-School instituted in 1896, has proved highly successful. It had forty-one pupils in 1899.

THE GIRLS' HOME

In 1893, Mrs. Eliza A. (Dickerson) Burrington, Mrs. Charles Albert Pilsbury, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown Brackett, Ami Cutter Sibley, Mrs. Albert Gammans, Mrs. Arthur Irving Brown, Dr.

McClintock Fund of $3000. The Home is in charge of a matron, and there are at present four residents who have signified their desire to pass their remaining days under its sheltering roof. The Board of Directors consists of nine of Belfast's representative men and women. The officers are: Dr. Elmer Small, president; Hon. Robert F. Dunton, vice-president; Clement W. Wescott, Esq., treasurer, and Miss Susie Marie Partridge, clerk. The Association comprises 120 members.

THE GIRLS' HOME. OPENED 1895

THE ACADEMY. ERECTED 1846. LATER SOUTH PRIMARY SCHOOL

John George Brooks, of Belfast, with associates from different parts of the State, were incorporated as the Children's Aid Society of Maine, for charitable and benevolent purposes, with power to establish and maintain a home for friendless, destitute, and needy children, and for furnishing them with relief and assistance, together with suitable mental and moral training. Two years later, under the influence of Mrs. Burrington, the originator of the movement, and its active promoter until her death in 1900, the Legislature appropriated three thousand dollars for the purpose of establishing a home in Belfast, to be expended under the direction of the Governor and Council; the property purchased to be held in trust, and to revert to the State if otherwise used. This sum and other contributions enabled the purchase of the Mudgett farm on Northport Avenue, containing forty acres of land, with a large house and barn. The State holds a title to five acres on the front of the premises, including the buildings; the remainder is owned by the Society. Dedication ceremonies took place September 20, 1895, speeches being made by Hon. Isaac Henry Jackson, State Senator, and Hon. Seth Llewellyn Milliken. The Home was opened for receiving children, November 5, 1895. It has accommodations for twenty inmates. Of the large number of girls cared for during the existence of the school, nearly all have found permanent homes in excellent families. Private generosity, aided by annual State appropriations, has kept the Home free from debt. It is an honor to the city and to the excellent ladies who have been and now are its managers.¹

¹ In 1913, the Girls' Home still continues to carry on its good work. Dr. John George Brooks succeeded Mrs. Burrington as president, and at his death, in 1904, was in turn followed by Rev. Harry Lutz, Mrs. Annie Pitcher Griffin, and Rev. William Vaughan, the present incumbent, who is now serving in his seventh year. At the decease of Mrs. Albert Gammans, in 1902, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown Brackett was elected secretary, assuming at the same time the position of editor and manager of the Society's paper entitled "The Girls' Home." Mrs. Brackett continues in these positions and performs, in addition, the duties of Field Superintendent. Hon. Ami Cutter Sibley was the first treasurer, and at his death, in 1901, was succeeded by Clement Wescott Wescott, Esq., who has since held the position. During the year 1910, a large annex was built, giving fourteen additional, high-studded, airy rooms, with extra baths, a laundry, and dairy. The farm of forty acres was also put under more extensive cultivation at that time. Bequests have been received as follows: From Hon. George H. Ware, of Waterville, $5000; from Hon. D. D. Stewart, of St. Albans, $5000, to be known as the Levi M. Stewart Fund; and from Mr. and Mrs. Ira Maurice Cobe, of Chicago, an invested fund of $2500.

AMUSEMENTS

Spelling-Match — Centennial Fair — Dickens Party — Old Folks' Concert — Circuses — Theatres — Roller-Skating — Rinks — Barnum's Show — Trades Carnival — Living Whist — Baseball — Old Folks' Balls — Public Halls — Rila Kittredge, Champion Fine Handwriter.

BELOW will be found noted the chief amusements given in Belfast between 1875 and 1900.

1875, April 6. An old-fashioned spelling-match at Hayford Hall caused much amusement.

1875, June 30 — July 1. A Centennial Fair was given by the Ladies' Aid Society, at Hayford Hall, which was elaborately decorated. The most attractive corner was that devoted to the antiquities. Here were gathered the contributions of the ancients — the venerable articles of furniture, the clocks that had ticked away their hundred years, the chairs that had supported the forms long crumbled in the grave, the yellow old volumes that had been read by eyes from which the light had gone out scores and scores of years ago, the candlesticks that had lighted the way to dusty death, the punch-bowls that had been drained in old-time revelries. Charles Bellows Hazeltine contributed a powder-horn, and one of those fearfully long muskets with which his ancestor had hunted the Pequots two hundred years ago. Mrs. Wording had some embroidery done by her grandmother in 1764. Mrs. Daniel Lane exhibited a miniature on ivory of the father of Governor Gore of Massachusetts, encircled by a setting of gold beads, presented to the original of the picture by General Washington.

The prettiest feature of the occasion was the thirteen young ladies, dressed in costume to represent the thirteen original colonies, each bearing a name on her belt. They attended the tables in a very satisfactory manner. The list is as follows: Annie Abbot, New Hampshire; Belle Knowlton, Massachusetts; Ellen Pierce, Rhode Island; Mary Sleeper, Connecticut; Lulu Dickerson, New York; Pamela Wadlin, New Jersey; Mary Caldwell, Delaware; Annie White, Maryland; Addie Chase, Pennsylvania;

Sadie Harriman, Virginia; Minnie Hilton, North Carolina; Alice Wales, South Carolina; Mary Johnson, Georgia.

1875, October 17. Maggie Mitchell acted in "Fanchon."

1876, February 11. The ladies of the Unitarian Society gave a Dickens Party, at which over one hundred characters were represented in costume.

1876, July 6. Murray's circus exhibited.

1876, July 20. Miss Clara A. Nickels, of Searsport, assisted by Miss Annie Louise Cary, gave a concert.

1877, February 28. An Old Folks' Concert for the benefit of the poor was given. About one hundred vocalists and musicians participated, dressed in the costume of ancient days. Powdered wigs, knee-breeches and long waistcoats abounded, as did also, among ladies, the marvellous hair-dressing and wonderful garments of the days of yore. The programme was headed as follows:—

Y^E OLD FOLKS' CONCERTE

To be attended at Hayford Halle, w^h is sette downe on Church Streete, on y^e Peter Rowe lotte, near y^e Haye Scayles; Wednesd^y Eveg, Feby, y^e 28th, at Early Candle Light.

1877, July 20. J. P. Addams, an old-time actor, made his last appearance in Belfast.

1878, June 3-5. Charlotte Thompson appeared in the plays of "Jane Eyre," "Miss Mullen," and "East Lynne."

1878, June 14. Barnum's "Great Show" exhibited. So many people were never in Belfast at one time before.

1880, June 27. The Boston Museum Company, with William Warren and others, presented the comedy of the "Silver Spoon."

1881. The celebrated Madam Janauschek appeared one evening at Hayford Hall.

1882. Roller-skating was introduced, and two rinks, one at Hayford Hall, the other at Peirce's Hall, at whose sessions both sexes were represented, were established in November.

1883. Hayford Hall was named the Belfast Opera House. At a ball given by the Palestine Commandery, December 20, a covered bridge across Church Street connected it with Peirce's Hall.

1883. The Baseball Nine played nine games with different clubs and won six.

1884, March 5. A skating-rink, erected by Robert Hudson Coombs, between High and Union streets, east of the Frothingham lot, was opened. The building was one hundred by seventy feet, on the ground, and thirty four feet high, with a hip roof.

1884. On Christmas evening, the dedication of a rink in the hall of the new Coliseum Building took place. The skating floor was one hundred and thirty by sixty feet, encircled by a gallery of five hundred seats.

1884. The Baseball Club had a successful season this year. A wood-cut of its members appeared in the "New York Dramatic and Sporting Journal" of September 20.

1885, January 1. The "Progressive Age" mentions that two skating-rinks, three billiard saloons, and two theatre and dance halls were profitably running.

1885, February 24. A reception to Gov. Frederick Robie and a ball were given by the XII Club.

1885, March. Margaret Mather played with a company.

1885, April 12. A bowling-alley, having four alleys seventy feet long, was opened in the basement of the Coliseum.

1885, July 2. Barnum's "Greatest Show on Earth" pitched its tents upon the Monroe lot, near the Muck Pond, in the midst of a rainstorm. Over eight thousand persons were in the streets. On the grounds the mud was ankle-deep, and no evening performance took place.

1885. During the summer a portion of the Allyn Field was occupied by the Baseball Club. John L. Sullivan, the notorious prize-fighter, umpired a game on the 21st of August. (See p. 288.)

1888. In April, twenty young men owned bicycles, and formed a wheelmen's club.

1888. On the last night of the year, the Opera House was lighted for the first time by electricity.

1889, August 8. The Forepaugh Circus was visited by ten thousand people.

1890, May 30. The most notable social event of the year was the Trades Carnival held July 31, at Coombs's Skating-Rink, by the Universalist Church Society. Fifty-five young ladies in beautiful costumes, representing as many business firms, marched, and performed difficult evolutions. The evening ended with a dance.

1891. The sixth annual meet of the League of American Wheelmen was held here. A street parade, clambake, and ball took place.

1892, December 6. The first representation of Living Whist was given. It was in aid of the Military Band, which during the summer had furnished several evening concerts on the Common.

1892. In August, Captain Robert Coombs's Skating-Rink was sold to Frank Bowdoin Mathews.

1893, June 30. An evening with Sir Roger de Coverley, in which all the familiar characters appeared in costume, was given by the ladies of the Unitarian Society at Memorial Hall.

1893. Through the winter the Cinderella and Central Club Assemblies were well attended. Progressive whist parties were popular. In the summer months baseball continued to be played, and football was first introduced by the High School boys. The band gave several concerts, in one of which W. H. Whiddon, of Boston, took part. At a banquet tendered Colonel Gilman Pingree Lombard, in honor of his appointment on Governor Cleaves's staff, a sword appropriate to his rank was presented.

1894. The band gave the usual number of open-air concerts; there were several lawn parties; and the Gun Club had several shooting-matches. For the first time young ladies appeared in Belfast on bicycles.

1895. The band had several excursions during the year and gave the usual outdoor concerts. A promenade concert was given in the Belfast Opera House August 9, and a benefit supper and concert November 1.

1895. New ground on Congress Street for the Baseball Club was obtained, and although the City appropriated forty dollars to put it in order, but few games were played. There was an increased interest in bicycle riding. An organization called "The Belfast Whist Club" was originated. The annual tournament of the Gun Club took place in September, and a silver cup was won by William A. Decrow. Football was engaged in to a limited extent.

1896, May 21. The comedy "Me and Otis," written by Rev. Charles Henry Wells, of the Universalist Church, when in college, was successfully performed.

1897. In June, a field four hundred by three hundred and fifty feet, on Congress and James streets, for playing baseball, was graded, fenced, and furnished with a grand-stand sixty feet long. An association was formed to maintain a team in the Maine League.

1898. The social events of the year included the Washington Hose Company Ball, January 20; the Knights of Pythias Ball, February 21; the Old Folks' Dance, March 4; Bachelor Maids' tea, March 9; the Harvest Festival by the North Church, October 28; and the usual whist and cotillion parties.

1899, March 31. An Old Folks' Dance at the Opera House was largely attended. Ephraim A. Pitcher, aged nearly ninety-four, and Charles Read, aged ninety, participated. Professor Jeremiah C. Whitten furnished the music.

1899. The local Baseball Nine played twenty-four games, winning seventeen.

1900, March 22. A third Old Folks' Dance, under the management of Fred William Pote, was successful. Ninety-six couples were in the grand march, headed by Mr. and Mrs. David H. Libby. Charles Read, the oldest man in Belfast, attended. The ushers appeared in Continental costumes, with small-clothes and powdered wigs. As usual, the proceeds were given to deserving families.

BELFAST BASEBALL CLUB

Belfast had a baseball team during the season of 1900, and it proved a winner, starting with all local players except the pitcher, but several college men and other outsiders were taken on as the season progressed. It met some of the strongest teams in Maine and some from Massachusetts, and won a large majority of the games played.

The following facts relative to the club have been prepared for this volume by Mr. George I. Keating, the club's official scorer:

The original Belfast Baseball Club, of which Dilworth and Knowlton were the famous battery, was organized in 1883. The players in that year were: W. E. Dilworth, pitcher; H. E. Knowlton, catcher; J. A. McKeen, 1st base; A. Colburn, 2d base, and captain; F. E. Cottrell, 3d base; F. V. Cottrell, shortstop; A. W. Thompson, left field; E. L. Warren, centre field; F. R. Woodcock, William Ross, right field. The team played six games, winning four, and losing two. Two games were played with the Bangor Club, each team winning one.

In 1884, the team was made up as follows: W. E. Dilworth, pitcher; H. E. Knowlton, catcher; W. R. Howard, 1st base; A. Colburn, 2d base, and captain; F. E. Cottrell, 3d base; F. V. Cottrell, shortstop; A. W. Thompson, left field; J. A. McKeen, centre field; I. M. Cottrell, right field. Seventeen games were played, the Belfast team winning twelve and losing five. The two games played with the Bangor Club were both won by the Belfast Nine.

In 1885, the Club played sixteen games, winning ten and losing six. The members of the team were: W. E. Dilworth, pitcher; H. E. Knowlton, catcher; W. R. Howard, 1st base; H. M. Moulton, E. L. Warren, 2d base; F. E. Cottrell, 3d base; F. V. Cottrell, shortstop; A. W. Thompson, left field; A. Colburn, centre field and 2d base, and captain; I. M. Cottrell, right field. The Nine played eight games with the Bangor Club, winning five and losing three.

During these seasons, Melville T. Marshall was manager of the Club; George I. Keating, official scorer; and S. Aug. Parker, Thomas B. Dinsmore, F. R. Woodcock, and Charles S. Bickford, respectively acting as umpires.

In 1883 and 1884, the games were played at the Trotting Park. In the spring of 1885, however, money was raised by subscription, and the ground on Northport Avenue (the lots now occupied by the houses of Charles Bradbury and F. E. Smythe), three hundred by four hundred feet, was fenced in, and a grand-stand built. These grounds were opened June 24, 1885, with a game between the Resolutes, of Boston, and the Belfast Team, the game being won by the Belfast Nine, by the score of 13 to 9.

Dilworth and Knowlton undoubtedly formed the greatest battery ever developed in Maine. Dilworth had terrific speed and wonderful endurance. He always pitched bareheaded and in his stocking feet. In a seven-inning game, July 6, 1885, with the Bangor Nine, Dilworth struck out nineteen men out of twenty-one at the bat. It was no uncommon occurrence for him to strike out eighteen or twenty batters in a game. On August 11 and 13, 1885, he pitched for the Belfast Nine in games against the Portland, New England League Team, and was defeated — 6 to 3, and 4 to 3. On August 14, he pitched for the Newburyport Team against Portland, and defeated the Portland Nine 4 to 1. The last game pitched by Dilworth for the Belfast Club was on August 25, 1885, in a game with the Mutuals, of Boston, in which the latter did not make a run or a safe hit. Sixteen men were struck out, and but one man was left on base during the entire game. Dilworth joined the Newburyport Team, New England League, and played for several years professionally, in Newburyport and Brockton, Massachusetts; Binghampton, New York; and Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

Knowlton's catching was fully up to the pitching record made by Dilworth. At the time the pitcher's box was but forty-five feet from the plate, and for a long while Knowlton caught with bare hands, and never wore any but a small glove. He was not only a remarkable catcher, but by far the best batter on the team; he had no weak points either at the bat or behind it.

On August 21, 1885, John L. Sullivan, the champion prize-fighter, was umpire of a game between the Belfast and Bangor Clubs, played on the Northport Avenue grounds, at which the largest crowd that ever witnessed a game in Belfast was present.

It is scarcely necessary to add that, in spite of Bangor's well-earned reputation as "kickers," no appeal was taken from any of "John L.'s" decisions of "out," or "safe."

It is worthy of note and significant that every player, and the scorer, manager, and five umpires mentioned, covering the years 1883 to 1885, are now alive (January, 1913), thirty years after.

HALLS

Of the public halls Belfast possessed in 1875, four have ceased to exist, as follows; Angier's and Phoenix, both in Phoenix Row, which was burned in 1887; Peirce's, otherwise called Peirce's Parlor Theatre, destroyed by fire in 1899; and Washington, demolished in 1890, to make room for the Memorial Building.

The following is a list of the present halls (1900): —

City, or McClintock's, at the corner of Main and High streets. It was elaborately fitted up by the Odd Fellows, and used until the completion of their new building in 1889.

The Coliseum, located in the building by that name on Main Street.

Equity, on Belmont Avenue, one and a half miles out of the City.

Flanders, at the Head of the Tide.

Grand Army, or Memorial, in Memorial Building.

McCrillis's, on the East Side of the river. In Volume I it was erroneously called Stevens's Hall.

Masonic, in Masonic Temple. The old hall, in the High School building, has been used as a place of worship by the Roman Catholic Church, and by the Good Templars. It is now a recitation room.

Odd Fellows', in Odd Fellows' Block on Main Street. This is distinct from the smaller hall of the same name, and in the same building, used for balls and concerts.

Opera House, formerly Hayford Hall. Bray & Maxfield became its managers in 1899, and made many improvements. "The Stage," a little paper containing the different evening programmes, was published for a time.

Seaside Grange, on Field Street, between High Street and Waldo Avenue.

Union, in the second story of the school-house at the Head of the Tide.

Rila Kittredge, the champion fine handwriter of the world, and now eighty-seven years old, continues to amuse himself with miniature chirography, which has been his diversion for twenty years. He has repeatedly written the Lord's Prayer eight times in a space no larger than a silver half-dime, and crowded the messages of President Harrison, containing 10,200 words, besides Jefferson's Inaugural, the Declaration of Independence, and other matter, comprising 4700 additional words, upon a single postal card. Mr. Kittredge died 11 March, 1904, aged 92 years.

CHAPTER XLIII

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

Robert Green Ingersoll — James Gillespie Blaine — Henry Ward Beecher — Admiral Trenchard — General James Abram Garfield — The Dolphin — Squadron of Evolution, or the White Squadron — Maine Press Association — United States Ship Prairie — Ex-President Cleveland — Battleship Texas — Captain Charles D. Sigsbee.

ON August 6, 1876, Colonel Robert Green Ingersoll and James Gillespie Blaine addressed a political meeting in the Belfast Opera House.

Henry Ward Beecher was in Belfast on the 16th of January, 1878, and delivered a lecture at the Opera House.

Admiral Stephen D. Trenchard, of the United States Navy, who, in 1865, was stationed in Belfast Harbor as commander of the sloop of war Rhode Island, made a brief visit to Belfast in 1878, where he was pleasantly remembered by many citizens.

General James Abram Garfield, afterwards President of the United States, spoke at a Republican gathering in Belfast on September 6, 1878.

The United States Dispatch-Boat Dolphin, Commander George F. F. Wilde, came to Belfast August 11, 1887, and remained four days, being visited by a large number of people. She anchored between the steamboat wharf and the monument. During her stay a reception at Peirce's Parlor Theatre was given by the young men of the city to the officers. Her arrival was a noteworthy event, as no naval vessel had visited the harbor since the Civil War.

SQUADRON OF EVOLUTION, OR THE WHITE SQUADRON

During the summer of 1891, through the influence of Congressman Seth Llewellyn Milliken, the Squadron of Evolution of the United States Navy, famous as the White Squadron, was ordered to Belfast. A public meeting, held on August 30, made provision for a reception and other entertainments to be given to the officers. Two committees were chosen, one on subscriptions, consisting of Dr. Gilman Pingree Lombard, and Messrs. Frank

Cumulus clouds of dense black smoke, seen hanging over Cape Rosier, heralded the coming of the Squadron, and late on a perfect Sunday afternoon in midsummer, the white prows of the fleet, gleaming in the sunlight, were spied as they steamed, one by one, round Turtle Head from the Eastern Bay, having come up through Eggemoggin Reach from Bar Harbor.

Castine was left close aboard on the starboard hand. Since the siege of her historic fortress during the Revolution, so large a naval force had never passed the promontory of Dice's Head, or entered Belfast waters.

Though it was the Sabbath Day, the townspeople were soon thrown into a fever of excitement and expectancy. The residents gathered at the Foot of the Square to watch the fleet approach. In perfect formation it advanced across the beautiful bay. The slanting rays of the setting sun shone full upon the ships, and brought their white sides and yellow decks, masts and top-works into strong relief on the sparkling blue waters, with the green shores of Islesboro in the distant background. Dazzling flashes of light were projected to the town from the men-of-war, even when they were still six miles away, as a stray sunbeam would be occasionally reflected from a polished steel gun or other shining implement of war.

A. D. Groeschner immediately put his yacht, the Guinevere, the only available steamer in port, at the disposal of the Committee of Citizens. With William H. Bray hastily pressed into service as engineer, Alfred Johnson as pilot, and Lieutenant-Commander Leonard Chenery, U.S.N., retired, in charge, and the entire committee, who had quickly assembled, on board, the yacht steamed out of the harbor to meet the Squadron, and to extend the welcome of the City of Belfast to its Admiral and his officers. As soon as the fleet came to anchor, a call was made upon the flagship, the Chicago, and the arrangements for the entertainment of the Squadron were submitted to Admiral Walker. Later cards were left upon the respective captains and their officers.

The fleet anchored between the monument and the western shore of the harbor, and was visited daily by thousands of people, in small steamers and the ships' launches, which together proved insufficient to accommodate the crowds. On Monday forenoon a buckboard ride about the city, and to Northport Camp Ground was given to the officers, followed by a reception and lunch at the residence of Edward Johnson, Esq., Primrose Hill; and on Tuesday evening a reception and ball at the Crosby Inn, which was decorated within and without for the occasion. The vessels weighed anchor early Wednesday morning, their destination being Bath and Portland.

Among those who participated in the festivities were Senators Eugene Hale of Maine, Don Cameron, of Pennsylvania, and Francis B. Stockbridge, of Michigan, and Hon. Anson G. McCook, Secretary of the United States Senate, all of whom were guests on the ships; and Congressman Seth Llewellyn Milliken, of Belfast.

With the iron ships of this fleet, our modern Navy may be said to have begun. They marked the turning-point in the transition from the old order to the new—from the lofty frigate, with its sides of oak, to the latest powerful dreadnought of the present day.

The White Squadron visited the principal Atlantic ports, and the interest its new ships aroused did much toward bringing this important branch of our military service to the attention of the people. During the previous decade, the Navy had been allowed to decline, and had become almost a laughing-stock among foreign nations. From this position it rose rapidly, in strength and efficiency, to the high rank it now holds among the world powers.

The hospitality of our citizens was generously returned by the officers of the Squadron, and friendships were formed during this visit, which have lasted until the present day. As many of the men who were but comparatively junior officers at the time, have, during the twenty-two years which have since elapsed, become famous, and won an international reputation, the following brief remarks on their careers may not be out of place:—

Rear-Admiral John Grimes Walker had already made a splendid career for himself in the Civil War, and was soon retired.

Lieutenant Ben H. Buckingham developed into a very able and valuable officer, and was recognized by the authorities at Washington as an administrator of unusual ability. He was sent as Naval Attaché to Berlin, Paris, St. Petersburg, and London.

Lieutenant Sidney A. Stanton was Assistant Chief of Staff during the Spanish War, was an officer of marked ability, and is now retired as a Rear-Admiral.

Captain Joseph N. Miller later became Commandant of the Boston Navy Yard.

Lieutenant Raymond Perry Rodgers was executive officer of the Iowa during the Spanish War, was later sent as Naval Attaché to France and Russia, and at the time of his retirement in 1912 was President of the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island;—a scholarly man, the descendant of a long line of naval officers, whose splendid records he upheld with dignity.

Lieutenant John Hubbard became a Rear-Admiral on the Asiatic Station.

Lieutenant William H. Schuetze, now dead, had a remarkable career. He was in charge of the Greely Relief Expedition, was navigator of the Iowa during the Spanish War, and spent two years in Northern Siberia in charge of delivery of presents to rescuers of the Melville Party;—a very resourceful man, and one who, at the same time, won great popularity among his fellow officers and all with whom he came in contact.

Lieutenant Austin M. Knight is now (1912) the Admiral in charge of the Montana and the Tennessee in Turkey.

Ensign Philipp Andrews became the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

Medical Inspector J. Rufus Tryon was later Surgeon-General of the Navy.

Lieutenant John E. Pillsbury was in command of the Vesuvius off Santiago during the Spanish War. He is the author of the valuable work entitled "Gulf Stream Investigations and Results."

Lieutenant-Commander Henry S. Manney became Chief of the Bureau of Equipment. He took the Massachusetts, drawing twenty-eight feet of water, up Buttermilk Channel and through Hell Gate; likewise into Great Harbor, Culebra;—feats requiring not only unusual ability in coastwise navigation, but an iron nerve.

Ensign John B. Bernadou commanded the torpedo boat Winslow in action at Cardenas during the Spanish War. He has become a powder expert.

First Lieutenant Thomas N. Wood was in the New York off Santiago in the Spanish War.

Captain C. Wiltse is the officer who hoisted the American flag at Hawaii, an action, which though not approved by President Cleveland, required great courage.

Lieutenant-Commander William T. Swinburne commanded the Helena in the Spanish War and was later the Admiral of the Pacific Station.

Lieutenant Lucien Young is the man who carried the rope ashore when the Huron was wrecked off Nag's Head, North Carolina, — a deed which necessitated not only unusual personal courage, combined with a cool head and quick and efficient action, but great physical strength and powers of endurance as a swimmer. He commanded the Hist in the Spanish War.

Lieutenant Albert Gleaves commanded the torpedo boat Cushing in the Spanish War; was in charge of the Narragansett Bay Naval Station; and is now (1912) in command of the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Ensign Levi C. Bertollette, while in command of the Yorktown died in Guayaquil, Ecuador, of yellow fever.

Paymaster I. Goodwin Hobbs was in the Brooklyn in the Spanish War. Now retired, he resides in Newport, Rhode Island.

Commander Robley Dunglison Evans was at Valparaiso during the dispute with Chili in 1893. He commanded the Iowa in the Spanish War, and was in command of the fleet that circled the globe in 1907-08. He was later Commander-in-Chief. As "Fighting Bob" Evans he was for years a popular hero. He retired in 1908, and died January 3, 1912.

Lieutenant D. W. Veeder became superintendent of the Naval Observatory.

Lieutenant Bradley A. Fiske was navigator of the Petrel at Manila and is now (1912) a Rear Admiral, in charge of a division of the Atlantic fleet.

Lieutenant Albert G. Winterhalter was Division Commander of the Atlantic fleet. During the stay of the Squadron in Belfast, he was particularly kind in showing the younger visitors over the Yorktown, explaining to them in detail the working of the guns, and other modern naval machinery, then seen for the first time on our coast.

Chief Engineer Cipriano Andrade, whose kindness and courtesy during the visit of the White Squadron to Belfast is still fresh in the memory of several of their recipients, is dead.

Lieutenant Seaton Schroeder was Executive Officer of the Massachusetts off Santiago in the Spanish War, and later became Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic fleet.

Passed Assistant Paymaster Charles W. Littlefield, appointed to the service from Maine and a native of Waterville, attained high rank in his corps, and discharged acceptably the duties of many important positions of trust. He is now on the retired list.

Captain John Woodward Philip commanded the Texas during the Spanish War.

Lieutenant Cameron McR. Winslow, at the beginning of the Spanish War, was in charge of the cable-cutting at Cienfuegos, Cuba, one of the most notable examples of cool courage on the part of all concerned which has ever been recorded. He is now (1912) an admiral in charge of a division of the Atlantic fleet.

Lieutenant William L. Rodgers is at present (1912) President of the Naval War College, at Newport, Rhode Island, a position to which only scholarly men, well versed in naval tactics, and competent to direct the complicated movements of our modern fleets, are appointed.

Ensign Charles F. Hughes, a native of Bath, is at present Chief of Staff of the North Atlantic Fleet.

Lieutenant-Commander Charles S. Sperry has been President of the War College, and followed Admirals Evans and Thomas in command of the North Atlantic Fleet, that steamed around the world;—a very able man.

Ensign William Veazie Pratt, of Belfast, had left the White Squadron shortly before this visit, having been transferred from the Atlanta to the Petrel on the 18th of August, 1891. He was navigator of the battleship Kearsarge when she made her record run from Europe to Mount Desert in 1903; served efficiently in the Spanish War on the Mayflower off the coast of Cuba: and is at present (1912) attached to the staff of the Naval War College, at Newport, R. I. The run of the Kearsarge is officially described as follows: In July 1903, the battleship Kearsarge crossed the North Atlantic from the Nab lightship to Mount Desert Rock, off the coast of Maine, in nine days, four hours, fifteen minutes, she averaged 13.16 knots per hour, for the voyage, and the feat proved that vessels of her class can reach Europe from American ports, ready for action. She took a course longer than a great circle, in order to avoid ice.

Lieutenant-Commander Leonard Chenery, U.S.N., retired, a half-brother of Horace Chenery, Esq., was born in Northampton, Massachusetts, March 11, 1846, and died in New York, March 10, 1901. He went to California in 1853 with his parents, and was appointed acting midshipman by the Honorable T. G. Phelps. He entered the Naval Academy, then at Newport, Rhode Island, December 12, 1861, and graduated with high honors in the class of September, 1865. He was promoted to Ensign in 1866, Master in 1868, Lieutenant in 1869, Lieutenant-Commander in 1879, having had an almost continuous sea duty since graduation, and was obliged to retire on account of broken health in 1881. He was a frequent summer visitor at Belfast, and was here at the time of the call of the White Squadron. His knowledge of naval affairs, and familiarity with methods of procedure, were of much aid to the Citizens' Committee. After retirement, he resided in New York City until his death in 1901. He was an entertaining, well-informed man of the world, always ready to contribute to the amusement and instruction of the young people of the households on Primrose Hill, where he was a welcome daily caller during his annual sojourns in Belfast. He is pleasantly remembered by the members of this generation, who always looked forward every summer to his coming, and by one of whom, at least, his excellent precepts on the conduct of life are still borne in mind.

Lieutenant Cameron McR. Winslow, commanding.¹

The members of the Maine Press Association with invited guests, arrived in Belfast July 9, 1894, for their annual summer excursion. The party, numbering about forty, visited Northport, Castine, Camden, and the Bluff. During their stay a reception, with music, was given at the Crosby Inn.

During the summers of 1897 and 1898, the United States Ship Prairie, in training-school service, anchored in the bay off Belfast. Visitors were not allowed on board.

On the 11th of August, 1898, while on a cruise along the coast the steam yacht Oneida, having on board ex-president Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Carlisle, and ex-Postmaster-General Wilson, came into Belfast Harbor.

Two United States vessels visited Belfast, in August, 1899; the converted cruiser Prairie, on the 9th, and the battleship Texas, 2526 tons, from the 14th to the 18th. The Texas was in command of Captain Charles D. Sigsbee, who had charge of the Maine when she was blown up in the harbor of Havana. The usual courtesies passed between the city officials and the officers; and at Northport addresses were made at a public meeting by Captain Sigsbee, Senator William P. Frye, and others. The Texas was in Belfast the following summer, and her officers and crew participated in the celebration of Old Home Week.

¹ Some idea of the advance that has been made in naval science during the last twenty-two years may be gathered from the following comparison: The combined tonnage of the eight ships of the entire White Squadron — 19,171 tons — is less than that of one first-class battleship of the dreadnought type of the present year, 1913. Were one of these dreadnoughts, such as the New York, of 27,000 tons burden, to meet the entire White Squadron in battle, she could destroy one ship at each broadside; and as she is designed to discharge two broadsides a minute, it would require just four minutes to wipe the squadron of eight ships out of existence. This would, moreover, have been accomplished with ease at a distance of six miles, or before the ships of the White Squadron had come near enough even to have reached the New York with their guns. That another so great an advance will be made within the next quarter of a century is not probable. Naval experts predict that the point of attack will, in the not distant future, be the underwater body, or the submerged portion of ships, and will be made by means of torpedoes or mines, rather than through the guns of the present twelve- and fourteen-inch type.

CHAPTER XLIV

FATAL ACCIDENTS

Account of Accidents resulting fatally from 1875 to 1900.

AS in Volume I, only brief statements of the fatal accidents occurring within the limits of Belfast are given in this chapter.

1876, March 1. Mrs. Sarah M. Sides, a widow, aged 67, living at the Board Landing, died from her clothes taking fire. She was alone at the time of the accident.

1876, July 4. A 15-months-old son of Fred S. Crosby, who lived above Primrose Hill, was drowned by falling into a tub of water in the yard.

1877, May 11. Jesse H., aged 4, son of Andrew Dean, fell from the dam of the upper paper mill, and was drowned.

1877, July 30. Freddy, aged about 5, son of Captain Pearl W. Bagley, was found drowned under the steamboat wharf.

1877, October 20. While returning from partridge shooting, Fred, aged 17, son of Alfred K. Simpson, was fatally injured by the premature explosion of his gun.

1878, September 16. Thomas Carson, a blacksmith, aged 70, was killed by the forenoon down train, while walking upon the track, near the bridge. The coroner's verdict was that his own carelessness was the cause. This was the second fatal accident on the railroad.

1878, September 26. Charles Gilbert was killed by falling from aloft on the ship Lucy A. Nichols, in the South Atlantic Ocean. He was son of Fitz W. Gilbert.

1878, November 16. A $2\frac{1}{2}$ -year-old child of Roscoe G. Ellis died from falling into a pail of hot water.

1879, February 19. Charles Mace, a brakeman on the Maine Central Railroad, and son of John Atwell Mace, of Belfast, fell across the track at West Waterville, while uncoupling cars, receiving injuries which resulted in death.

1879, June 12. Albert T. Stevens was killed at Northport by the fall of a house which he was repairing.

1879, July 22. Henry E. Eaton, aged 51, was drowned by the capsizing of a sail-boat, while crossing the bay. A month later his body was found near Cape Rozier.

1879, August 14. Ulab Carter, aged 7, was drowned by falling into a reservoir in the old brickyard on the east side of the harbor.

1880, April 15. James M. Clary, who lived on the Poor's Mills road, died from the effects of falling across a bale of hay.

1880, May 20. While Captain Napoleon Bonaparte Warren was setting new masts in the schooner Henry, at Lane's Wharf, the masts, seventy feet long, gave way, dashing him from the foremast head to the deck, and causing instant death. He was forty years old, and left a family.

1882, June 13. Peter, 4 years old, son of Thomas Leary, of East Belfast, was drowned by falling into a cistern.

1882, November 23. Blanche E., the 4-year-old daughter of Captain George Pattershall, was drowned by falling from a wharf at the Upper Bridge.

1882, September 12. John Charles, aged 21 years, son of Calvin Hervey, was drowned by the upsetting of a canoe on Lake Quantabacook. His body was found a fortnight later. Memorial services were held September 16, in the Unitarian Church, the young man being one of the choir.

1882, December 30. Captain Charles Thomas Gilmore, master of the schooner Florida, was drowned on the passage from Boston. He fell from the stern, probably in an attack of heart failure, to which he had been subject. He was a son of James Gilmore, and was an excellent and genial citizen.

1883, April 10. Ford Gay, of the Head of the Tide, while running a circular saw in a stave-mill at Orland, was struck by a board and instantly killed. He was an energetic and well-known man. His age was 60 years.

1884, January 8. Charles Augustus Murch, while engaged in harvesting ice at the east side of the harbor, was struck on the head by a detached piece, causing concussion of the brain, which proved fatal the same evening. He was about 45 years of age, and a son of Lewis C. Murch. He had been Alderman from Ward 5, and was a prominent Odd Fellow.

1884, June 3. Eben I. Russell, of Belfast, railroad brakeman, was instantly killed by falling from the afternoon up train, above

Thorndike. He was a native of Farmington, and had been employed on the Belfast Branch for five years. His age was 42.

1885, January 6. Samuel E. Stimpson, aged 55, and a native of Deer Isle, and Charles S. Kelley, formerly of Stockton Springs, aged 51, were drowned in the river just below Citypoint, by breaking through ice while catching smelts.

1885, April 10. During the temporary absence of his mother, Willie F., 3-year-old son of Simon Jellison, who lived on Belmont Avenue, set fire to his clothing with matches, causing fatal injuries.

1885, July 11. Elmer Wesley Twombly, aged 25, and John Casey, aged 24, perished in the fire which consumed the stables of the Belfast Livery Company. (See chapter xxxv, on Fires).

1886, March 11. Samuel Redman, who lived in the suburbs, died from the effects of a fall which broke his thigh. He was born in Brooksville, and in early life was a sea captain sailing to the West Indies. He came to Belfast in 1880, to live with his sons Alvah and Samuel. His age was 92 years.

1886, May 27. A. C. Merrithew, son of Ezekiel Merrithew, of Belfast, was accidentally killed while employed as foreman in engineering work at Omaha, Nebraska.

1886, July 25. Franklin Prince Eames, of East Belfast, died from injuries received by the breaking of a whiffle-tree while unloading hay from a patent fork. During the war he was lieutenant of Company I, Fourth Maine Regiment. He had represented Ward 5 in the Common Council, and was Alderman in 1877-78. Dr. George Franklin Eames, of Boston, is his son. The age of Mr. Eames was 61 years.

1886, September 23. Absalom C. Sites, of Brooks, was killed by a train while crossing the track near Brooks Village.

1886, October. James P. W., aged 26, son of the late Patrick Casey, was drowned in New York Harbor. He was employed on a dredging machine.

1888, March 12. George W. West, mate of the schooner Henry S. Culver, is supposed to have been lost off Fire Island near New York during a blizzard.

1888, July 7. James T. Wargent, of Islesboro, aged about 37, was drowned off the Monument, by the capsizing of his boat. James Richards, who was with him, clung to the bottom of the boat and was rescued by William A. Lear and Frederick Mahoney, who saw the accident. Wargent could not swim.

1888, October 16. William G. Gray, flagman at the East Bridge railroad crossing was killed by being hurled against the noon incoming train while endeavoring to stop a frightened horse of Stephen E. Fletcher, of Stockton Springs. He was 23 years old, son of Walter Gray, and a young man of good character. He sacrificed his own life while attempting to save that of another.

1888, December 12. Thomas Hall, aged 4 years, adopted son of Thomas Haugh, was burned to death. While alone in the house, cutting paper, his clothing took fire.

1889, February 18. Albert T. Conforth, railroad brakeman, was struck on the head by the rebounding of a hook attached to a small plow, and died the next day. He was a son of Otis Conforth, of Unity, was about 26 years old, and unmarried.

1889, April 6. Captain George Bird, his wife and his children were lost on the barge Sunrise, which he commanded, in Delaware Bay. The barge, loaded with coal, had anchored for a harbor, and at midnight foundered during a heavy gale.

1889, June 10. Frank W. Patterson, mail agent on the railroad from Portland to Lewiston, had both legs broken by the train running into a washout near Oakland. Seven men were injured, one fatally. Mr. Patterson was brought to Belfast on a special train. He never regained the use of his limbs, and died from the effects of the accident January 5, 1895.

1889, August 4. Walter, 3 years old, son of Walter E. Sylvester, was found drowned near Hall & Cooper's wharf.

1889, November 26. Benson Walker, aged about 65, a shipcarpenter, was killed by falling from a staging in Carter & Co.'s shipyard.

1890, April 10. Frank Haugh, aged 38, fell from Lewis's Wharf and was drowned.

1891, March 25. Albert L., aged 28, son of the late James M. Clark, was instantly killed at Worcester, Massachusetts, while engaged in coupling cars.

1891, April 18. Joseph B. Varnum, age 65, fell into the hold of a new schooner in McDonald and Brown's yard, and died the following Wednesday.

1891, June 24. John Wesley Hinckley was drowned from the ship Iroquois, on the passage from New York to California.

1891, October 3. William J. Goyens, of Belfast, was accidentally killed in a mine at Hecla City, Montana.

1891, October 13. Romulus C. Philbrick, of Troy, aged 65, was struck by the outward afternoon freight train at the Roler-son Crossing, near Citypoint, and instantly killed.

1892, March 29. Mrs. Sarah N., aged 71, wife of Luther M. Smith, who resided on Belmont Avenue, died from falling into an open fire, probably during a paralytic shock, as she had been long an invalid. She was born in Vassalboro, her maiden name being Sarah N. Clark. Six children survived her.

1893, February 24. William L. Abbott received injuries from a fall, causing his death two days later.

1893, June 7. John W. Mitchell, aged 30, recently a school-teacher in Belfast, was drowned while bathing in the Kennebec River at Augusta.

1893, July 29. By the capsizing of a boat near Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Leonard R. Pendleton, aged 21, son of Emery O. Pendleton, of Belfast, was drowned.

1893, July 27. On Lake Erie, Captain Thomas Winslow Warren, of Belfast, aged 51, lost his life. He fell from a vessel.

1893, August 6. Mrs. Catherine Conley and her two daughters, Mamie aged 19, and Agnes aged 15, formerly of Belfast, were killed by the bursting of a reservoir in Portland.

1894, January 23. Caleb M. Nash, aged 59, and deaf, while walking on the railroad track near the Lower Bridge, was struck by a passing train and killed. A coroner's jury exonerated the company and its employees from blame. Mr. Nash came to Belfast from Rockland.

1894, May 10. Emery S. Young, aged 4 years, son of Charles Young, was drowned in the stream near Rankin's Mill, on the East Side of the river.

1895, April 9. Oscar Leroy Elmes, aged 14, son of James Henry Elmes, residing in the Pitcher District, while launching a plank into a swollen stream, was drawn violently under a bridge, and drowned.

1895, October 6. Josie Thomas, aged 14, while attempting to start a range fire with naphtha, received injuries which caused her death.

1895, October 22. George Holt, aged 76, missed his way in the evening, and while wandering near the Sibley Wharf, fell in and was drowned. He had always resided in Belfast.

1896, October 28. John P. Tower, a former Belfast resident, fell from an elevator in Boston, and was killed.

1897. But a single fatal accident occurred during the year. Walter M. Gray fell from a wharf July 23, and died from his injuries a few hours after. (Son of Walter R. Gray below.)

1898, January 4. William T. Creasey, of Morrill, was run over by a team, receiving injuries from which he died on February 9.

1898, June 9. Walter R. Gray disappeared. He was last seen sitting on the edge of a wharf, and is supposed to have fallen into the harbor. His body was afterwards found.

1898, June 16. John Smith was drowned in the harbor.

1898, June 28. Walter H. West collided with a team on North-port Avenue, receiving injuries which caused his death, August 31.

1899, November 18. Isaac D. Mixer, aged 52, was instantly killed by falling from his wagon while unloading hay at the storehouse of the Belfast Fuel and Hay Company, or died from heart failure. He was a native of Knox, and lived on the Ford Gay farm on the Head of the Tide road.

1900, August 30. Ezra J. Roberts, aged 72, and a native of Brooks, was instantly killed by a freight train, below the Rolerson Crossing. He was deaf, and had been warned about going on the track.

1900, September 15. Leonard E. Hanson, a German sailor, fell from aloft on the schooner Carrie E. Look, while coming down the river, and was killed. He was buried in Belfast.

CHAPTER XLV

SHIPWRECKS AND DISASTERS AT SEA

Bark Suliote — Ship Paul Richard Hazeltine — Vase presented by the British Government to Captain Rufus B. Condon — Medal bestowed on Captain George Dickey Mahoney — Loss of Schooners James Holmes and Foaming Billow — Steamer Portland wrecked — Other Losses.

IN this chapter will be found brief statements of the wrecking or other destruction of vessels belonging in Belfast or built there, and also of vessels wrecked or destroyed off the coast near Belfast.

1875, March 10. The brig R. S. Hassell, Captain John A. Partridge, 245 tons, built and owned in Belfast, uninsured, homeward bound, with molasses to Reuben Sibley; wrecked on Colorado Reef. The cargo was insured.

1875, June 21. The recollection of the Bark Suliote, which sailed from here to California in January, 1849, was revived by the arrival of a schooner having a portion of her sails and rigging. The Suliote changed from a bark to a schooner, was condemned, and left at Porto Rico in February, 1874.

1876, June 10. The ship McNear, built in Belfast in 1872, on the passage from Shields for Bombay, struck on the English coast, and was abandoned. She afterwards was saved by the crew of a lifeboat.

1876, August 25. The new ship Paul Richard Hazeltine, for Liverpool, struck on Cape Sable, during a fog. After throwing over the deck-load of deals, she floated, and resumed her voyage.

1876, December 12. The schooner General Meade, Captain Peachey, for Boston, was lost on Green Island, near Portland. Her owners were Daniel Lane, S. Otis & Co., and others.

1877, June 4. The schooner Boaz, valued at $5000, owned by S. A. Howes & Co., collided during a fog, near Boston, with the schooner F. E. McDonald, of Belfast, and was lost. There was no insurance.

1877, December. The schooner Eveline, from Belfast to Jacksonville, became waterlogged in a gale off Cape Hatteras, and was abandoned. All on board were rescued, and carried to Baltimore.

OLD PINKY MAINE. BUILT 1845

FOUR-MASTED BARKENTINE DORIS. BUILT 1894

1878, January 7. The bark Sarah, 536 tons, from Philadelphia to Marseilles with oil, sprung a leak, and her abandonment became necessary. The crew was taken off by a Boston brig, and landed in Nova Scotia.

1878, January 14. The schooner Mite, from Cambridgeport, was lost on Grove Point. All on board were saved.

1878, February 18. The ship Paul Richard Hazeltine, 1836 tons, built in Belfast in 1876 by Carter & Co., and worth $100,000, with a cargo valued at $475,000, struck a sunken rock off Wallaston Island, near Cape Horn, on the voyage from New York to San Francisco, and immediately sank. The ship's company were carried to Valparaiso by passing vessels. She was commanded by Captain Edwin Horace Herriman, who was accompanied by his wife. His son was second mate. Wellington M. White, son of the late George F. White, was also on board. The fate of the latter, whose boat had parted company with the others, was for some time in suspense. The ship was owned as follows: Captain Herriman, one quarter, with a small insurance; Albert Gallatin Jewett, one eighth, no insurance; Austin Carter, one sixteenth, partial insurance; Thomas Carter, one sixteenth, no insurance; Everett S. Carter, one sixteenth, no insurance; Mrs. Columbia Perkins Carter, one sixteenth, small insurance. The remaining owners were: James Patterson White, estate of Paul Richard Hazeltine, Benjamin Prescott Hazeltine, Abner G. Gilmore, George E. Wight, Albion H. Bradbury, and Nesmith & Son, of New York, all of whom had little or no insurance. Captain Herriman, with a wrecking company, afterwards attempted to raise her, but without success. Anxiety from the loss and the subsequent expedition resulted in his mental aberration, from which he never recovered. Wellington Mayo White later entered the employ of the Peninsula & Occidental Steamship Company, and has had charge of their steamships for years. As captain of the Miami he has made the winter run between Miami, Florida, and Nassau, Bahama Islands, thrice weekly for the past ten or twelve years, and has had charge of the dredging and staking of the ship channel at Miami for the company. (1913.)

1878, March. The brig John Peirce, built above the Lower Bridge in 1853, and afterwards converted into a whaling vessel, was sold in New Bedford. She was originally a schooner. The "Republican Journal" of December 9, 1853, in commenting upon her launching said, "She was constructed under the superintendence of Marlboro Packard Woodcock, a young and promising mechanic."

1878, April 25. The schooner Cameo, built in 1848, Captain W. R. Stover, from Boston, with goods to merchants in Belfast, was wrecked off Metinic Island, and went to pieces. A portion of her cargo was insured.

1878, October 23. The ship A. S. Davis, Captain Ira M. Ford, owned in Belfast and in Searsport, ran ashore near Cape Henry, and all on board, twenty in number, with a single exception, perished. The vessel was of 1399 tons, and was built in Belfast by Carter & Co., in 1875.

1878, December 22. The schooner J. G. Drew, 188 tons, built in Belfast in 1871, was sunk near Boston, being bound to that port from Philadelphia with coal. She was worth $8000, and not insured.

1879, January. The brig Don Quixote, from New York for Limerick, was wrecked near the island of Arran. She registered 426 tons and was built in Belfast in 1866.

1879, February 7. The schooner Martha Sargent, from Belfast for Baltimore, with potatoes, was cut through by ice, below the latter port, and sunk.

1879, May 15. The schooner Almon Bird, of about 400 tons, three-masted, built in Belfast by Carter & Co., in 1872, was lost on Cross Island, near Machias.

1879, August. The schooner Helen M. Condon, 212 tons, built in Belfast in 1867, and uninsured, foundered on a voyage from Philadelphia to Gloucester with all on board. Captain Fred A. Dickey, Jr., of Northport, aged 25, and an enterprising man, commanded her.

1879, September 10. The bark Emma L. Partridge, 469 tons, was abandoned at sea on a voyage from Liverpool to Matanzas, having struck a reef near Turk's Island. She was the last vessel built in Belfast by Captain Henry McGilvery, being completed in 1876. (The records at the Custom-House state that she was built by Henry S. Staples.)

1880. In February, the brig Josie C. Hazeltine, 523 tons, Captain Aaron W. Nickerson, sailed from Troon, Scotland, for Cuba, and was never again heard from. The wife and family of the master were on board. The vessel was built in 1872 for Captain John Hassell.

1880, April 5. The schooner Ralph Howes, Captain C. B. Getchell, on the passage from Wilmington to Boston, went ashore near Montauk Point, and became a total loss. She was of about 150 tons burden, built in Belfast in 1873, owned by S. A. Howes & Co., and others, and was uninsured.

1880. In March, a silver vase was transmitted by the British Minister to Captain Rufus B. Condon. It bore the following inscription: "Presented by the British Government to Captain Rufus B. Condon, of the American Schooner Fred A. Carle, of Belfast, Maine, in acknowledgment of his humanity and kindness to the shipwrecked crew of the bark Martha, of Shoreham, abandoned at sea on the 17th October, 1877."

1881, January. The ship Charlotte W. White, Captain William P. Dyer, was given up as lost. She sailed from St. John, New Brunswick, for Liverpool, November 19, 1880, and probably foundered. She was twenty-two years old, and partially insured.

1881, April 16. The schooner James Bliss, from Belfast for Jacksonville, Florida, was abandoned waterlogged.

1881, September 9. The ship Louis Walsh, 1080 tons, built in Belfast by White & Conner in 1861, and commanded by Captain Augustus S. White, arrived from Liverpool, being the first ship which had entered the harbor for nine years. She remained until the following year, being then sold to New York parties.

1881, September 9. The schooner M. W. Drew, Captain George Dickey Mahoney, from Jacksonville, Florida, for New London, Connecticut, was swept by a gale off North Carolina, became waterlogged, and was abandoned. The crew was taken off by the steamer Seminole. She was of 165 tons, built in Belfast by Carter & Co., in 1870, and was uninsured.

1881, September 20. The ship R. B. Fuller, 1360 tons, from Cardiff for Valparaiso, with coal, was burned at sea. All hands were saved. She was built in Belfast by Carter & Co., in 1874.

1881, September 28. The ship Alice Buck, 1425 tons, built in Belfast in 1870, went ashore near San Francisco, on a voyage from New York to Oregon, and became a total loss. Eleven of the crew, including two mates, perished. She was insured on her outfit.

1881, October 6. The schooner Malabar, Captain Ed. Curtis, from Hoboken, New Jersey, for Belfast, with coal, was totally wrecked at Nantucket. She was 126 tons, and built in Belfast in 1845 by Carter & Co., for Captain James Gilchrist. She was uninsured. The cargo was covered.

1881, October 20. The barkentine, David Babcock, 487 tons, built in Belfast by Henry McGilvery in 1874, was lost off the coast of Brazil, on a voyage from New York for Rio Janeiro.

1881, November 23. The schooner James W. Brown, 161 tons, was totally lost near Cape Henry, Virginia. The crew were taken off in lifeboats. Captain Alvin F. Elwell, of Northport, commanded her.

1882, February 1. The schooner Stephen E. Woodbury, Captain Oscar Luville Limeburner, was run down and sunk by the schooner Enoch Robinson, near Cape Cod. She was 117 tons, and built in Searsport, in 1876.

1882, June 24. The schooner S. D. Hart was lost on Chatham Beach.

1883. The bark Shirley left port in the early spring and was never heard from.

1883, August. The bark Palo Alto was wrecked at Porto Bello. She was 460 tons, and built in Belfast in 1864.

1883, September 15. The schooner Lois V. Chaples was towed into Charleston, South Carolina, having been dismasted in a gale, and was sold to wreckers.

1884, January 5. The ship Inspector, 1222 tons, built in 1860, by Carter & Co., of Belfast, went ashore on the western South American coast and was lost.

1884, January 13. The ship Cora, Captain Joseph Thombs, was thrown on her beam ends off Cape Horn, and subsequently reached Montevideo in distress. She was ordered home for repairs, and arrived in Belfast in October.

1884, April. The brig A. G. Jewett, Captain Reed, of Orrington, foundered at sea.

1884, December 18. The schooner A. O. Gross, formerly the Olive, rebuilt by David Whitten Dyer, in 1880, and partially owned in Belfast, was abandoned at sea.

1885, September. The schooner F. E. McDonald, 253 tons, built in 1873, was wrecked near Turk's Island.

1885, November. The schooner Waldemar, of Bangor, was sunk in Belfast Harbor.

1885, December 7. The schooner F. A. Carle, Captain Rufus B. Condon, from South America for New York, went ashore on the Rhode Island coast, and was totally lost. The mate and one sailor were drowned. Her tonnage was 439, and her value $12,000. She was uninsured.

1885, December 10. The schooner T. H. Livingston, 235 tons, Captain Frank G. Swett, went ashore on Metinic Island, and became a total loss. She was built in 1874.

1886, March 14. Captain George Dickey Mahoney, of the schooner Fannie A. Gorham, rendered valuable aid in rescuing passengers from the Oregon, a Cunard steamer of 7000 tons, which was wrecked by collision with a vessel near New York. In September, Captain Mahoney received from the British Government a gold medal as a testimonial. It is of solid gold, the size of a twenty-dollar piece. On one side is a vignette of Queen Victoria, with the following motto: "Victoria D: G: Britanarium Regina F: D:" On the reverse is a wreath and crown with the words: "Presented by the British Government for Saving the Lives of British Subjects." On the edge of the medal appears the captain's name and the date of the rescue, March 14, 1886.

1886, April. The brig J. H. Lane, Captain Alonzo Shute, owned in Belfast and in Searsport, went ashore in Florida, and was a total loss. The steward was drowned.

1887, July 24. The schooner William G. Eadie, 46 tons, went ashore at Mount Desert, and was lost.

1887, July 27. The schooner Abraham Richardson, Captain George Pattershall, with paving-stones from Citypoint, went ashore opposite the Robbins Settlement, and was seriously injured.

1887, August 18. The schooner Nathan Clifford, 133 tons, from Boston for Belfast, struck a ledge near Boothbay, and was lost.

1887, September 5. The schooner Earl, Captain Closson, from Belfast for Boston, with paving-blocks, sprung a leak off Cape Elizabeth, and was totally lost.

1887, October 31. The schooner Mary, 159 tons, built in 1868, was run down near Boston by the schooner James Costa. She was abandoned by her owners, but was afterwards raised.

1887, November 11. The schooner Helen Mar, Captain Fred Pattershall, collided with Pollock Rip lightship, was dismasted and lost.

1889. The schooner Juliette, Captain Eben Holmes, for Beverly, sank off Cape Ann. One of the crew, Albert Cunningham, of Belfast, was drowned.

1889, April 9. The schooner Palatka, Captain Henry J. Chaples, from Georgia for New York, encountered a hurricane, was dismasted and abandoned. She was built by Carter & Co., of Belfast, in 1883, and had a partial insurance.

1889, October 24. The schooner Welaka, 410 tons, built by Carter & Co., of Belfast, in 1873, bound from Darien, Georgia, with lumber, became waterlogged, and was abandoned, her crew being rescued by an English steamer.

1890, February 5. The schooner Prescott Hazeltine was burned in Portland Harbor. Buildings on the wharf where she was loading took fire, the flames were communicated to the vessel, and she was entirely destroyed. She was 385 tons, and was built in 1871.

1890, March 4. The schooner St. Johns, Captain Fred Augustus Gilmore, from Jacksonville, Florida for New York, went ashore near Cape Hatteras, and was a total loss. The crew were taken off by life-saving men, except Henry Saunders, who was washed overboard and drowned. She was a three-masted vessel of 406 tons, built in Belfast, in 1882, by Carter & Co.

1890, December 12. The schooner Stella M. Kenyon, built in Belfast by McDonald & Brown, in 1880, sank on a bar near New York, and was a total loss.

1890, December 16. The schooner Yale, built in 1884, dragged ashore at Sandy Hook in a blizzard, but was afterwards saved.

1890, December 26. The schooner A. H. Hurlburt, of Gloucester, from Belfast with ice, went ashore at Narragansett Pier, and became a total loss.

The "Republican Journal" of March 10, 1890, stated that fifty Belfast vessels had been lost or sold since 1870, namely: Wrecked, twenty schooners, one ship, one barkentine, and one brig; sold, fifteen schooners, five ships, three barks, one brig, one steamer; and two vessels have been condemned.

1891, July. The new barkentine Steadfast, of Baltimore, built by George Washington Cottrell, and which left in January, was totally lost on the island of St. Croix during her first homeward voyage from Brazil.

1891, August 18. The brig Ned White, Captain Alvin Elwell, 550 tons, built in 1874, was driven ashore at Martinique, during a hurricane. The captain and the crew had a narrow escape. She was the last of the former large fleet of square-rigged vessels from Belfast.

1891, October 26. The schooner Annie L. McKeen, owned by Addison parties, but hailing from Belfast, was wrecked on the coast of Nova Scotia. She was built by Carter & Co., of Belfast, in 1872, and measured 244 tons.

1892, July 2. The schooner Tiara, 26 tons, built in Essex, Massachusetts in 1839, and owned by Captain Nathaniel S. Pendleton, was totally destroyed by fire at North Castine.

1892, October. Captain Fred A. White was awarded a certificate by the Massachusetts Humane Society for rescuing and kindly caring for three men taken from a capsized yacht off Cape Cod, June 22.

1893, August 28. The schooner Myer & Muller went ashore on the coast of North Carolina, and was lost. She was built in Belfast, in 1883, by Carter & Co.

1894, September 30. The ship Ivanhoe, 1563 tons, built for Captain Edwin Horace Herriman, 1865, and later sold at San Francisco, foundered at sea, between Seattle and San Francisco.

1894, October 10. The schooner Clara E. Colcord, from Philadelphia for Bangor with coal, struck on Cornfield Shoal, filled and went down. All on board were saved. She was built by Jacob Young Cottrell, of Belfast, in 1883, and measured 515 tons.

1894, November 11. The schooner Edward Johnson, built in 1874, registering 380 tons, owned in Boston, and partially insured, was burned at Bahia with her cargo of case oil.

In 1894, two old coasters were dismasted, and laid to rest in the upper harbor, Belfast: the schooner Moses Eddy, whose age was sixty years, and the schooner New Era, built in 1853.

1895. The schooner William Frederick, 430 tons, Captain H. G. Jordan, was abandoned at sea on the voyage from Georgia to Belfast, with lumber. The crew were saved with difficulty in a lifeboat.

1895, October 4. The schooner Nellie S. Pickering, Captain Nelson Kimball, from Belfast for New York, with paving-stones, went ashore near Martha's Vineyard, and sank. She was built in 1880, by Carter & Co., of Belfast.

1896, February 9. The schooner Florida, 286 tons, built in 1872, but owned abroad, went ashore on Salisbury Beach, Massachusetts, and was lost with all hands.

1897, April 9. The bark Nellie Smith, of which Captain Jerry Oliver Hayes, of Belfast, was master, was lost in a collision while temporarily in charge of the mate for a voyage. The three officers and two of the seamen were drowned.

1898, February 1. A severe snowstorm which swept the coast proved more disastrous to the lives of Belfast citizens than any calamity since 1860, when the fishing schooner Foaming Billow, with her crew of fourteen men, nine of whom belonged in Belfast, was wrecked. The above storm caused the loss of the schooners James Holmes and Marcellus, in Gloucester Harbor, with all on board. Both vessels sailed from Boston, and the former had a cargo of merchandise for Belfast parties. They dragged their anchors, drifted together, became entangled, and were driven ashore. All on board perished. Captain Franklin George Ryan, Fred I. Gordon, James E. Patterson, John Jackson, and Alfred Staples, on the Holmes, and George W. Richards and George E. Bean (the latter a passenger), on the Marcellus, were from Belfast. The bodies of Patterson and Richards were not found. The latter vessel hailed from Searsport, where Captain A. A. Larabee, her master, and three of the crew belonged. The Holmes was built by Horace S. Perkins, at the mouth of Goose River, in 1874, and measured 133 tons. For fourteen years she ran as a packet to Boston, under the command of Captain George F. Ryan, whose son was only temporarily in charge at the time of her loss. The barkentine R. A. C. Smith, from Mauritius for New York, was wrecked near Port Elizabeth. The master, Horatio B. Hooper, and the second mate were lost. The Smith was built in Belfast in 1889, by George Gilchrist, and afterwards sold to parties abroad.

vincetown, Massachusetts, Captain Nelson Kimball, a native of Belfast, lost his life.

1898, November 26, 27. On her passage from Boston, in a gale, the steamer Portland, of the Portland line, was lost, and all on board perished. Portions of the vessel and many bodies came ashore on the back, or eastern side, of Cape Cod. The steamer was commanded by Captain Hollis H. Blanchard, of Woodfords, formerly of Belfast, and Frank A. Patterson, of Portland, formerly of Belfast, was quartermaster. The steamer Pentagoet, of the New York and Bangor line, is supposed to have foundered in the same gale and all on board lost.

1899, October 30. The schooner Yale was wrecked by a gale and collision while on a passage from Savannah, Georgia, to Washington. Captain Coombs and the crew were saved by the schooner José Olaverri. The Yale was of 621 tons and built in Belfast in 1884.

1899, August 20. The barkentine Priscilla, 611 tons, built in Belfast in 1886, and owned in Baltimore, was totally lost off Cape Hatteras. The captain and ten men were saved, but his wife, two sons, and one passenger perished.

1900. The schooner Fannie & Edith, which had been sold abroad, was wrecked near Portland.

1900, October. The schooner Eliza J. Pendleton, built in Belfast in 1891, went ashore in Nova Scotia, but was subsequently floated, and brought to Belfast for repairs.

1900, October 1. The sloop yacht Marjorie, formerly owned by Charles Albert Pilsbury, was wrecked on Brimstone Island.

1900, November 8. During a gale the schooner E. S. Wilson capsized in the harbor, but was righted and repaired.

CHAPTER XLVI

WILD BEASTS, BIRDS, AND FISHES

Deer — Large Moose Antlers — Belgian Hares — Doves or Pigeons — Quail — Sparrows — Mackerel or Tinkers — Menhaden — Whales — Horse Mackerel — Bluefish — Squid — Hake — Lobsters — Seal.

WILD BEASTS

AS deer in the vicinity of Belfast were becoming scarce, the Legislature of 1895 passed an act prohibiting them from being hunted or killed within Waldo County, for a period of six years. In 1899, another act rendered their destruction or capture unlawful for four years, except during October, restricting, however, the number to two, which one person could shoot or possess. This protection resulted in their becoming plentiful and drivers along our country roads not infrequently catch glimpses of one or more, at all seasons of the year (1913).

In December, 1898, two small deer ventured into the city, and were seen on Washington Street; pursued by boys, one made its way into the harbor, but was captured from a boat, was kept as a pet until the next spring, and then liberated. The other, after jumping through the glass of a store on Main Street, escaped and swam across the harbor.

The following spring nine deer were seen on the Searsport shore road, and the following month, two droves, one of four and the other of five animals, frequently appeared near East Northport.

In March, 1900, a large doe passed unmolested, and apparently without fright, along several business streets, finally plunging into the river and swimming across.

The "Maine Sportsman's Journal" for January, 1896, gave an engraving and description of a set of moose antlers owned by Charles Bellows Hazeltine, which were the best exhibited at the New York Sportsman's Exposition in 1895, in competition with the largest of the United States and Canada. The official measurements were as follows, made by the Roosevelt Committee: Girth, $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches; length, 41 inches; palmation, $8\frac{1}{2}$ and $21\frac{3}{4}$ inches; 27 points. They spread sixty inches straight front, and seventy-three inches back surface measured at the same point. The animal bearing these horns was shot several years ago near Chesuncook Lake. They are thought to be the largest perfect set in the world.

In October, 1897, a moose was seen by Martin S. Gray, near Belmont Avenue, Belfast.

BIRDS

Domestic doves or pigeons are common in Belfast streets, and are protected by law. They frequent old buildings, and the church belfries are to some extent incubators for them. They have learned to steal grain from wagons. They generally are satisfied with gleanings what no one wants, minding their own sedate and gentle business, never quarreling, never dinning the ears with raucous outcries; on rosy feet they mince along, while their delicate, rainbow-glowing necks slip back and forth with the coquettish rhythm of their stepping. During the winter months, they are sometimes unable to obtain enough to eat and depend upon charity. In 1892, Mr. Moses Walter Rich cared for several hundred.

In 1896, a mourning dove was shot by Albert Cargill Burgess, near the Berry place. The bird is rare so far north, and is believed to be the only specimen ever seen in the vicinity of Belfast.

A large number of quail from Europe were liberated in the Penobscot Valley in 1881, and the next spring two pairs were seen near the Head of the Tide.

During 1881, small sparrows appeared, which proved to be of the genuine English kind, imported a few years ago to destroy the canker-worm. They have since rapidly increased.

Mr. Ora W. Knight's "Birds of Maine," published in 1908 by C. H. Glass & Co., of Bangor, will be found useful by those who desire to inform themselves on the birds of this region.

FISH AND OTHER MARINE LIFE

The visits of mackerel or tinkers to Belfast Harbor have lately been few and far between. During September, 1884, a school of large offshore No. 1 mackerel, some weighing over two pounds, appeared and remained several days.

In July, 1892, the bay was alive with mackerel, which were slow to bite, and only caught in nets. They were succeeded by horse mackerel, bluefish, and small sardine herring in abundance. Mackerel were again numerous in the summer of 1898 and 1900, when they were caught from the wharves and from the Lower Bridge, as well as from boats.

In 1876, about a dozen porgy steamers were in the bay for a week, and each often secured a thousand barrels.

In 1888, for the first time within ten years, menhaden or porgies frequented the bay. Their absence was attributed to the steam seiners. Three years after, they again struck in, and single boats took over five hundred off Goose River. A few appeared during the summer of 1894.

1876. During the last week in July, a sperm whale explored Belfast Bay, and "blew" several times near the Camp-Ground.

In June, 1892, a large whale was seen just outside the Monument. One, twenty-five feet long, became entangled in a weir at Lincolnville during the spring of 1898, and was killed. It drifted about the harbor several days, and landed on the shore, at the foot of Mayo Street. The city authorities were obliged to remove it.

In July, 1881, the bay was full of bluefish.

A black bass was caught below the Upper Bridge, in 1883. It is supposed to have escaped from Swan Lake.

In 1884, a squid was found on the shore of the harbor. This fish rarely visits the Penobscot waters, but is plentiful off the Grand Banks and is jigged in the vicinity of Matinicus and Criehaven where it is prized as bait for catching cod, haddock, hake, and other bottom fish.

1886. In June, during a low course of tides, large quantities of small silver hake were left on the flats above the Lower Bridge. In September, a shark was killed near the western shore below Condon Street.

1887. A petition to the Legislature by Charles A. Burd, for the exclusive privilege of cultivating oysters in Belfast Bay, was refused. Subsequently fifty bushels were planted by Captain Grindle, but the experiment failed.

In May, 1891, John C. Condon caught, near Moose Point, a lobster thirty-seven inches long, and weighing twenty-three pounds. The specimen was larger than any recorded in the Smithsonian Institution, whither it was shipped for examination and preservation. In this year, a fish taken in the harbor which somewhat resembled a smelt, was pronounced to be one of rare species called Argentine.

In 1893, a seal, weighing one hundred pounds, was caught on the East Side of the river.

The work of the Waldo County Fish Protective Association, a corporation organized here in 1899, has been carried on with excellent results. Under its direction, Swan Lake, Little River, and other waters have been stocked with bass and other fish.

1900. Tinkers visited the harbor late in September, and the next month some were caught at Citypoint. It is seldom that they go so far up the Passagassawakeag River. A lump fish, measuring six inches, and a racer codfish, three and a half feet long, were taken at the Lower Bridge.

Lobsters have been so extensively secured for canning purposes, of late years, that they are scarce and bring high prices. In 1883, it was estimated that seventy-five thousand were taken in the bay, and were sold at about four cents each. So far had the price risen that during the winter of 1900 they frequently brought twenty-five cents apiece.

CHAPTER XLVII

METEOROLOGICAL AND PHENOMENAL

Gales — Storm Signals — Ice Storm — Extreme of Heat and Cold — Tidal Wave — Record of Lucius Holcombe Murch — Ice — Bay obstructed for Three Months — Freshets — Bridges carried Away — Lightning — Earthquakes.

BELOW will be found an account in brief of extraordinary weather conditions and the results in the vicinity of Belfast from 1875 to 1900.

GALES

1876, March 21. The equinoctial gale, commencing with snow and turning to rain, was very severe. Several casualties to the shipping in the harbor occurred.

1878, January 17. A sudden violent gale and storm did considerable damage. The schooner P. M. Bonney filled and sank, and other vessels were injured. Several buildings were unroofed, and a stock-house belonging to the paper mills on the East Side of the river blew down.

1878, in August, the Signal Service Bureau commenced displaying cautionary storm signals by red and white flags and lanterns from a flagstaff on Thombs' and Osborne's sail-loft, under the charge of Captain Charles H. Wording, of the Custom-House. The indications were telegraphed from Portland.

1878, December 10. Vessels, wharves, and buildings were seriously damaged by a heavy gale accompanied by rain. The water rose three feet in fifteen minutes, and near the shore, seaweed was blown across the telegraph wires. The schooner D. K. Arey dragged against the Lower Bridge and sank. A washout in Waldo rendered the railroad track unsafe, and for two days the mails came by stage from Bangor to Belfast. The loss in Belfast by the storm was estimated at $6000.

1879, January 1. No snow to date.

1880. A mild winter deprived other States of an ice crop, and proved fortunate for Maine. At Unity Pond (Lake Windermere), twenty-five thousand tons of ice were harvested, and brought to Belfast by rail.

1881, October 5. Snow whitened the ground, and ice formed.

1882. The year opened with no snow on the ground, little frost, mild temperature, and green vegetation. The first sleighing was on January 8. Daily morning weather reports were posted by the Mutual Union Telegraph Company.

1884. A cold wave occurred in June, and on the 14th the ground was slightly frozen. Many plants were destroyed.

1885. There was good sleighing to nearly the close of March, and on the 26th the mercury fell to eight degrees below zero. A month later the streets were dusty. On the 3d of May a snow-storm put sleighs again in requisition.

1886. During the last week of January occurred a remarkable ice-storm, the like of which had never been seen by the oldest inhabitant. It commenced with a drizzling rain which froze as it fell. Trees were loaded down with ice, which enveloped the smallest twigs to the thickness of a man's wrist. Some branches bore twenty-five times their weight, and, as they yielded to the pressure, their snapping and crackling were heard in every direction. In some instances whole shade trees succumbed to the great mass and fell to the ground. Hardly one of the beautiful elms that arch across our city streets escaped injury. When the storm ceased and the sky cleared, the ice-coated pendants glistened like thousands of glass prisms. On Primrose Hill, a tree was bent down until the top rested upon the snow, forming an arch that completely enveloped the lamp-post. When the gas was lighted, the ice-coated, delicately wrought structure sparkled and glistened defying description. For several days telegraphic communication with the outside world was suspended and all trains were delayed.

1889. "The average temperature for January," said the "Republican Journal," "was 28.15°, making it the warmest January in the past thirty years. February averaged 21.52 degrees, and March 36.21 degrees. The mild winter — the mildest for many years — was followed by a warm summer, and a splendid autumn completed a year that will long be remembered for its genial warmth. The average temperature for April was 47.68°," which was four degrees warmer than the average for thirty years, and the warmest April in all that time. May averaged 58.25° — three degrees warmer than the average May for thirty years, and with one exception it was the warmest May in that time. June averaged 65.72° , July, 67.68° , August, 67.43° , September, 62.43° , October, 47.41° , and November, 41.20° ."

1890. In mildness, January and February equalled that of the previous year. But December proved unusually cold. Ice twenty inches thick was cut during the month.

1890, July 8. A tornado, principally of wind, and resembling a Western cyclone, occurred. Barns were demolished, trees uprooted, and chimneys blown down.

1892. There was but little frost, and no snow on the ground until January; but twenty-four days of that month were stormy.

1893. The month of January was extremely cold throughout the whole country, most harbors as far south as Baltimore being frozen. Favorable winds and other circumstances kept Belfast Bay open. On February 19 and 20, a heavy snowstorm delayed the trains. The first snow fell November 15. Thursday, December 14, was the coldest day of the year, the mercury reaching fourteen degrees below zero F. in Belfast.

1894. The weather record for 1894 set the mark for the traditional "oldest inhabitant" in several respects. May 2, the thermometer stood at eighty degrees above zero in the shade, the hottest ever known at that season; February 24 was the coldest day for over thirty years, the average being 11.6 degrees below zero; April 9 saw the deepest snows at that season for years; August 10 the mercury stood at fifty degrees at sunrise and there were frosts on low land.

1895, February 8. High winds, snow, and a tidal wave caused considerable damage. The water rose more than three feet above the height of the normal spring tides. Within ten hours the barometer fell from 29.3 to 28.6.

1895. On the 10th of May, the thermometer indicated eighty-four degrees above zero, but three days later a heavy frost occurred. There were warmer days in May and June than in either July or August. Snow fell November 2. During the third week of December, the frost came out of the ground; the weather being mild and foggy.

1896. The mercury reached sixteen degrees below zero January 10 and February 17. Snow came November 21, but it lasted only a few days. For the remainder of the year the ground was bare. There were one hundred and nine rainy days during the year, and forty-six on which snow fell.

1897. The summer was the coldest for many years. On October 16 the thermometer stood at eighty-two degrees above zero. A snowstorm occurred November 12.

1898. January was colder than the average for thirty-nine years. There were only three fair days during February, and on the first and second days of the month, the railroad was blocked. Nearly one half the rainfall of July came in a single hour on the 26th. Snow first came on November 10.

1899. A very cold spell began late in January and terminated February 11 in a severe gale and snowstorm. The roads were badly drifted, travel by rail was delayed, and by teams was nearly suspended. Considerable ice made in the bay, but not enough to stop the Boston steamers, and the smaller boats laid off but one day. A snowstorm March 15, followed by sleet, made the best sleighing of the winter, which lasted several days. April was the warmest in forty years, with the exception of April, 1889. The snow went off without rain, and by May 1 farmers were ploughing in fields where two weeks before the snow was two feet deep. There were two light falls of snow in October. Ten inches fell on November 11 and 12. The ground was bare at Christmas.

1900. The first few days of the year were very cold. Snow to the depth of three inches fell on January 1. April 9 was the warmest day of that date recorded here for forty-two years; the thermometer reaching sixty-nine degrees above zero. On the 1st of March a gale proved disastrous to many buildings, including a partial wrecking by a falling chimney of the screw-driver factory of F. A. Howard & Son in the rear of Phoenix Row. The ice wharf at Little River was carried away, and several sea-walls near the battery were destroyed. On November 8, a continuation of high tides and strong southern winds caused considerable damage in the harbor; vessels and wharves being injured, and several buildings on the latter flooded. What remained of the old Rag Wharf, on the eastern side of the harbor was carried away. A frost came September 19; the mercury reached the freezing point, October 17; on December 10, it was two degrees below zero. Snow came November 25, and remained until Christmas, when rain and fog caused its disappearance.

During an unbroken period of over forty-two years, Mr. Lucius H. Murch has recorded the temperature and state of the weather thrice daily, together with the nature and duration of storms. For several years he has furnished an account of rain and snow-falls for the United States Government.

ICE

Although the winter of 1875 did not seem uncommonly cold, it was noticeable for a prolonged embargo not only of Penobscot Bay, but of the whole Atlantic coast as far as Virginia. On the 21st of January, with the thermometer at ten degrees below zero, ice began to form, and in a few days no blue water was visible from Owl's Head to Fort Point. January 24, the steamer Katahdin reached her wharf with difficulty through eight inches of solid thickness, accompanied by hundreds of people who escorted her along a narrow channel. Until April, horses and sleighs passed over the bay in all directions. On one bright forenoon, seventy-five persons drove from Belfast to Castine. Much of the surface was smooth, and afforded excellent skating and ice-boating. There was a fascination in passing over the water usually so unobstructed, with a feeling of security almost as great as if one walked upon solid granite. Until April 2, men crossed the bay opposite Turtle Head. The ice did not finally leave until April 17, one day after the river was clear to Bangor. The detention of the Katahdin lasted nearly three months. One of the incidents of the icy fetters was the displacement of the piles of the railroad bridge, which for some time compelled trains to stop at the foot of Peirce Street.

1883. During the early part of February, the upper harbor was frozen as far as the lower steamboat wharf. A heavy sheet of ice between the Bluff and Long Island was dislodged by cutting a channel through the centre.

1885, February 12. The harbor was filled with ice, and fears were entertained of a complete blockade. The steamers were delayed, but managed to make their regular trips.

1886. Up to January 7, the Passagassawakeag River, from Citypoint down, was entirely free from ice.

1888, January. The bay froze over, and navigation became obstructed until March 22. On the 22d of February, a party drove from Islesboro, with a dory placed on sleds, to be used in case they broke through. Saturday Cove was free most of the time. On March 10, a gang of men attempted to cut out the harbor, and, aided by the revenue cutter, Levi Woodbury, succeeded in clearing a channel through twelve inches of ice to the steamboat wharf. A large floe in its passage out swept away the monument from Steele's Ledge. All the docks were clear on the 22d of March. The "Republican Journal" for Thursday, February 9, 1888, has the following: "Not since 1875 has there been so much ice in our harbor and Penobscot Bay as during last week. The revenue cutter reported every harbor, bay, inlet, and thoroughfare on the coast of Maine frozen over — ice from eight to sixteen inches thick. The main harbor of Belfast has ice fifteen inches thick; the outer harbor, six to eight inches. The Cutters Dallas and Woodbury reached Cottrell's shipyard with difficulty. The Dallas cut through to the wharf. The steamer Rockland landed freight Wednesday on ice opposite John Condon's wharf." The "Journal" speaks of "heavy storms and cold weather," but does not give the date of closing of the harbor to navigation.

1893. During January, the weather was intensely cold, and most harbors, as far south as Baltimore, were frozen. Belfast Bay kept open until February 9, when it was obstructed by ice for a few days.

LIGHTNING

1876, June 10. The house of Michael Casey near Union Street was struck, and the chimney damaged.

1876, June 23. The house of Lucius Stephenson, on the East Side of the river was injured. The electric fluid came down the chimney, entered every room, and passed out through the cellar drain.

1881, August 7. Lightning entered the office of the railroad freight house by the telegraph wire and a jar of vitriol, wrecking the operating instruments, and setting fire to the room.

1894, June 23. The house of Captain George R. Carter, at the corner of Union and Commercial streets, and the barn of Henry Carrow at East Belfast, were struck, and both were considerably damaged.

1894, August 19. The house and barn of C. H. Waterman were struck and burned.

1896, April 15. The house of P. G. Hunt, about three miles southwest of the city proper, was badly shattered. The lightning struck the chimney and demolished it.

1898, June 17. At Daniel H. Strout's in East Belfast, lightning struck a large tree near the house, and thence scattered through every room, scorching woodwork, and blackening furniture. In the telegraph office wires were burned off.

1899. The house of William Lyman Hall, on Upper High Street, was struck and one chimney destroyed.

During a thunderstorm June 27, 1900, lightning struck numerous buildings and trees in and near the city, but did comparatively little damage. Some of the inmates of houses had narrow escapes.

EARTHQUAKE

For some time in June, 1885, the surface of the bay and harbor was covered with a fine yellow substance, resembling sulphur, which deposited a sediment along the shore. It was not confined to salt water, but appeared on the Muck Pond and in the fields.

1897, September 25. Two distinct shocks of earthquake occurred, sufficient to rattle dishes.

FRESHETS

1876. Heavy rains early in April caused a freshet at the Head of the Tide. The flume of Richard Anthony Gurney's mill was washed away, and a portion of the mill destroyed.

1895, April 6. The Poor's Mills Bridge was carried away, and the damage to the roads exceeded a thousand dollars.

1896. On Sunday, March 1, the most disastrous flood ever known here occurred. Eight bridges on the Passagassawakeag River were either wholly or partially carried away, including a large section of the Lower Bridge. At the head of the stream, the Russ Bridge, so called, was the first to go. Then followed the Monroe Bridge, and after it that at Gurney's Mills, with the saw-mills and gristmills. A few rods below, a bridge on the road leading to Poor's Mills was also wrecked. The next two bridges, one at George Ulmer White's, and the other at the Head of the Tide, escaped. The latter was much weakened. Near Negro Island, the ice, lumber, and other débris piled up to a height of fifteen feet. When the jam broke, it struck the Citypoint Bridge, entirely destroying that structure. The railroad bridge, being of iron, and strongly built, withstood the torrent. From Citypoint, the freshet met the ice, which extended nearly to Beaver's Tail, and when this was dislodged, it carried most of the Upper Bridge. The mass soon reached the Lower Bridge, and that too gave way. There was a wild rush through the open space, and then the ruins became distributed over the harbor. When the electric wires on the Lower Bridge were hit, a brilliant display of fireworks took place, the arc light and each circuit emitting sparks. On Monday, the only access to the city from the East Side of the river by team was by way of the Head of the Tide, a distance of six miles. Many minor bridges and dams on other streams were injured in this freshet. The cost of repairing and replacing the various bridges was estimated at six thousand dollars.

On the 9th of September another storm, with a rainfall of over five inches, produced a freshet, which carried away the Downe's Bridge near Gurney's Mills.

1900. A severe rain and gale on February 13 carried away the Hartshorn Bridge in West Belfast, and the dam at Kaler's Mills at the Board Landing.

CHAPTER XLVIII

BIRTHS

A List of Births which occurred from 1875 to 1900, in Belfast; and of some Children born to Present or Former Residents Elsewhere.

THE following list of births in Belfast was compiled expressly for this volume in 1912. It is necessarily incomplete, owing to the state of the city's records of vital statistics covering the early part of the period. The information these city records afforded has, however, been supplemented by consulting every available source, as the school records, the newspapers of the times, etc. These also proving inadequate, a personal canvass of the families of the city proper, and of the outlying districts, was made by competent persons familiar with the localities. Unless otherwise indicated, the place of birth is Belfast. The State is given only in the case of towns outside of Maine. Where the birthplace of parents was unascertained, a blank is left,—thus (b.). Abbreviations: b. = born ; d. = daughter; s. = son. The names in this list, being arranged alphabetically, are not indexed.¹

Achorn, Sarah, b. 20 September, 1897; d. Joseph O. Achorn (b. Morrill) and Annie L. Wentworth.

Achorn, Walter Ross, b. 15 June, 1892; s. Eugene Storer Achorn (b. Camden) and Mary Eliza Michels.

Adams, Jacob C., b. 22 April, 1893; s. John H. Adams (b. Islesboro) and Mary M. Small (b. Swanville).

Albee, b. 22 April, 1887; s. Henry B. Albee and Annie B. Hart.

Aldus, b. 10 August, 1900; s. Samuel P. Aldus and Bessie A. Thomas.

Aldus, Calvin James, b. 29 April, 1897; s. James V. Aldus and Eliza E. Robbins.

Aldus, Edith Silvia and Ethel Goldia, twins, b. 28 February, 1899; d. James V. Aldus and Eliza E. Robbins.

Aldus, Helen Evelina, b. 20 July, 1895; d. Wm. Oakes Aldus and Inga Olson (b. Isaksmala, Sweden).

NECROLOGY

Account of all Deaths which have occurred from 1875 to 1900, both inclusive — Biographical Sketches—Additional Necrology, 1901-13.

ALTHOUGH for many years deaths were required to be reported to town and city clerks by assessors, parents, and householders, that duty has not been generally performed. By a law of 1891, and subsequent amendments, no burial was permitted, with certain exceptions, until a full record of death was filed. The following list is compiled from the city records and from newspapers. Unless otherwise stated, the place of residence and of death is Belfast; and where the name of a town or city alone is given, the State of Maine is to be understood. The date of death precedes the name of the deceased person, while the figures following directly after the name, indicate the age. The Index of Necrology will be found beginning on page 675.

- Jan. 3. In Pau, France, Alfred Johnson Monroe, 25, born in Belfast, in 1849, son of the late Dr. Nahum Parker and Ann Sarah (Johnson) Monroe. He graduated at Bowdoin College in 1871, and had just completed his professional studies. He was of much promise, many excellencies of character, and of high moral worth.
11. George Young.
12. In Morrill, Sarah A., 33, wife of Isaiah W. Cross, and daughter of the late William W. West, of Belfast.
13. Grace Kimball, infant.
13. Georgie M. Dickey, infant.
16. Rosanna Simmons, 68.
16. Charles R. Thombs, 45, born in Castine. Singularly retired and modest; his generous impulses and kind deeds were appreciated by a wide circle of warmly attached friends. He was well read, and thought deeply in departments of philosophy and science.
16. Alice V. Hall, infant.
25. Infant son of John L. Cook.
28. Charles W. Lane, 11.
- Feb. 3. Mrs. Alice Patterson, 90, eldest daughter of the late Col. Jonathan Wilson.

In 1818, he settled at the Head of the Tide, and eight years later removed to the village, then so called, and opened a watchmaker's shop on Main Street. In this business and its kindred branches he continued during the remainder of his life. He had a strong taste for the study of natural philosophy, and as a chemist and metallurgist, no one in this region exceeded him. For sixty years he was a prominent member of the Masonic order, and in 1854 was made Grand Master. He was also a Knight Templar and Past Grand High Priest. In recognition of his long service, the second lodge in this city was named for him. His funeral was conducted by the Grand Lodge. (See Portrait.)

14. Columbia Perkins Carter, 65. He was the son of Thomas Carter, Montville, and came to Belfast when about 19, and worked as a ship-carpenter. The first vessel of which he had actual charge as master-workman was the Democrat, built above the Upper Bridge by James Young McClintock, in 1840. In 1841, he formed a co-partnership with Erastus B. Stephenson, Samuel L. Sweetser, and V. R. Lancaster, as ship-builders, and for thirty-five years he was steadily engaged in the business, having as partners at different times, Horatio Hatch Carter, J. C. Frye, E. E. Frye, Thomas Carter, Henry Austin Carter, Jacob Young Cottrell, and Everett S. Carter. The list of vessels built under his supervision numbered one hundred, with a total tonnage of 47,945. It was Mr. Carter's pride to excel in the quality of the vessels that went from his yard. He was unwearying in studying new and improved methods, and in adopting all inventions increasing the strength and stanchness of ships. His reputation was world-wide. As an employer, and in all business relations, Mr. Carter was scrupulously just, and every obligation was met promptly and fully. There was rarely, if ever, a business so large carried on with so little flourish or display. He believed in work and achievement, not in red tape. He never forgot the respect that belonged to men as such, and gave to the humblest person in his employ a hearing as attentive as to the merchant whose ship he contracted to build. Mr. Carter's wife, a daughter of the late Robie Frye, survived him. He had no children.

May 31. In Portland, Hon. Hugh Johnston Anderson, 80.

A biographical sketch and portrait of Governor Anderson may be found in the first volume of this History. His Washington residence continued until the spring of 1880, when he removed to Portland, relinquishing the turmoil of political life for the companionship of his books and the congenial enjoyment of his family.

Governor Anderson was endowed with a superior intellect, which he strengthened by study and observation. He was a constant reader of English and French literature. His tastes inclined to history, and his knowledge of that subject was accurate and comprehensive. To his cultivated mind was added a refinement of manners and a cheerful disposition, which made him a most fascinating companion. These characteristics were adverted to soon after his death, in a Boston newspaper, as follows: —

“The writer remembers, many years ago, before the building of the Maine Central Railroad, travelling by stage with the late Mr. Anderson. He had just before been elected Governor for the third term. The journey was from his residence in Belfast to Augusta. It was winter. The snows of successive storms had filled the roads with vast drifts, through which the coach floundered, laden with a motley freight of passengers, who were forced from time to time to turn out and lend a hand to extricate coach and horses from the treacherous gulfs into which they had sunk. The cold was intense, the journey most tedious, lasting from four in the morning of a January day till the same hour of the afternoon; but all the way the Governor was the charming companion which they who knew him well always found him to be, abounding in reminiscences drawn from a keen observation of character, coming rapidly to our rescue, in our weariness, with some well-told story of past or current events, given with such exceeding good nature, such good taste, and so much of a native grace withal, — and even a little stiffness and formality of speech, — that probably none of that tired company ever forgot the narrator, or ceased to recall him with feelings of grateful pleasure.”

At that time he was in the prime of life. He had been in Congress during two terms, had been Governor of his native State, and afterwards he performed many public duties of usefulness and importance; but wherever he went and whatever he did he carried with him the same completeness, conscientiousness, exactness, and urbanity which were fore-shadowed by his genial and high-toned address.

¹ We were in error last week in stating that Mr. Beaman is the only survivor of the active business men of Belfast fifty years ago. H. H. Johnson began in the dry-goods trade in 1828, near the present location of his son and successor. William O. Poor in the same year, having been given his time by his father, commenced the apothecary business in the ell of the old Huse Tavern, now Howes & Co.'s store. The ell covered the present location of the Woodcock and Chase stores. Mr. Poor informs us that H. H. Hay, of whom he bought his first stock, is still in the wholesale drug business in Portland. Such stability in business and business relations is not often found. — Republican Journal, April 3, 1879.

Colonel Chenery's education was received from academic and private schools at Amherst, Greenfield, and Northfield, Mass., after which he resided three years in New York City, then seven years in Wisconsin, and four years in Northampton, Mass. Later he went to California and in 1879 came to Belfast, where he remained until his death in 1890. He married (1) in Sunderland, Mass., 15 August, 1839, Sarah Annis Peck, who was born at Milford, Mass., 29 August, 1819, and died in San Francisco, Cal., 23 November, 1864. She was the daughter of Dr. Gustavus D. Peck and his wife, Sally P. Peck, of Milford, Mass. He was among the earliest to go to California, reaching there in August, 1849, and remained a citizen of that State for more than thirty years, during which time he was prominent in many ways. He was one of the originators and first president of the California Steam Navigation Company, and was interested in incorporating and building some of the earliest railroads. In 1856, during the transition stage of San Francisco and the State of California, he was much interested in the formation and handling of the Vigilance Committee. It was his work there, which did so much towards purifying the condition of the State in taking its government from the hands of the rougher element and placing it in those of the better class, that earned for him the title of Colonel. He was later elected to the State Legislature at a time when it was important that good men should frame the laws of the new and rapidly growing State. He was one of the mounted guard of personal friends that escorted President Lincoln to the Capitol for his first inaugural oath, and later, under President Lincoln's administration, he was appointed to the position of Navy Agent at San Francisco, disbursing millions of dollars for the Government. His later years were spent in Belfast, of which place he became a resident about 1879. He evinced there the same generous public spirit which had distinguished his career in San Francisco, and it was largely through his efforts that the city of Belfast first established its waterworks system, and that the Crosby Inn was built. Though the latter part of his life only was passed in Belfast, he displayed marked energy in our local enterprises, and won the esteem and respect of the entire community. Shortly before moving to the East, he married (2) Anne Maria (Crosby) Johnson, widow of Alfred Waldo Johnson, of Belfast, 18 May, 1873. She was the daughter of Hon. William George Crosby, the last Whig Governor of Maine, and Ann Maria Crosby. She was born 2 July, 1832. Horace Chenery, Esq., of Belfast and Boston, is their son and only child.

25. Thomas Knowlton, 73, a native of Swanville. During the War he served in the Eleventh and Nineteenth Maine Regiments, and in the First Maine Heavy Artillery.
25. Capt. Robert T. Emery, 76, son of Dennis Emery. He was born in Belfast, 9 May, 1823, a son of Dennis and Jane Emery, and spent his boyhood on the farm. In early manhood he began to follow the sea, and soon rose to the command of some of the largest and best ships on the ocean. His first vessel was the ship Eastern Queen. In 1861, the ship Living Age, of 1180 tons, was built for him in Belfast, he being a large owner. While in command of this vessel on a voyage from Liverpool to San Francisco, he was captured, 13 September, 1863, by the Confederate cruiser Tuscaloosa, one of the vessels of Admiral Semmes's fleet. Lieut. Dow, commander of the bark Tuscaloosa, in reporting a cruise in that vessel under the date of Liverpool, March, 1864, says:—"After seeing a number of neutral vessels, I captured the American ship

Living Age, but finding she had a neutral cargo on board and bound for a neutral port, I took a ransom bond for $160,000 and allowed her to proceed on her voyage." Captain Emery soon after left the vessel, and in 1868, when he was in Belfast superintending the building of the ship Chandos, the Living Age was burned at sea, while on a voyage from Shields, England, to Bombay. The Chandos was of 1506 tons, and at the time she was built was one of the largest and best ships afloat. Captain Emery superintended every detail of her construction, buying all the material and looking after the work in the yard. He sailed the Chandos until 1881, when he retired from the sea. He did not, however, lose his interest in maritime affairs, and was often called upon to serve as an adjustor for marine underwriters. He had visited nearly every part of the habitable globe, and his descriptions of peoples, customs, methods of business, etc., given from his long and varied experiences, were always of interest and value. After retiring from the sea he devoted himself to his home, where everything was kept in "shipshape and Bristol fashion." In 1854, he married Elizabeth S. Ross, of Searsport, who died leaving him a son, Ralph Emery, of Kalamazoo, Mich. In 1869, he was married to Eliza R. Ritchie, of Searsport, who survived him. He left two sisters, Mrs. William O. Alden and Mrs. Isaac M. Boardman, both of Belfast. He was of a genial and social disposition, always ready to assist either friend or stranger in trouble or need, — a man strong in his likes and dislikes, and positive in his convictions. A better friend or neighbor could not be desired. He was a member of the Club of Thirty from its organization to its end. His friends were many, and located in all quarters of the globe, as his long and honorable career as master mariner brought him into close relations with seafaring and commercial men.

10. In Bangor, Rev. George Warren Field, D.D., 81. He was a son of Bohan Field, the first lawyer who became established in Belfast, and was born 9 December, 1818. He graduated from Bowdoin College, in 1837, at the age of eighteen. After teaching in Belfast, Bangor, and Gorham, he completed a course of studies at the Bangor Theological Seminary in 1846. From 1852 to 1864 he was settled in Frankfort, Brewer, and Boston. From the latter pastorate he accepted a call to the Central Church, Bangor, and for nearly a generation he was the honored leader of a devoted and appreciative people. His resignation was reluctantly accepted in 1892. During the remainder of his life he continued in the fullness of his power, commanding a wealth of love and respect such as falls to the lot of few men.

For many years, Dr. Field was accounted the ablest of ministers in Maine. He was always studious in habits, with a mind discriminately open to both the old and new. His modesty, amounting almost to diffidence, kept him from publishing what the public would gladly have welcomed from his pen. Many of his sermons, however, appeared in "The Word and the Work." The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by his Alma Mater in 1869, but the title was repulsive to his tastes. In 1876, he married Mrs. Lucy Humphrey, of Bangor, who died at Bangor 22 July, 1910.

5. Col. Hiram Chase, 82. He was born in Charlton, Mass., but with a short exception in the early forties had resided in Belfast since he was six months old. He learned the watchmaker's trade of his father, the late Major Timothy Chase, whom he succeeded in 1844, in the location on Main Street, Belfast, where the family has done a continuous business for well-nigh a century (1913). Col. Chase was a soldier in the Aroostook War of 1839, and the last survivor of the company which went from Belfast. In 1855, he was on the military staff of Gov. Anson P. Morrill. During the administration of President Lincoln, in 1861-65, he held the office of postmaster. Always a prominent Free Mason, he attained the higher degrees of that institution, and became Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Maine in 1857 and 1858. At its seventy-fifth anniversary, in 1895, he delivered an address which was published in the proceedings of that body. Col. Chase was a kind friend and a genial companion, of strong and outspoken convictions, and a man of great energy.
6. In Elmira, N. Y., Emma Charlotte, 50, wife of Capt. Frederick Barker, and daughter of the late John Warren White.
9. Charles R. Hamilton, 58, a native of Swanville. He enlisted in Company D, Nineteenth Maine Regiment, and was severely wounded at Gettysburg.

11. In Lawrence, Mass., Alvan Page, 83, for many years a ship-carpenter in Belfast.
11. Mrs. Lydia Brooks, widow of the late Moses Wason Ferguson, in her ninety-fifth year. Mrs. Ferguson, whose maiden name was Lydia Brooks, she being a daughter of Jonas and Lydia (Temple) Brooks, was born in Princeton, Mass., in 1806. She came to Belfast to teach school in 1825, making a journey which in those days meant far more than now. Railroads and steamboats were unknown in Maine, and her journey was accomplished from Princeton to Boston by private conveyance, thence to Belfast in a small coasting vessel (perhaps the old schooner Polly), with the attendant privations and dangers. The wind being unfavorable for running the packet up into Belfast Bay, the captain put her ashore at Fort Point, and from there, she walked to her destination, at the Head of the Tide, fourteen miles.

In 1828 she married Mr. Moses Wason Ferguson, with whom she lived happily for almost sixty years, their home being at Citypoint. Of seven children, six were still living to celebrate her ninetieth birthday, in 1896, as follows: Albert, of Searsport; Captains Jonas B. and John W., and Miss Jane W., of Belfast; Mrs. Hannah E. Grimes, of Princeton, Mass.; and Miss Lydia, a teacher of languages in Mrs. Hayes's school on Marlboro Street, Boston. Our fellow townsman, the late Hon. George B. Ferguson, who died in 1893, was also her son. Mrs. Ferguson was at the time of her death the oldest member of the Belfast Congregational Church, having been for three quarters of a century of her long and useful life a member of both the City and Head of the Tide churches. To the last, she took a lively interest in every passing event, and her mental and physical faculties were retained to a remarkable degree.

Bros., 1869-1878, and later of the Critchett Sibley Company, shoe manufacturers, until his death. He married, 7 November, 1877, Margaret A. Ritchie. Child: Ami Cutter, Jr., born 7 October, 1883.

- Sept. 22. George Ralph Williamson, 65, born 13 April, 1836, son of the Hon. Joseph and Caroline (Cross) Williamson, and nephew of the Hon. William Durkee Williamson, the Historian of Maine. His early education was, like that of his brothers, Joseph and William Cross, acquired at the Belfast Academy. From there, like so many Belfast young men of his generation, he entered Bowdoin College, graduating with the degree of A.B. in 1856, and receiving that of A.M. in course. He next studied law with his brother, Joseph Williamson, and at the Harvard Law School, receiving there the degree of LL.B., in 1860. After a European tour he practiced law in New York City for a few years, and then went to California as superintendent of mines for Goss and Lambard (the Lambard of the firm being the late Orville Dewey Lambard, of Augusta). He later returned to New York City, where the greater part of his business life was passed in important positions with the Postal Telegraph Company. In 1900, he came to Belfast, purchasing part of original lot No. 47, on Northport Avenue, and building the residence there overlooking the bay. The following is quoted from an obituary notice which appeared in the "Republican Journal" at the time of his death: "Mr. Williamson was an enterprising, progressive man, one who put all his energies into what he had to do. Prompt and reliable in all business transactions, genial and companionable with all with whom he came in contact, he won the highest respect of his business associates and the love and esteem of his neighbors and townsmen." He married, 16 October, 1844, at Brooklyn, N.Y., Emma Ingraham Sprague, only child of William Hammond and Mabel (Heath Bliven) Ingraham. They had no children. His widow survives him.
25. Martha Jane Littlefield, 58, wife of Albert Gammans, born at Brooks, 4 July, 1843, daughter of Eben and Esther (Rackliffe) Littlefield. She was a charter member and the first president of the Children's Aid Society of Maine; the first president of the Belfast Improvement Society; the vice-president of the Women's Hospital Aid Association, and was active in the affairs of the Universalist Church. She married, 25 Dec., 1863, Albert Gammans. Children: Maud, born 18 Jan., 1866; James Albert, born 16 Feb., 1868.

- Jan. 24. Jeremiah Clements Thompson, 81, born at Montville, August, 1821, son of Joshua and Deborah (Clements) Thompson.

He was a well-known furniture dealer, and for many years was a deacon in the Congregational Church and active in the Sunday School. He married, 13 June, 1850, Almedia H. Handley, of Hope. One child: William Conant, born 7 June, 1851.

Apr. 24. Frederick Austin Knowlton, 76, born at Northport, 23 October, 1826, son of Abram and Lucinda (Billings) Knowlton. Mr. Knowlton was engaged in the grocery business in Belfast, for many years. He married at Boston, Mass., 30 Nov., 1859, Elizabeth A. Rhoades. Children: Belle, born 1 August, 1857, who married George E. Wadlin; Annie Maria, born 20 July, 1861; Edith Blanche, born 26 September, 1867, who married George Israel Keating; Harry Austin, born 19 July, 1871; Fred, born 18 February, 1856, died 1866; Ernest, died in infancy.

June 13. At Weston, Mass., William Cross Williamson, 72, born 31 January, 1831, son of the late Hon. Joseph and Caroline (Cross) Williamson, and a nephew of the Hon. William Durkee Williamson, the Historian of Maine. He received his early education at the Belfast Academy, and was fitted for college by H. B. Wheelwright, Harvard, '44, in Roxbury. He graduated from Harvard with the degree of A.B. in 1852, receiving that of LL.B. in 1855, and A.M. in 1860. In college he was a member of the Hasty Pudding Club, of which he was both the Secretary and Poet; of the Institute of 1770, the Alpha Delta Phi, and the Pierian Sodality. In 1901, in recognition of his scholarship, he was elected into the Phi Beta Kappa. At graduation he was Class Poet, but owing to the sudden death of his mother while on her way to attend the Class Day exercises, the poem was read by Joseph Hodges Choate. After graduating from the Harvard Law School, in 1855, he took up his permanent residence in Boston, where he was admitted to the Bar in 1856, and entered upon the practice of the law, in which he continued until his death. In early life he was president of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Boston, and in 1858 and 1859, he sat in the Common Council. In 1861, he was elected a commissioner in insolvency. He later served the city for several years, between 1878 and 1888, on the School Committee, of which he was president in the last-named year. In 1890, he was appointed one of the commissioners on the publication of the Province Laws. All other public office he invariably declined. He was a parishioner of the Church of the Disciples. He was a principal founder and counsel of the North End Savings Bank, and a member of the Boston Cadets, the Union and St. Botolph Clubs, the Harvard Musical Association, the Examiner Club, and the Colonial Society of Massachusetts. Horace was his favorite author, and he became one of the most learned Horatians in America. He had a fine collection of the best editions of Horace, including Aldine, Elzevir, Bentley, Pine, and Baskerville, besides other rare editions, some being in French, and others in German. He was an occasional contributor in prose to the "North American Review" upon topics of the day, and in verse to the old "Putnam's Magazine." He also wrote some beautiful verses printed in the New York "Evening Post." His last poem was a sonnet on the death of his classmate, James Bradley Thayer, and his last piece of literary work was a memoir of his elder brother, the Hon. Joseph Williamson, the historian of Belfast, which is printed at the beginning of this volume. He married, 29 April, 1863, at New Bedford, Mass., Sarah Howland Ricketson, only daughter of Benjamin Tucker, and Eliza Cowdrey (Warnock) Ricketson, of New Bedford, Mass. His widow survives him with their only child Grace, wife of Henry Herbert Edes, of Cambridge, Mass.

- Oct. 8. Jeremiah Curtis Whitten, 80, born at Freedom, 26 Oct., 1823, son of Colonel Ivory and Sally K. (Maddocks) Whitten. He taught over two hundred terms of dancing-school in Belfast and the surrounding towns, and was leader of Whitten's Quadrille Band. During his long career succeeding generations of the youth of Belfast were put through their "first steps" and received their earliest lessons in "deportment" from this indefatigable and kindly natured "Professor." His energetic and spirited "fiddling" and his original and rigorous methods of enforcing discipline, tempered by his amusing and old-time phraseology, are still vivid in the recollections of many. He married June, 1849, Sarah Wead. Children: Emma Frances, wife of Edward L. Whittier, of Melrose, Mass.; Henry A., who married, Georgia Nickerson, of Somerville, Mass.
13. Horatio Hatch Carter, 81, born at Montville, 19 March, 1822, son of Thomas and Joanna (Perkins) Carter. He was a member of the well-known firm of Columbia Perkins Carter & Company, which built more than 125 vessels. He married, 31 December, 1853, Lorinda McCrillis. Children: Janett, Frances, born 31 January, 1846, who married Franklin A. Follett; Mary D., born 1848, died 16 March, 1875; Charles, died in infancy; Carrie Belle, born 14 October, 1859, who married George C. Trussell; Horatio Herbert, born 17 February, 1864.
28. Charles Franklin Ginn, 56, born at Prospect, 7 January, 1847, son of Samuel and Isabel (Ridley) Ginn. He was one of the original members of the firm of Ellis & Ginn, grocers. He married, 12 February, 1874, Susan E. Ellis. Children:

Isabel, born 20 December, 1875; Emeroy, born 29 May, 1878.

Mar. 14. Horatio Palmer Thompson, 67, born at Frankfort (now Winterport) 3 January, 1837, son of John and Mary (Palmer) Thompson. His parents both dying when he was young, he came to Belfast to live with his uncle Horatio N. Palmer. In 1865-66, he had commercial interests in Oil City, Penn. Returning to Belfast, he became associated with the Russells in the manufacture of paper in East Belfast, which continued until this firm removed to Lawrence, Mass. Afterwards, he was a member of the shoe manufacturing firm of Critchett Sibley Co. He was president of the Belfast Common Council, 1878-79. Mr. Thompson was a man of executive ability and sound business judgment, affable in manner, and possessed of a keen sense of humor. His ancestry is an interesting one; his emigrant ancestor, the Rev. William Tompson, whose grave, still clearly marked "1666," is now the oldest in the ancient cemetery at Quincy, Mass., was among the first to come to the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Horatio Palmer Thompson married (1) 17 October, 1861, Mary Elizabeth Parker, daughter of Rev. Wooster and Wealthy Ann (Pond) Parker, who died 6 December, 1864. Child: Albert Wooster, born 17 May, 1864, and married to Elizabeth M. Winston. He married (2) 25 January, 1874, Delia Wood Parker, daughter of Rev. Wooster and Wealthy Ann (Pond) Parker. Child: Edward Parker, born 18 Nov., 1875, died in infancy.

June 14. David Whitten Dyer, 88, born at Steuben, 29 November, 1815, son of Reuben and Anna (Whitten) Dyer. He was one of the oldest shipbuilders in Eastern Maine, and established the first Marine Railway in Belfast, which he successfully operated for over half a century. He married (1) 14 Nov., 1839, Sarah Ann Shute. Child: Sarah Ellen, born 19 Oct., 1840, who married Horatio H. McDonald. He married (2) 7 Dec., 1843, Jenette Turner Bradman. Children: Frederick Howard, born 18 Aug., 1845, died at Key West, Fla., 11 June, 1864, while serving in the Navy; Frances Jennette, born 5 June, 1847; Edward Arthur, born 28 June, 1850.

June 28. In Denver, Col., Rebecca Palfrey, wife of Rev. David Utter, 61, born at Barnstable, Mass., 9 May, 1844, daughter of Rev. Cazneau and Anne Parker (Crosby) Palfrey. She was a graceful writer of both prose and verse (see page 2). She married, 16 September, 1872, Rev. David Utter. Children: Margaret Germaine, born 8 August, 1873, who married Benjamin Standish Baker; Robert Palfrey, born at Olympia, Washington, 23 November, 1875, A.B. Harvard 1898, Ph.D.

1906, who has been an instructor at Harvard University, and is at present an Associate Professor of English at Amherst College. He married at Cambridge, Mass., 18 May, 1907, Madeline Bôcher, daughter of the late Professor Ferdinand Bôcher, of Harvard University: Richard van Winkle, born near Wilmington, O., 2 August, 1882.

- July 13. William McGray Woods, 83, born at Unity, 9 November, 1821, son of Moses and Elizabeth (McGray) Woods. He organized in 1850 the "Mutual Store," which later became the firm of Woods, Mathews & Baker. He married 12 March, 1851, Celia J. Frye. Children: Emily Pierce, born in 1853, married Lendal Tyler Shales, 30 November, 1876. She died, 25 November, 1896.

- Jan. 18. In Boston, Edward Johnson, 65, born 30 June, 1840, son of Judge Alfred and Nancy (Atkinson) Johnson. In early life he was interested in foreign shipping, and made several foreign voyages in old-time square-rigged ships, sailing more than once around the world. Later he was engaged in commerce on the Great Lakes and on the Western frontier. From 1868 he was interested in the construction and financing of the Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad and in the Cedar Rapids and Missouri River Railroad, and was director in both companies. For 37 years he was trustee of the Alfred Waldo Johnson estate, and executor and trustee for other estates and trust funds. At the time of his death he was a director in the Waldo Trust Company, and President of the Belfast Savings Bank. He passed the winter season in Boston, and resided in Belfast during the summer months. His love for Belfast and the surrounding country, its lakes, hills, bay, and islands, always strong, increased as the years advanced, and he frequently made the statement that in no part of the world had he found more attractive natural scenery. He was a member of the following: Somerset Club; Exchange Club (charter member); Boston Art Club; Bostonian Society; State of Maine Club (charter member); Belfast Club; Master Mariners' Association; Boston Marine Society, — all of Boston; also the Maine Historical Society and the Cumberland Club of Portland. He married, at Boston, Mass., 15 September, 1870, Georgianna Parker Miller. The latter, born at Franklin, Mass., 23 December, 1842, and deceased 15 August, 1907, at the Johnson Homestead, Belfast, Me., was the daughter of Dr. Erasmus Darwin and Louisa (Clarke) Miller, of Dorchester District, Boston. Children: Alfred, born 28 June, 1871, Boston, unmarried (1912); Ralph Miller, born 25 August, 1872, at Boston, married, 30 October, 1907, at New York City, to Marie Antoinette Davis; Edward, Jr., born 4 December, 1876, at Boston, married, 25 November, 1903, at San Diego, California, to Gertrude Ellen Nukerck Clark; Louise Miller, born 4 December, 1876, at Boston, married 10 April, 1902, at Boston, to William Veazie Pratt, Lieutenant, United States Navy.

- Oct. 30. Alden Darwin Chase, 84, born at Waldo, 1 May, 1822, son of Timothy and Eleanor (Blood) Chase. He was Lieutenant in Company K, 4th Maine Infantry. After returning from the War Mr. Chase engaged in the dry-goods business which his wife had established in 1856 on the corner of Maine and Church streets, upon the present site (1913) of the City National Bank. Together they carried this business on successfully for over half a century. Mrs. Chase, whose maiden name was Nancy Jane Patterson, was married to Alden Darwin Chase, 31 December, 1844. She died, 23 October, 1907. Children: Frederick P., died in infancy; Robert Patterson, born 27 January, 1852, married Alice Brown.

- Mar. 30. Charles Bellows Hazeltine, 78, born 2 April, 1828, son of Benjamin and Mary A. (Bellows) Hazeltine. Immediately upon the discovery of gold in California, in 1849, Mr. Hazeltine went there by way of the Isthmus of Panama, and entered into a variety of enterprises with such good judgment and energy, that he was able to return to Belfast, a few years later, and retire for life, at the age of 26. Though he then relinquished active business he was later at different times interested in foreign shipping, the ship C. B. Hazeltine being named for him; and in the coasting trade between Belfast and Jacksonville, Fla., in which latter place he passed many winter seasons, having real estate investments there in connection with his brother, the late Benjamin Prescott Hazeltine. He was one of the original directors of the Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad Company, and its president for many years; and a trustee of the Belfast Savings Bank, from its foundation in 1868, until his death. Mr. Hazeltine was a man of an unusually attractive and genial personality, with a warm, hearty greeting and a friendly, helpful attitude toward all he met. In his tastes and mode of life, he was a country gentleman of the best type. His horses, dogs, garden, orchard, and hayfields received an intelligent personal supervision, and at his residence on Primrose Hill, built in 1859 after his return to Belfast, a genuine hospitality was for years extended to distinguished men, who came there from all sections of the country, from Massachusetts to California. As a sportsman, Mr. Hazeltine was widely known, he being one of the first to take up brush-shooting over bird dogs in this State, and his house was full of trophies of the chase. No one knew or loved the woods and lakes of Maine better than he, or was more interested in preserving them and in protecting their game. His fondness for Belfast, his native place, and his readiness to help in all movements for her welfare were strong at every period of his long life. He married, 12 July, 1854, at Camden, Frances Louisa Jones, daughter of Joseph and Mary Ann (Brown) Jones. Children: Grace, born at Belfast, 28 April, 1855, died 4 March, 1861; Ben, born at Boston, Mass., 24 March, 1857, married 27 July, 1888, Annie Agnes Durham; Mary, born at Belfast, July 9, 1861, married, 25 December, 1888; James Howard Howes; Frances, born at Nice, France, 2 February, 1868, died at Nice, France, 8 Feb., 1868; Louise, born 21 Nov., 1873.

- Oct. 13. In New York, N.Y., Cyrus James Hall, 73, born 15 October, 1834, son of Cyrus and Martha (Weeks) Hall. He was active in the lumber and granite business, operating quarries on Mount Desert Island and elsewhere. He received the contract and furnished and cut the stone for the Belfast Free Library. He married, 20 June, 1868, Sylvia Jane Gilmore. Children: Martha Louise, born 9 Nov., 1869, who married, 1 Jan., 1891, at Atlanta, Ga., Clinton George Ferguson; Mary Flitner, born at Mount Desert, 14 Sept., 1877, who married, 10 June, 1909, at Springfield, Mass., James Burton Van Gelder of Inglewood, California.

- Apr. 7. Albion H. Bradbury, 85, born 16 Sept., 1822, son of Nathaniel H. and Sophia (Moulton) Bradbury. He was for thirty-four years the faithful and efficient cashier of the Belfast Bank, and of its successor, the Belfast National Bank.

- Nov. 4. George Dana McCrillis, 79, born 16 July, 1829, son of James and Jane (Durham) McCrillis. He was Register of Deeds from 1895 until his death. He married, 26 August, 1852, Aurindia B. Doe. Children: Emma C., born 26 August, 1854, and died 27 May, 1884; Cora B., born 26 June, 1857, and died 15 July, 1911. She married, 1st December, 1910, D. G. Richards; Nellie J., born 17 December, 1859; she married 22 April, 1883, Fred E. Avery; Mary L., born 3 September, 1862, died 7 April, 1899; George L., born 16 July, 1865, died 3 September, 1886; he married, 23 March, 1889, at Providence, Rhode Island, Dell Foster.

- Mar. 25. Benjamin Kelley, Jr., 75, born 4 January, 1834, son of Benjamin and Catherine (Campbell) Kelley. He succeeded his father in the manufacture of the Kelley Axe, which held a high reputation from Maine to California. He married (1) Laura Rankin; (2) 27 September, 1863, at Bangor, Mary 1909.

Electa Rankin. Children: Walter Baymore, born 20 February, 1865, married, 20 July, 1896, Annabel Swan; Edward Havener, born 27 September, 1869, married Caroline Barstow; Elizabeth Adah, born 22 October, 1871.

June 21. In Riverside, California, Albert Starrett White, 69, born 15 Dec., 1839, son of James Patterson and Mary Ann (Clarke) White. He was in business at first in New York City, but was later obliged to remove to Riverside, California, on account of his health. There he became an extensive orange planter and landowner. A pleasure park in Riverside has been named for him. He never married.

Mar. 22. Elizabeth Ann Barns, 89, born at Bucksport, 17 Sept., 1821, daughter of Captain William and Sophronia (Bowles) Barns. She was assistant teacher at the Belfast Academy while the Rev. George Warren Field was principal, and later for many years conducted a private school in Belfast. Many of the older generation of residents received their first instruction from her. She was a woman of much force of character, of precision, and of excellent judgment. By her will the Waldo County Hospital obtained a generous bequest, which has since been used to finish and furnish a double room for patients, a classroom for nurses, a dietary kitchen, and a room for the surgeons' use, and for keeping their instruments.

June 10. In Bangor, Ansel Lothrop White, 65, born at Belfast, 26 June, 1835, son of Robert and Lois (Lothrop) White. Entering the service of his country as a private in the 19th Maine Regiment in 1862, his war record was a brilliant one, and continued until he was mustered out of service in 1865, with the rank of Brevet Major. He was at different times engaged in business in Belfast, in Boston, and in New York, in which latter place thirty-five years of his business life were passed. In 1906 he retired, and returned to Belfast, where he resided until his death. He married, 24 November, 1869, Mary, daughter of Hiram Orlando Alden. Child: Emily Bingham, born 19 October, 1872, and died 1 February, 1880.

Aug. 12. In Boston, George Prentice Field, 65, born at Searsmont, 17 October, 1844, son of Bohan Prentice and Lucy (Haraden) Field. Mr. Field entered the insurance business at an early age, as a clerk in his father's office in Belfast. At the outbreak of the Civil War, he was appointed Deputy Provost Marshal, and subsequently was Deputy Collector of Customs at Belfast. He removed to Boston in 1873, as special agent of the Royal Insurance Company with the firm of Foster & Scull, then the New England managers of that company. Later Mr. Field became a member of the firm, its name changing to Scull & Field, which name, in turn, became, in 1898, Field & Cowles. He was president of the New England Insurance Exchange in 1885; president of the Bureau of United Inspection, and also of the Boston Protective Department from 1888 to 1893; president for several years of the Insurance Library Association of Boston, and for three years president of the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters. Mr. Field was, at the time of his death, the most prominent figure in the underwriting circles of Boston, and no insurance manager in New England was more widely or more favorably known than he. He was a most genial, generous, and whole-souled man, with a host of friends wherever he went. His love for Belfast, the place of his nativity, and where his youth and early manhood were passed, was always keen. He was one of those most interested in preserving her records in this Second Volume of Williamson's "History of Belfast," and up to the time of his last illness was active in attempting to bring its publication about. His letter, which appeared in the "Republican Journal," January 20, 1910, shows that the idea of forming a syndicate or association of present and former residents for the purpose originated with him. He married, 12 June, 1868, at New Bedford, Mass., his cousin, Alma Cleghorn Field, who died at Boston, 5 Aug., 1908. Children: Walter Ingraham, born 9 March, 1869, and died 7 Feb., 1894, in Boston; Edith Alma, born at Worcester, Mass., 7 Oct., 1873, who married Horace Bertram Pearson.

Sept. 11. Fred George White, 46, born 13 February, 1864, son of George Franklin and Margaret (Hazeltime) White. He was engaged in the hay, coal, and wood business, from early manhood until his death. He possessed the confidence and warm regard of all who knew him. By his will the Belfast Free Library, founded by his great uncle, Paul Richard Hazeltine, received the income of $5000. Mr. White was much interested in bringing about the publication of Vol. II. of Williamson's "History of Belfast," and was one of the original subscribers to the fund for that purpose.

Dec. 14. Frank Merriam Lancaster, 93, born at Northport, 27 November, 1817, son of Humphrey and Lucy (Elwell) Lancaster. He went to California in 1851, where he remained four years. On his return to Belfast he engaged in the grocery business, in which he continued until his death. He married, 18 January, 1844, at Northport, Angelett O. Brown. Child: Ella Angelett, born 27 March, 1847, who married James Llewellyn Sleeper.

Feb. 3. Robert S. Burgess, 82, born 2 January, 1830, in a log house in the Pitcher District of Belfast, son of David and Catharine

- M. (Holmes) Burgess. In 1851, he went to California, where he resided for twenty years. In 1871, he returned to Belfast, where he was engaged in business with David P. Alexander for twenty-seven years. He never married.
- Feb. 20. In Belfast, Arnold Harris, nearly 90, born at Krotoschin, Germany, 18 May, 1822, son of Louis and Minna Esther Harris. He married, 25 May, 1851, at New York, Frederika Benas, of Krotoschin, Germany. He was for many years a successful clothing merchant in Belfast. A courteous, obliging man of sound business judgment. Children: son, born at New York City, died in infancy; Emily, born at Boston, 5 May, 1853, wife of the late William Hyams; Philena, born 25 March, 1856, died 31 December, 1859; Bertha, born 16 July, 1858, wife of the late J. B. Smith; Louis, born 16 December, 1861, died at New York City, 3 January, 1911.
- Sept. 26. Clara Isabelle Thorndike, 67 wife of Edward Sibley, born Schaghticoke, New York, 5 May, 1845, daughter of Timothy and Hannah (Williams) Thorndike. While she was a little girl her family removed to Belfast. She graduated from Mount Holyoke Seminary in 1867, and afterward taught in the Belfast High School. She was an active member of the Congregational Church, and the president of the Travelers' Club. Her interest in the welfare of Belfast was evinced in many ways, and she was the friend of many good causes. Her character was decided and well-rounded, her influence far-reaching. She married, 15 June, 1869, Edward Sibley. Children: Charlotte Thorndike, born 29 January, 1871, who married Henry Hoyt Hilton, of Chicago, Ill.; Harold Thorndike, born, 19 February, 1882.
- Dec. 28. Augustus Perry, 97 years and 8 months, familiarly known as "Belfast's grand old man," born at Camden, 30 April, 1815, son of Oakes and Nancy (Rogers) Perry. When he was about sixteen years of age, his parents went to reside at the Head of the Tide, Belfast. There, at the age of twenty-one, he bought an interest in the general store of Edwin Beaman, which in 1841 was moved into town, where Mr. Perry continued in business until 1882, when he sold out to Charles Baker, and retired, being at the time the oldest grocer in Maine. In 1883, Mr. Perry entered the Belfast Post-Office as Money-Order Clerk, and held the position for upwards of twenty years, and for a large part of that time was the oldest employee of the United States Post-Office Department. He was Town Treasurer in 1852 and City Treasurer in 1853, and from 1858 to 1860. It was said of him in the "Republican Journal" on his 95th birthday: "He is to-day more active than many younger men, a constant attendant at the Sunday and Thursday evening services of the Congregational Church, keeps well informed on current events, and has a hearty greeting for his many friends. He attributes his longevity to his never having used alcoholic drinks or tobacco in any form, and to his having kept the Sabbath Day holy." On his 96th birthday it was said: "Mr. Perry is the oldest citizen of Belfast, and one of the most dearly beloved. Hardly a day passes that he is not seen downtown, with his cheery smile for old and young, and he is greeted as 'Grandpa' by half the children in the city. With his quaint long coat, stovepipe hat, and cane, he is a typical old-school gentleman, and his snowy beard and hair only enhance a complexion that any girl might envy." He married 28 November, 1843, at Searsport, Jane Porter, of Searsport. Children: Edward Augustus, born 10 November, 1844, who became a resident of Fargo, North Dakota; Julia Margaret, born 10 June, 1850; Isabella Jane, born 14 January, 1852, who married Hon. Clarence O. Poor; Walter Frank, born 11 October, 1854, who became a resident of Grand Forks, North Dakota; Emily Fowler, born 16 February, 1847.

- Dec. 29. In Kansas City, Mo., Eugene S. Rust, 61, born, at Washington, D. C. 17 June, 1851, son of Hon. William Maxfield and Martha (Weeks) Rust. At the time of his death he was general manager of the Kansas City, Mo., Stock Yards, with which he had been connected for thirty-two years. He married, 6 October, 1874, at Kenduskeag, Nellie A. Case, of Kenduskeag. Children: Frederick W., born 26 March, 1876; Donald Eugene, born 9 October, 1877; married 10 June, 1911, Denver, Col., Helen Russel Dugal; an adopted daughter, Dorothy Case, born 1 February, 1891.

- Mar. 10. In Elmira, N.Y., Captain Frederick Barker, 73, born at Montville, 29 April, 1839, son of Isaac Truman and Abigail (Dyer) Barker. In 1858, Mr. Barker came to Belfast, where he engaged in business until the breaking-out of the Civil War, when he enlisted in the 26th Maine Regiment. His war record was a distinguished one. After being mustered out of the service with the rank of captain in 1863, he became a member of the hardware firm of Barker & Burgess, in Belfast, where he resided until 1870, when he closed his affairs there. In 1871, he went to Elmira, N.Y., and entered the hardware business with the firm, which at the time of his death, bore the name, The Barker, Rose & Clinton Company. Captain Barker was a member of the Baldwin Post, G.A.R., Union Lodge, A.F. & A.M., a member of the Empire State Society of The Sons of the American Revolution, and of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion; one of the officers of the New York State Hardware Dealers' Association; on the executive committee of the National Hardware Dealers' Association; a member of the Century Club, and of Park Church. The high position he held among his business associates was an enviable one. Captain Barker was always very loyal to Belfast, the place where he began his business career, where he enlisted in his country's service, and where he was married. He was one of the first to join the Williamson's History Association, after its organization in November, 1912, and his interest in the Second Volume of Williamson's "History of Belfast," was sustained even through his last illness. He married, 18 December, 1872, Emma Charlotte, daughter of John Warren White. She died 6 April, 1900. They had no children.

- Mar. 28. At Greeley, Col., Albert John Condon, 50, born 3 July, 1862, son of Captain John Crie and Hannah (Perkins) Condon. Educated in the Belfast schools, he was a clerk with several merchants here until 1887, when he went to Kansas City, to enter the employ of William F. Bean, formerly of Belfast. Later, after holding various important positions with wholesale houses for the manufacture and sale of men's hats throughout the West, he established himself as proprietor of one of the largest department stores in Greeley, Col. At the time of his death Mr. Condon was vice-president of the General Electric Company, a director in the National Bank of Greeley, and had large real estate interests. He married, 20 March, 1894, at Montrose, Col., Miss Louise Becker, of Montrose, Col., daughter of George and Margaret Becker; Children: Alberta Louise, born at Denver, Col., 2 May, 1896; William Bean, born at Greeley, Col., 24 March, 1908.

PHINEAS PARKHURST QUIMBY

Although Dr. Quimby died nine years before the period treated in this volume, it has been thought appropriate, in view of the widespread interest in his teachings, to include here a brief outline of his life and work.

Phineas Parkhurst Quimby was born in the town of Lebanon, New Hampshire, 16 February, 1802, and died in Belfast, 16 January, 1866. He was the son of Jonathan and Susannah (White) Quimby. The father, a blacksmith by trade, removed with his family to Belfast when Phineas was about two years of age. The son attended the town schools irregularly, and was apprenticed to a watch- and clock-maker, and later not only made clocks which are to-day accurate timekeepers, but became an inventor of some note. His education, which was supplemented in mature life by reading, was, however, for the most part derived from close observation and from his own original experiments; his active, penetrating, and inventive mind leading him to investigate first mechanical and scientific, and later philosophical subjects. Although not the recipient of any academic degree warranting the title, he was for many years generally referred to as Dr. Quimby.

In 1838, his attention was called to mesmerism, and after some time spent in experimentation with a youth named Lucius Burkmar as his "subject," he gave some astonishing exhibitions of mesmerism, often relieving at the same time much pain and suffering.

As his experience increased, Dr. Quimby became very much interested in developing his powers along the lines of helping the sick. He gradually came to place less and less importance on the part played in his cures by the intermediary "subject," Burkmar, and after some years gave him up entirely, and ceased to resort to mesmerism. It is at this epoch that he may be said to have formulated his final method, which consisted in the practice of treating those who were not well by influencing their mental life. In a "Circular to the Sick," which he distributed from 1860 to 1865, in Portland, Maine, where he was, during the latter part of his life, settled, he says: "As my practice is unlike all other medical practice, it is necessary to say that I give no medicines, and make no outward applications, but simply sit by the patient, tell him what he thinks is his disease, and my explanation is the cure. And, if I succeed in correcting his errors, I change the fluids of the system and establish the truth or health. The truth is the cure."

His "explanation," to which Dr. Quimby refers, consisted largely in setting right the false conceptions the persons who came to him held about themselves; hence it followed, naturally, that as soon as the patient accepted this "explanation," and thus recognized that his fears and worries had no real reason for existing, he was freed from them, and ceased to be their slave, and consequently was started at once on the road to recovery. His method was to disabuse the mind of its errors, and to establish truth in their place. He became more and more convinced that disease was largely an error of the mind, and not real, though he made a distinction between an error of the mind and one of imagination, and was wont to say that, to his suffering patients, there was no imagination about their pain. He believed that a superior wisdom could change the wrong state of mind and effect a cure. The only part of this "superior wisdom" to which he personally laid claim was that which his twenty-five years of intimate experience with the sick had gradually taught him. As a result of this "wisdom," or insight into their conditions, he devised his own method of helping and often curing those afflicted with disease, and he distinctly refers to this method as a Science. The words, Truth, Error, Wisdom, Science, Science of Health, etc., occur frequently throughout his writings.

It is worthy of note that while examining and treating the sick he was always in his normal condition, and that he never made any pretense of going into a trance, and was a strong disbeliever in spiritualism in its common acceptation. An insight into the character of Dr. Quimby may be obtained from the fact that his whole idea of happiness was to be able to serve and benefit mankind; and to administer to the sick and suffering seemed to him to be his special privilege, and to that end he labored sincerely and gave to it, without regard to pecuniary rewards, his strength, and finally his own life.

A study of Dr. Quimby's career and a perusal of such of his writings as are available give the impression that he was a distinctly original man, who, through his quarter of a century of practical experience in observing closely the workings of the human mind, discovered, independently and unaided, some of the most profound principles which underlie modern psychotherapy. The power of suggestion, the importance of substituting correct methods of thought for bad, and of maintaining wholesome normal attitudes towards life, and the need of correct adjustment both physically and mentally to one's surroundings, and the influence of environment, upon all of which the most learned students of psychology and psychiatry have laid so much stress during the last five years, appear to have been known to him. While it would doubtless be going too far to say that his use of the terms "change of fluids of the system," "chemical changes," etc., meant that he foresaw the very important part that chemistry was to play in the present decade in helping to understand the human mind and body, yet his recourse to the terms leads one to infer that he was even along these lines groping in the right direction. With wider opportunities for training and education, such a mind and personality would doubtless have gone very far in helping his fellow men. As it is, the principles he made use of, so important in the treatment of functional as distinguished from organic diseases, will outlive any existing sect, and the modesty with which he presented them was in great contrast to the loudness with which they have often been advertised in more recent times.

We are told by men who knew him that he was a most sincere man, an absolutely disinterested and unselfish one; while a study of his portrait, framed in its wealth of snow-white hair and the beard worn by his generation, and with its keen, piercing, but kindly eyes, its strong mouth, high intellectual forehead, and its forceful lines, and very evident power of intense concentration, is sufficient to convince any one of the general upright nature and strength of his character. The love, confidence, and gratitude of his patients, as well as the remarkable nature of his cures, are amply attested by letters still extant, and which have been read by the writer of the above. His wife, who was Susannah Burnham, daughter of the late John Haraden, died 19 April, 1875. Their children, the late John Haraden Quimby, Mrs. James Woodbury Frederick, and George Albert Quimby, survived them, and the two latter are still living (1913).

A List of all Marriages from 1875 to 1900 — Marriages of Former Residents
Elsewhere

THE following list comprises all the marriages solemnized in Belfast from 1875 to 1900, both inclusive, and those of residents or former residents which took place elsewhere, so far as ascertained from the city records and newspapers. Marriages of some non-resident descendants of early families are included. Where no other city or town is named, Belfast is to be understood as the place of marriage and of residence. The State is indicated only in the case of places outside of Maine. The original form of entry has, for the most part been retained. The Index of the Marriages will be found beginning on page 651.

MINUTES OF SECOND, THIRD, AND FOURTH DIVISIONS OF LOTS IN BELFAST, 1778-1838

THE original minutes of the surveys of the second, third, and fourth divisions of the "Proprietors Lands" in Belfast were kept in the custody of the several clerks of that organization, the last of whom was Benjamin Houston, who, under the authority of said Proprietors given as late as 1838, made conveyance of land that year. At the close of Houston's service all records, minutes, or other documental matters were deposited with Hon. Nathan Foster Houston, in whose keeping they remain (1912).

Copies of the minutes of the surveys of the first division of lots, were given in Volume I, and it has been thought worth while to complete the record and preserve it, by printing the minutes of the second, third, and fourth divisions of lots here.

The appended copy was made expressly for this volume, in December, 1912, under the personal direction of Hiram P. Farrow, civil engineer, of Belfast, and the proof-sheets of the same were read by him.

By way of introduction to these, the following, quoted from pages 63-66 of Volume I of Williamson's "History of Belfast," is interesting, and shows also, how Belfast first came to be settled:—

"Among the sixteen men, who with their families first composed the settlement at Londonderry, N. H., was one John Mitchell. He brought with him from Ireland a son of the same name, then five years old. The latter was afterwards apprenticed to a housewright, and as late as 1768, styles himself a 'joiner.' Early in life, however, he relinquished his trade, and became a well-known practical surveyor, and a teacher of the higher branches of mathematics. . . . Soon after the termination of the French War, Governor Bernard, of Massachusetts, appointed him to superintend a survey of the Schoodic River and of Passamaquoddy Bay, a service which he performed to the entire satisfaction of his employer. . . ."

"On his passage from Boston to Schoodic during the summer of 1765, Mitchell visited Penobscot Bay, and first looked upon the place where our city now stands, then a wilderness, the primeval forest, which no civilized person had ever penetrated, skirting the coast, and extending as far as the eye could reach. A century of cultivation has greatly changed the prominent features of the landscape. The heights of Blue-hill and of Mount Desert still lift their dim outlines in the east, and the waves of the bay still glitter in the sunbeams; but field and orchard, wharf and shipyard, have crowded off the forest, and busy trade has encroached upon the curving lines of the once lonely shores. It can well be imagined how forcibly the varied scenery of the locality, and also its natural resources, may have impressed the mind of so intelligent and discriminating a man as Mitchell. Learning at Fort Pownall that the land which bordered upon our harbor was for sale, he communicated the information to his friends in Londonderry. The result was the formation of a 'community,' or 'proprietary,' as it was called, for the purchase of a township, then designated only as a 'tract on the southerly side of a township granted to Colonel Goldthwait.' "

"On the fourth day of October, 1768, the proprietors, thirty-five in number, held their first regular meeting in Londonderry, and adopted certain articles of government. It was then voted to divide the land composing the township, which contained by estimation fifteen thousand acres, into fifty-one rights or shares. Persons were not admitted as shareholders simply upon request, but the circumstances and standing of each applicant were duly considered. One of the first acts which appears of record is 'that we bind ourselves that no one shall own a right amongst us that is unable to produce a certificate of good moral character to the satisfaction of the community, and of the gentlemen of whom we purchase.' A bond was entered into to make an immediate settlement."

A list of the names and number of rights of each member of the proprietary then follows in Volume I.

"Mitchell, as owner of the largest portion, was elected clerk of the organization; and the records are in his handwriting from their commencement until the year 1779. A committee of three persons was selected at the first meeting 'to go to Boston to have the agreement for the land made more explicit.' . . ."

"The representatives of the fifty-one rights agreed to divide the land on the shore, so far up the river as navigation was then supposed to extend, into fifty-two harbor or first division lots, reserving one lot, No. 26, 'for the first gospel minister that is settled; viz., one hundred acres off the north end, and the remainder on the south end to be a common to build a meeting-house on, and a grave-yard and a training-field.' These lots contained from ninety-six to one hundred and twenty-two acres each, excepting No. 27, which, by reason of including a portion of Goose River, comprised one hundred and seventy-three acres. The shore frontage of the lots was about forty rods each. The side lines running from north to south on the eastern side of the harbor, and from east to West on the other side, averaged four hundred rods in length. A highway, four rods wide was reserved across each lot, to be laid out when required; and another, two rods wide, was reserved for the inhabitants on the side line of every fourth lot. Many of the side lines are still marked by stone walls, especially on the eastern side of the river. The variation of the magnetic needle during a century has somewhat interfered with the original courses."

A copy of Chadwick's plan is given in Volume I. "The fourth division lots were not originally included. That portion of the township which in 1845 was set off to form Searsport is indicated by black lines."

"Due notice to the proprietors of 'the tract of land called Passagawakeg' summoned them to meet at the house of David Craig, innholder, in Londonderry, March 8, 1769, 'to draw their first division lots, and to come prepared to pay their part of the charges on account of the purchase.' At the appointed time and place a division was made," as stated at length in Volume I. Incidentally, it is interesting to note that this is the first mention of the name Passagassawakeag (place where dead men walk), which occurs in the Proprietors' Records.

The minutes of the first division of lots are, as already stated, given in full in Volume I, pp. 66-86. The minutes of the second, third, and fourth divisions of lots follow:—

TRANSCRIPTS OF THE FOURTH DIVISION

I find a few Discrepancies in the transcripts of these fourth Division lots viz

The N. E. corner of 39 is called Rock Maple the N. W. corner of 40 which is the same is called spruce

The N. E. corner of 44 is called red ash, the N. W. corner of 45 which is the same is stake in the meadow

The N. E. & S. E. corners of 47 are called hemlock, the S. W. & N. W corners of 48 which are the same are firs

The Transcript of 54 seems to be Deficient of a line from the pond to the N. W. corner. Would it not be correct to add to it "thence Westerly by the pond to a stake in the Easterly line of lot 53 thence N. 22° W. to the place began at."

In the plan of the Town the School lot between 18 & 19 is marked 113 r. & 16 links wide

In these transcripts No 18 is so marked. The former I presume is correct

I am much surprised at the great inaccuracy of the surveys & minutes of the lots, in the fourth Division joining on Belmont — I find the Town line now North 20° W nearly but the line between the 3d & 4 Divisions to be N. 18° W making a deflection of two degrees to the Eastward, whereby in running northerly, each line becomes about 2 rods longer No 22 4 Divis is 177 rods long & 58 rods wide — and the same width on 6 lots together.

June 1845.

I A

[I am quite positive that the letters "I, A," above are the initials of Isaac Abbott, who was a land surveyor of good repute at that date (1845); and the date appears to have been added by him.
